NOTIFICATION.

The 17th. May 1886.—The following rules for the importation into Bengal of spirits manufactured at Shajehanpore in the North-Western Provinces have been framed by the Government of Bengal in communication with the Government of the North-Western Provinces, and are hereby published for general information. The rules will have effect from the 2nd June 1886.

Rules for the Importation into Bengal of Spirits manufactured at Shajehanpore.

1. Rum and other spirits manufactured at Shajehanpore may be imported into Bengal, under a license and a pass granted by the Collector of Shajehanpore, either on payment of duty at Shajehanpore, or under bond for payment of duty to the Collector of the district in the Lower Provinces into which the liquor is imported.
2. The Collector of Shajehanpore will forward by post a letter of advice to the Collector of the importing district of all spirits exported from Shajehanpore for the Lower Provinces, giving full particulars of each consignment, by specifying the number and date of the pass granted under the preceding rule in respect of the consignment, the description, quantity and strength of spirit contained in each cask or other vessel, and whether full duty has been levied, or the liquor has been cleared without prepayment of duty.
3. Spirits manufactured at Shajehanpore may be imported into Bengal by licensed dealers and persons requiring the spirit for consumption and not for sale, without the execution of a bond, and without a special license from the Collector of the importing district, provided—
 - (1) That duty be prepaid at Shajehanpore.
 - (2) That the consignors (Messrs. Carew and Company) obtain a pass from the Collector of Shajehanpore in respect of each consignment; such pass to contain the name and address of the consignee, and all of the particulars required by rule 2; and that they forward the same by post (not later than the date of despatch of the consignment) to the Collector of the importing district, sending at the same time a copy of the pass to the address of the consignee.
4. Except as provided in rule 3, every person removing spirits from Shajehanpore for exportation into the Lower Provinces must execute a bond binding himself and his heirs, successors and assigns to produce to the Collector of Shajehanpore, within a reasonable time (to be fixed by the Collector of that district), a certificate signed by the Collector of the importing district of the due arrival of the spirit at its destination, or to pay the Collector of Shajehanpore a sum equal, in the case of liquor removed without payment of duty, to double the amount of duty chargeable thereon, and in the case of liquor removed after payment of duty, to the amount of duty already so paid. The bond will also provide for the payment of penalty duty at the above rates on any deficiency in volume or strength on the arrival of the liquor at its destination in excess of 5 per cent, i.e., of double duty on such excess deficiency in the case of spirit removed without prepayment of duty, and of single duty on the excess deficiency in the case of spirit removed from Shajehanpore after payment of duty.
5. On a written application being made to the Collector of Shajehanpore, stating the causes, accidents, &c., which necessitate an extension of time, it shall be competent for that officer, if he thinks fit, to extend the time named in the bond under rule 4 for the due arrival of the spirit at its destination.
6. Should any delay arise in granting the certificate at the place of destination, which, in the opinion of the Collector of that place, would be a good and sufficient reason for extending the currency of the bond, he shall grant a certificate to that effect, and the Collector of Shajehanpore on receipt thereof may grant the certified necessary extension.
7. Collectors of district in the Lower Provinces will fix places for the reception, storage and examination of all spirits imported from Shajehanpore, subject to the orders of the Board of Revenue, who are authorised to refuse permission to import such spirits without prepayment of duty into any place or district within the Lower Provinces as may seem to them advisable.
8. Places fixed under the preceding rule for the reception and storage of spirits will in all respects be considered excise godowns, and will remain in charge of an excise establishment to be fixed by the Board of Revenue, and to be entertained at the expense of the holder or owner of the spirits so long as any spirit remains there. No spirits shall be removed from such godowns, except under a pass signed by the Collector or other officer duly authorized by the Board of Revenue, and until full duty of excise has been paid. Any spirit removed from such godown, except as above, will be liable under the terms of the importer's or holder's license to confiscation, and the person removing the liquor to the penalties provided by the excise law. It will always be competent to the Board to permit the removal of non-duty paid spirit from one warehouse to another under bond.
9. The owner or his agents will be required to give intimation in writing to the Collector of the district of the arrival of each consignment, and will convey all the spirits at their expense direct to the place fixed for its reception under rule 8.
10. If any spirit arriving from Shajehanpore is not taken direct to the place appointed for its reception, or is found out of the ordinary route of transit, it will be liable to confiscation.

11. On spirit being stored in the place appointed under rule 7, it shall be gauged and tested by an officer appointed for the purpose by the Collector of the district, care being taken to allow sufficient time for the spirit to cool. Due notice of such examination shall be given to the owners thereof.

12. Where any excess in strength or quantity is found in the case of duty-paid spirit, the duty ordinally leviable on such spirit will be levied forthwith on such excess, and before the duty order necessary certificate for cancellation of the bond.

13. The Collector of the importing district will, after examination of the spirit, grant a certificate certifying the arrival of the consignment and realization of duty or penalty duty on excess or deficiency found in quantity or quality, as the case may be.

14. The following marks are to be legibly painted or cut on all the casks or other vessels containing the spirit, viz., the name of the distillery, the known mark of the proprietor, the number of the casks or other vessels, and the quantity and strength of contents. The above particulars should correspond with those in the letter of advice.

15. All spirits imported into Calcutta from Shajehanpore will be carried and stored in the excise godown at the expense of the owners or agents, and will only be issued for local consumption or exportation to other districts in Bengal or for exportation by sea under passes granted by the Collector of Calcutta.

16. Rule 3, under section 7, chapter XV of the Board's rules, is applicable to all spirits manufactured at Shajehanpore and imported into Bengal under bond, and stored in places fixed for its reception.

17. Spirits manufactured at Shajehanpore and imported into Bengal under the above rules may, after payment of full duty of excise, either at the place of manufacture or in the district into which the spirit is imported, be sold by persons holding licenses for the sale of imported liquor.

18. The provisions of sections 61 and 75 of Act VII (B.C.) of 1878 shall apply to all Shajehanpore spirits imported into Lower Bengal in excess of the quantity shown in the pass or bond prescribed in rules 3 and 4 respectively, or otherwise in contravention of these rules.

- (g) Extension of the Road Cess office.

4. But little was left from the previous year to complete the Bakhtearpur to Behar road, and this was done during the year under report, the outlay being Rs. 2,036. This brings to a close what was called the magnus opus of the Patna district when it was started in 1879. The road is a first class one, 20 miles in length, and is bridged and metalled throughout, the bridges aggregating 1,446 running feet, and providing 17,574 superficial feet area for waterway. The total cost of the road has been Rs. 2,18,784.

5. The road from Masaudhi to Fabhara was almost completed in the previous year as far as the roadway is concerned, and the expenditure this year (Rs. 9,828) was almost entirely on the construction of culverts. The only considerable work was a bridge with four openings of 20 feet span across the Kararwa river. A sum of a little over Rs. 18,000 is still required to complete the work.

6. The Masaudhi to Palegunj road is a third class road, 15 miles long. It was also practically completed in the previous year, the expenditure for the year being Rs. 960 out of a total outlay of Rs. 9,477.

7. The metalling of the Fatwa to Hilsah road was finished during the year under report. The accounts, however, could not be closed within the year, and a sum of Rs. 1,600 was left to be accounted for this year out of an estimate of Rs. 30,149.

8. Rupees 17,858, being outlay for the year on the Behar to Ekangar Serai road, was chiefly spent on culverts and bridges across the Sansi and Etwan rivers, the expenditure to date being Rs. 54,800 out of an estimate of Rs. 1,84,620.

9. On the Fatwa to Behar road also the expenditure during the past year, amounting to Rs. 15,361, was chiefly on culverts and bridges across the Narhana and Mohana rivers, the expenditure to date being Rs. 42,829 out of an estimate of Rs. 75,389.

10. The extension of the Road Cess Office building was nearly completed during the year; the expenditure being Rs. 10,728 out of an estimate of Rs. 11,828.

11. The total outlay on original works amounted to Rs. 67,168, against Rs. 73,926 in the previous year.

12. Repairs.—The only large works under the head of "Repairs" were those of the Bukhtearpur to Behar road and Fatwa to Bagjafar Khan road, the total expenditure on them amounting to Rs. 8,259 and Rs. 6,969 respectively.

13. On the first class roads, of which there was 108 miles in the district, the expenditure was Rs. 22,150, giving an average of a little over Rs. 200 per mile.

14. On the second class roads, of which there are 222 miles, the expenditure was Rs. 8,070, or about Rs. 36 per mile.

15. On the third class roads, of which there are 141 miles, the outlay was Rs. 4,594, or about Rs. 32 per mile; and on the fourth class roads, of which there are 121 miles, it was Rs. 4,875, or about Rs. 40 per mile.

16. The total outlay on repair works was Rs. 48,064, against Rs. 50,300 of the previous year.

17. Union roads.—With the exception of one road in the Khagaul Union, all the union roads in the Dinapur sub-division are reported by the Chairman, Branch Road Cess Committee at Dinapur, to be in a state of complete repair and in excellent order. A sum of Rs. 41-4 was expended on the repair of Khagaul Union roads from the Union Funds, but a large expenditure will be necessary this year, as one of the roads requires thorough re-metalling.

18. None of the union roads in the Barh sub-division was repaired last year, nor is it known whether they require repair or whether they are going to be taken up this year. The report of the Chairman, Branch Road Cess Committee, Barh, is silent on these points.

19. The total expenditure on union roads amounted to Rs. 876, against Rs. 1,498 of the preceding year.

20. Village roads.—The village roads in the sudder sub-division were under the charge of the District Engineer, and those in the Barh, Behar, and Dinapur sub-divisions under that of the Chairmen of the Branch Committees at those places. These communications are reported to be in a fairly good condition, but this is not borne out by my personal observations in the case of the Behar sub-division, where one of the principal village roads has been allowed to fall out of repair.

21. With a view to help the people of the distressed portions of the Behar sub-division, the repairs of some village roads were undertaken as relief works, and were carried out under the supervision of the sub-divisional officer at a total cost of Rs. 1,825.

22. As reported last year, steps are being taken to obtain the land required for the Mahubagh to Baragaon village road, which will be taken in hand as soon as an arrangement can be arrived at.

23. The total outlay on village roads amounted to Rs. 7,306, against Rs. 7,819 of the previous year.

24. Arboriculture.—A sum of Rs. 1,067 was expended on arboriculture with very poor results. Before going on leave on the 31st of August last, the District Engineer had inspected many of the roads where the young trees were planted out last year, and found them looking most healthy, but the floods of September destroyed most of them; and though in places seedlings were again planted out after the subsidence of the floods, it was too late in the season, especially as little or no rain has since fallen, and but few of them have survived.

26. Working of the Road Cess Act.—The Act continued to work satisfactorily. The gross demand for the year under report was Rs. 2,06,399, of which Rs. 1,64,606 was collected within the year, and Rs. 3,883 was previously paid in advance on account of this year, leaving a balance of Rs. 37,960 at the close of the year, or 18.3 per cent. on the gross demand. A sum of Rs. 3,827 was also collected in advance on account of future years.

27. The percentage of balance on the demand compares unfavourably with that of the year before last when it was only 14.1, but this is attributable partly to the increase in the demand owing to the re-valuation and partly to bad harvest, the rice crops having failed in many parts of the district, and the bhadoi crops being also much below the average.

28. Two thousand five hundred and ten certificates were filed during the year, and 785 were pending from last year, making a total of 3,295 cases. Of these, 2,128 cases were disposed of, leaving 1,167 cases pending at the close of the year under report. The weakness of the staff at head-quarters and changes of officers entrusted with the disposal of certificate cases retarded very much the progress in this department, but the greater part of the balance should be recovered as soon as the pending certificate cases are disposed of.

29. Working of the District and Branch Committees.—The District Committees worked well, and the members displayed a considerable amount of interest in the matters that were laid before them. For the first time since the introduction of the Road Cess Act in this district a non-official gentleman (Moulvi Khuda Bukhsh Khan Bahadoor) was elected as Vice-Chairman of the Committee in June last, and the manner in which the work of the Committee's office has been carried on under him augurs well for the future of the Local Self-Government scheme.

30. All the Branch Committees in the district are stated to have worked satisfactorily. Even the Branch Committee at Barh, which was reported to have done almost nothing in the previous year, is said to have evinced an intelligent interest in the maintenance of village communications in that sub-division.

31.—Working of the Establishments.—The District Engineer has, as hitherto, efficiently superintended the works under his control, and has never been deterred by the weather from travelling over the roads in all seasons of the year.

32. The working of the engineering and collection establishments was throughout the year satisfactory.

33. The Committee's Office has only one accountant and two peons. The accountant does the whole work of the office. He keeps the accounts and does everything which an accountant should do. In addition to his work as accountant, he is the Committee's clerk, and has performed the duties of that office efficiently. The office work is carried on most satisfactorily, and there has never been any defect found either in accounts or in the ordinary office work.

KHUDA BUKHSI,

Vice-Chairman of the District Road Committee, Patna.

No. 192, dated Gya, the 21st January 1886.

From—C. W. BOLTON, Esq., Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Gya,
To—The Commissioner of the Patna Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit the annual account and report of the Road Cess Department for the year 1884-85, under section 179 of Act IX of 1880. A preliminary report was submitted on the 12th August last.

2. Annual Account.—The account was duly audited and passed by the Audit Sub-Committee on the 21st December.

3. Inspection of Offices.—The Committee's and District Engineer's offices were inspected by the Examiner of Local Funds Accounts on the 11th August 1885. He pointed out various irregularities, and an explanation has been called for from the District Engineer, on receipt of which the Committee will deal finally with the report. In the meantime such of his suggestions as can be at once followed have been adopted.

4. Working of the Act.—The road cess being now a well-known and long-standing tax, questions are no longer raised as to its necessity or the principles on which it is assessed. It is paid without murmur as an acknowledged and regular contribution to the public revenues. There is still, however, much impunctuality in payment, proceeding not from any feeling of opposition to the cess, but from negligence and the general disposition, observable in all countries, to postpone payment of taxes as long as it can be avoided. The obligation to pay in the cess with the land revenue is seldom recognized by a considerable proportion of the landlords, and the issue of a large number of certificates thus becomes necessary after every "kist." I have lately published a notice throughout the district drawing the attention of the zemindars to this obligation, and to the great inconvenience caused to my office, and the expense and trouble caused to themselves, by the necessity of issuing hundreds of certificates several times during the year imposed upon us by their want of punctuality, and I trust that this will result in some improvement. The bigger zemindars, when short, of funds, default, I understand, because the interest charged on arrears of road cess is only 12½ per cent. per annum, whereas they would have to pay a far higher rate if they borrowed from mahajans in order to pay on the kist day. Postponement of payment for some weeks or months is thus a distinct gain to them. The smaller landlords when holding shares of estates purposely omit to pay, in the hope that their co-sharers will deposit the amount due for the whole estate, and that no demand will, in consequence, be made on them for some time, if they do not even altogether escape their liability.

5. Working of the District Committee.—Six meetings were held by the Committee during the year. The members residing at Gya are fairly regular in their attendance, but infusill members, with one or two exceptions, seldom attend. I shall endeavour by consulting the members more as to the wants of their own neighbourhoods and by utilizing their services, if possible, for local enquiries and petty works to create among them a greater interest than they appear at present to take in the work of the Committee.

6. Working of the Branch Committees.—The Jehanabad Committee held three and the Aurungabad Committee four meetings during the year; while only one meeting was held at Nowada. There should have been at least quarterly meetings, and the Sub-divisional Officers will be reminded of this. Some of the members of these Committees attended fairly well and took interest in the proceedings, but the majority appear to have shown a good deal of indifference. This is, I think, partly due to the fact that the Branch Committees have not hitherto had sufficient funds entrusted to them. I shall see that in future they, or their successors under the Local Self-Government Act, get a larger share of the road cess income for expenditure in their sub-divisions, and that they receive more advice and assistance from the District Engineer than they have hitherto done.

7. Working of the Finance Sub-Committee.—The Sub-Committee met regularly every month and audited and passed the accounts.

8. Collection and Assessment.—The maximum rate of cess was levied during the year. The collection was above 82 per cent. of the gross demand. A separate report has been submitted on the subject (No. 26R.C., dated 11th December 1885).

9. Original Works.—The following works have been undertaken during the year:—

(a).—A timber bridge over the Falgou river at Gya, with a total length 1,450 feet, and a clear width of 16 feet. This is a most important work, costing over a lakh of rupees, which will facilitate traffic between Gya and the eastern portions of the district. It is nearly completed.

(b).—A bridge of 2 spans of 20 feet each over the Golanuddee on the Gya to Gopalgunge road. The work is finished.

(c).—Road from Gya to Budh-Gya, metalled throughout. Five miles were completed within the year. A bridge over the Mansarwa nulla just outside the town is, however, still under construction. The road is a useful one for pilgrims and visitors to Budh-Gya.

(d).—Road from Bela to Futehpore on the Tecari to Gya Road.—The earthwork was almost completed. This is a road intended to bring Tecari into direct communication with the Bela station of the Patna-Gya line.

10. Repair Works.—The following were the more important works carried out:—The metal on the Kharhat to Rojowli road was put into sound and smooth order; the metalled miles of the Gya to Daudnagar road, left in disorder by the contractor in the previous year, were properly repaired departmentally; and two-and-a-half miles of the metalling of the Gya to Dohi road were completed. The inspection-bungalows were repaired according to the provision made for each in the budget.

11. Village Roads.—These roads received somewhat more attention than in the previous year, but the allotments made for them in the several sub-divisions were, in my opinion, much too small. More money should, and I hope will, be allowed for them in future. Work on these roads is the best evidence to the ryots that they are getting some equivalent for their contributions to the Road Cess Committee's funds, and it is due to them that we should keep up as many roads of this class as we can afford to do without neglecting the main lines of communication. I have, in the present year, placed a portion of our allotment for village roads in the hands of the Manager of the Tecari Estate for expenditure on the estate, and shall also entrust a portion to Mr. Solano of Arwal and any other gentleman who can be relied upon to spend the money properly. I shall also propose to the Committee that the allotment be increased. My cold weather tour so far has satisfied me that a great deal more attention should be given to the village roads than they have hitherto received.

12. Union Roads.—These were attended to during the year as far as the funds of the Committee would permit. It will be necessary for the Committee to give some assistance to the municipalities of Daudnagar and Tecari, which have taken the place of the unions that formerly existed in those towns.

13. Arboriculture.—The maintenance of trees along the roads is a work of considerable difficulty in this very dry district, but much is being done under this head. It will probably be the best plan to place the trees in charge of contractors, and this system will be adopted experimentally for the roads lying at a distance from the head-quarters of the sub-divisions. Maps are in preparation showing the trees and their condition on the different roads, and when they are ready the Committee will have before it full information as to the extent to which arboriculture has been carried and the necessity for its further development.

14. The Engineering staff has worked well during the year on the roads which have been taken up. The collection and Committee's offices are also in fair order.

W. HAMPTON,

C. W. BOLTON,
Chairman.

No. 69, dated Arrah, the 8th December 1885.

From—A. W. B. POWER, Esq., Chairman, District Road Fund Committee, Shahabad,

To—The Commissioner of the Patna Division.

I HAVE the honour to forward herewith the annual accounts of the Shahabad District Road Fund Committee for the cess year ending 30th September 1885, together with the report prescribed in section 178 of the Cess Act, IX (B.C.) of 1880.

2. Audit of Accounts.—The accounts were prepared and submitted under section 179 of the Act to the standing Sub-Committee for examination and certification, and have been duly passed by them.

3. Working of the Act in matter of collection.—The current demand for the year was Rs. 1,45,458, and the arrear demand of the previous year Rs. 39,713, making a gross demand of Rs. 1,85,171. The actual collections amounted to Rs. 1,47,415 and a sum of Rs. 77 was remitted during the year, leaving a net balance of Rs. 37,679 uncollected at end of the year. The balance is in process of speedy realization. The present law works fairly as far as the ultimate security of the revenue is concerned, but it involves the issue of a large number of certificates with notices and sale proclamations, causing undue amount of office work and entailing delay as well as considerable annoyance to the tax-payers, and occasionally leading to the sale of estates under circumstances of great hardship: this is especially the case where there are large numbers of co-parceners at feud with each other. No arrears of cesses in this district became barred by limitation up to 30th September 1885.

4. Working of the Sudder and Branch Committees.—There were three meetings of the Sudder Committee during the year, and at each of them a sufficient number of members attended to form a quorum. There were five meetings of the Buxar Branch Road Cess Committee, three of the Bhabuah, and 7 of Sasseram. In every instance a quorum attended.

5. Audit of Monthly Accounts.—Before submitting the monthly accounts to the Accountant-General, Bengal, they are regularly audited by a standing Sub-Committee framed under section 174 of the Cess Act, consisting of the Vice-Chairman and two non-official members. The accounts were always found by the Audit Committee in good order.

6. Inspection of Accounts.—The offices of the Chairman and District Engineer were inspected by Pundit Sham Narain, Local Auditor of Accounts, Bengal, from 2nd to 17th September 1885. An extract from his report is noted below:—

“The accounts and registers of both the offices have been well kept—in a neat and tidy manner.”

7. How the different Establishments worked during the year.—The establishment attached to the Chairman's office consists of an accountant, a clerk, and a peon. The accountant is not properly qualified for the post he holds; he has not passed the Public Works Department examination, and is, I believe, totally incapable of doing so; the clerk has merely routine duties to perform.

There is no efficient head of the collection establishment: in consequence of this the office has long been out of hand: the records are in confusion and incomplete, and a mass of work has accumulated. Both offices require entire re-organization, measures for which are in progress.

8. Mr. J. McNamara, who has held the post of District Engineer for a long series of years, continues to deserve the confidence and approbation of the Committee. His staff is also favourably reported on.

9. The Sub-divisional Committees in Shahabad exercise independent powers under section 165 of the Cess Act, and the only control exercised over them has been such as the Commissioner exercises in regard to District Committees. Each sub-divisional officer is Vice-Chairman of the Branch Committee of his sub-division. The District Officer is Chairman of them all, but took no active part in executive management.

The Branch Committees have been entrusted with the maintenance of minor roads in their subdivisions, and for this purpose, and for such other works as may be proposed and sanctioned, a sum of Rs. 10,000 has annually been allotted to each.

10. Working of the Branch Committees.—The Branch Committees are very useful, as they have the advantage of local knowledge. Their independence exonerates the District Engineer from a part of the responsibility which would otherwise attach to him in respect of giving advice as to the allotment of funds and of supervising the works executed. These are chiefly of a petty nature, and the District Engineer's hands are thus freed for more important undertakings.

11. State of Roads.—The annual repairs of the roads under the District Committee were all promptly executed immediately after cessation of the rains, so that the expenditure incurred on them was fully utilized for the cold weather traffic; and the roads generally were maintained during the year in fair repair. The metalled roads were all kept in good order.

12. Original Works.—The original works executed during the year cost Rs. 43,864-5-1 and are detailed below:—

I.—Metalling Arrah and Tendooni section of Sasseram and Arrah road. This work was completed during the year, the total cost being Rs. 83,461, against Rs. 83,316 of estimate, the excess being insignificant, viz., Rs. 145 or less than (decimal) 0·2 per cent., whereas the lowest excess notified in any prescribed rules as needing reference (supplementary estimate) is 5 per cent. In reporting on this work, during its progress, in his inspection report for 1883-84, the Divisional Superintendent wrote as follows: “The road (Arrah to Sasseram) is metalled throughout with the exception of from 25th to 26th mile, for which the collection of kunker is in progress, and it is expected that during the current year the work will be completed and the road from Arrah to Sasseram will compare favourably with “any road in Bengal,” and in his present report* the Divisional Superintendent of Works writes:—“This road has also” (having just said that the Doornoon-Tendooni new metalled road was in “excellent order throughout”) “been very well maintained. The section from Bickram to Sasseram, on which the metal is hard stone, has been improved since my last inspection, but it can never be a smooth road to travel over until it is blinded with kunker, which is gradually being done.”

October and November 1885.

II.—Improvement of Canal Bridge approaches—work completed, and the approaches have been included in the favourable remarks by the Divisional Superintendent of Works on the roads detailed in the report.

III.—Construction of Canal Feeder roads:—

Works practically completed. In regard to the first, the Divisional Superintendent of Works reports:—“This is a simple work and has been very neatly and satisfactorily completed,” and in regard to the second road he states “the same remarks will apply to the new Titrahand Canal Feeder road.”

IV.—Bridging and metalling Arrah to Chupraghat road. The estimate for this work amounts to Rs. 51,987, but only Rs. 20,000 could be allotted for it in the annual budget; but the late Chairman urged the District Engineer to push on the work with as much speed as possible, and that endeavour would be made to provide funds for the purpose from savings of other works. In answer to this call, the work was pushed on, and not only was the budget allotment fully worked up to, but the additional amount subsequently provided in the re-appropriation statement, was likewise well expended. The work of the Saury bridge, as remarked by the Divisional Superintendent of Works, is "at a standstill for want of funds."

V.—Improvement of Sinha to Arrah (Gangey Nuddi) road sanctioned as per Commissioner's No. 347, dated 22nd October 1884.

The masonry work of the culverts was completed, but the road having been submerged by the Ganges and Sone floods, no work was possible during the rainy season.

13. Village Roads.—All the village roads, including those under the Sudder and Branch Committees, respectively, were superficially repaired at a cost of Rs. 6,119-11-7.

14. Arboriculture.—1½ mile of the road in Buxar subdivision was planted with fruit trees protected by mud ghoranies at a cost of Rs. 413-5-2.

Over 130 miles of the principal roads of the district have been planted in recent years with valuable trees, and the protection of these absorbed all the funds available during the current year for arboriculture; the total expenditure during the year under this head was Rs. 5,604-4-2.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.

Establishment and Contingencies of the Office of Collection —

Amount as per budget	3,216	0	0
Amount spent	3,531	8	6
Excess over budget	315	8	6

The excess expenditure was incurred owing to the payment of Rs. 465-2-6 on account of pay of three extra mohuturs, at Rs. 20 each, appointed for writing certificates, sale proclamations, &c., as per Board's letter No. 118A, dated 20th February 1885, and Commissioner's endorsement No. 476, dated 4th March 1885, and has been met from the general savings of the budget grant.

Vice-Chairman, District Road Committee.

No. 167, dated Mozufferpore, the 9th December 1885.

From—T. NORMAN, Esq., Collector and Chairman, District Road Committee, Mozufferpore,

To—The Commissioner of the Patna Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith, in duplicate, the annual accounts of receipts and expenditure of the Road Cess Committee of Mozufferpore for the cess year 1884-85, ending on the 30th of September last, together with a short report on the working of the Committee and the administration of its funds.

2. Annual Accounts—The accounts were duly audited by the Audit Sub-Committee, and punctually submitted to the District Road Committee.

3. During the cess year under report there were 15 members on the Committee, consisting of officials, planters, and zemindars: of these there were seven officials, four planters, and four zemindars. Two of the planter members—Mr. Collingridge of Daudpore and Mr. Byng of Mia Chupra—ceased to be members of the Committee under the provisions of section 115 of the Cess Act during the year under report for absence from six consecutive meetings. I am glad to say that all the members took sufficient interest in discussing the questions that came before them, and displayed independence in doing so. * * * * No meeting had to be postponed for want of a quorum—a fact which speaks volumes in favour of the members. Ten meetings were held during the year under review, and the average attendance was 7·6. No new appointment of members was made during the year. Almost all non-official members helped the Committee by looking after the roads and taking charge of the repairs.

4. Income.—Out of a total demand of Rs. 1,46,630 on account of cess on lands, Rs. 107,717 were realized during the year on account of current demands, and Rs. 36,276 on account of arrears, together with Rs. 2,745 on account of interest and costs of collection. The percentage of collections on current demand was 73·5, and 86·4 on arrear demand. Till lately, the collection of the cesses was made under the certificate procedure, but during the year under report the system of collection under section 99, which was in existence for some time during Mr. Worsley's time, was revived since July last. A large amount of arrear and current demands was realized under this system, which might not otherwise have been realized.

The cost of collection of arrears under this system is realized at the rate of 8 per cent. from the defaulting cess payers, which goes to maintain a number of tehsildars and peons remunerated at the rate of 5 per cent on the collections made by them and Rs. 5 per month, respectively.

During the year under report the sanction of the Government for a general re-valuation was applied for and obtained accordingly. The actual introduction of the re-valuation is pending orders from Government on objections raised by the Landholders' Association on the score of the present time being inopportune, owing to the progress of the cadastral survey.

5. Expenditure.—The details of expenditure are shown in the annual accounts herewith appended.

6. With regard to the Committees' operations in connection with the improvement and maintenance of the district and village roads, the District Engineer reports as follows:—

Original works.—The following important works were carried out during the year under report:—

- (a). Improving the Kurlahiya Ghat road No. 4 from Mozufferpore towards Sitamarhi. By the improvement of this road the communication between the Tirhoot State Railway and the northern part of the district has been greatly facilitated. Out of an estimate of Rs. 77,038 Rs. 35,466 was expended during the year and Rs. 60,452 up to date, leaving a balance of Rs 16,586 which will be utilised in building the remaining bridges and culverts during the next cold weather.
- (b). Improving the Huzrut-Jandaha road No. 33 from Hajipur to Huzrut Jandaha in the Hajipur Subdivision. The materials for the construction of bridges and culverts were, as far as the funds at the disposal of the Hajipur Branch Committee permitted, collected during the year.
- (c). Constructing a timber bridge of 5 spans of 25 feet each over Berwa Mow on the Dhurbanga road No. 1. This bridge was completed satisfactorily during the year.
- (d). Constructing a timber bridge of 6 spans of 25 feet each over the Bya river at Mohwa on the Mohwa road No. 14 in the Hajipur Subdivision. This bridge was nearly completed during the year and is now open to traffic. The construction of it has greatly benefited the district, as several of the district roads converge to this place.
- (e). Metalling a portion of Lalgunge road No. 1 in the Hajipur Subdivision. The works left unfinished at the close of the previous year were satisfactorily completed during the year under report. The metalling of this portion of the road has given a stimulus to the traffic between Hajipur and Lalgunge, a large grain mart in the subdivision.
- (f). The construction of two feeder roads from the Ghurrhia road No. 8 in the Hajipur Subdivision to Bhagwanpur and Sarai stations of the Tirhoot State Railway. The materials for the necessary culverts were collected during the year. The construction of the roads will commence as soon as the land is acquired under the Act.

In addition to the above 10 minor bridges and culverts varying from 5 to 20 feet of water-way were constructed to the improvement of the drainage at their vicinity, and heavy portions and tops and approaches of bridges and culverts of some of the main roads were metalled.

Maintenance and Repairs.—The works undertaken during the year under this head chiefly consisted of surface repairs, filling in gaps caused by floods and guttering by rains, and repairs to metalled portions and to bridges and culverts. Out of 1,468 miles of roads in the Committee's list, the surface repairs of 1,322 miles were carried out through the agency of the Vice-Chairman of the Branch Committees of Hajipur and Sitamarhi, managers of indigo concerns and other resident gentlemen of the district, who displayed a keen interest in the satisfactory execution of the works entrusted to their care. The surface repairs of the remaining 146 miles and other repairs were under the direct charge of the District Engineer and executed in a satisfactory and workmanlike manner. The main roads throughout the district were maintained in fair repair, but the other roads, though repaired properly, were impassible during the rainy season as they are not sufficiently raised and bridged.

Arboriculture.—This operation was confined to the maintenance of the trees planted during the previous years. No new planting was taken in hand during the year under report, as the roads remaining to be planted are too narrow to admit of it.

7. The road No. 96, Bangaon road, was abandoned during the year as it was not of any importance.

8. Branch Committees.—The Hajipur Branch Committee, which is an independent Committee under sections 164 and 165 of the Cess Act, held nine meetings with an average attendance of five. The members took sufficient interest in the business of the Committee, as will appear from the annexed copy of their report. The 416 miles of roads of the subdivision were well kept and in a fair condition for heavy traffic, considering that they were subjected to a very severe test by the heavy rainfall. The Vice-Chairman of Sitamarhi speaks very unfavourably of the attendance of the members of the Committee and the want of interest taken by them in its working. He attributes their indifference to the nominal powers enjoyed by it.

9. Public Works Establishment.—Towards the close of the year, consequent on the transfer of Mr. J. D. Davies, District Engineer, to the Afghan Frontier by Government, a vacancy was caused in the office of the District Engineer. Under the provisions of the Cess Act, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor sent in a list of candidates for the office to the Committee out of which to make a selection. The matter having been laid before the meeting held on the 28th August 1885, Mr. G. W. Disney was appointed to the office on a monthly salary of Rs. 800. The Committee will be in a position to express an opinion on Mr. Disney's merits in next year's report.

10. Committee's Establishment.—The Committee's establishment continue to give complete satisfaction, as they have always done in times past. I have found them quite willing to work and working even during the holidays when required to do so. The office was twice inspected by me during the year under report, and after a thorough inspection I found the office registers, &c., in a satisfactory condition. This is very creditable to the Accountant, Baboo Ramjeebun Ghose, and his subordinates.

No. 37, dated Hajipur, the 10th November 1885.

From—H. W. H. CARNDUFF, Esq., Vice-Chairman, Branch Road Cess Committee, Hajipur.

To—The Collector and Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Mozufferpore.

WITH reference to your letter No. 59, dated the 5th instant, I have the honour to submit the following report of the operations of the Branch Road Cess Committee of the Hajipur sub-division for 1884-85.

2. The original works, such as construction of bridges and metalling of roads, the cost of which exceeded Rs. 300 and the surface repairs of roads costing Rs. 300 per mile and above, were directly under the District Engineer's supervision as in previous years: the remainder was directly under the overseer attached to the Branch Committee in charge of the subdivision, who was responsible, through the District Engineer, to the Committee.

3. The Collector of the district was Chairman of the Branch Committee, and the Subdivisional Officer Vice-Chairman. In addition to these there were eight non-official members and the Sub-Deputy Collector. But in the month of July 1885 two more non-official members were re-appointed, vide Government letter No. 1462T—F, dated 9th June 1885. The total number of members is now 13.

4. There were nine meetings of the Branch Committee held during the year, and the average attendance was five. A certain amount of inconvenience must of course be felt by those of the members who reside at some distance from head-quarters, and credit must be allowed them for having taken, on the whole, an active interest in the execution of the business of the Committee.

5. The total allotment for the subdivision from cess on lands was Rs. 37,530-8, in addition to which Rs. 675 were estimated as receipts for rent of serais and staging bungalow, and from other sources Rs. 6,600 were received as a proportionate balance due to the Hajipur subdivision. The total amount of receipts in the budget for 1884-85 was thus Rs. 44,805-8.

6. Expenses.—The amount of Rs. 1,041 was allotted towards the expenses of the district collection establishment, Rs. 707 towards that of the District Road Cess Committee's Office, and Rs. 564 towards that of the Branch Committee's Office at Hajipur. The sum of Rs. 582 was further allotted as the contribution towards the establishment of the accounts and control department. Rs. 100 for the pay of the Local Fund clerk attached to the Hajipur Sub-divisional Office, and Rs. 955 as the contribution towards the pay of Divisional Superintendent of Works. Rs. 22,604 were set apart for original works, and Rs. 12,113-8 for surface repairs. For Public Works establishment Rs. 5,246 were allotted; for tools and plant Rs. 415, for staging bungalow establishment Rs. 228; and in connection with the last a further sum of Rs. 250.

7. Of the amount allotted for surface repairs, about Rs. 9,845 were expended during the year, while out of the allotment for original works Rs. 19,083 were spent. A sum of about Rs. 5,789 remained unexpended, of which Rs. 1,642 were transferred for other works. From the allotment of Rs. 5,000, for the improvement of Huzrut-Jandaha road, about Rs. 1,642 were transferred to other heads in urgent cases of expenditure, and Rs. 3,358 was set apart for the collection of materials.

8. The chief original works carried out during the year were the following:—

	Rs.
(1)—Metalling a portion of Lalgunge road for	3,685
(2)—Ditto crossings on ditto for	425
(3)—Ditto tops of bridges on ditto for	424
(4)—Ditto a portion of Gurrhia road for	910
(5)—Constructing a timber bridge over the Bye on the Mohwa road for	6,988
(6)—Metalling portions of ditto for	1,361
(7)—Constructing bridges on Tajpore road for	503
(8)—Earthwork and bridging for the improvement of Huzrut-Jandaha road for	3,124
(9)—Constructing a railway feeder road at Bhagwanpore for	841
(10)—Ditto a serai feeder road for	563

9. The whole number of roads on the Road Cess list during the year was 42, and their aggregate length 416 miles. The portion of the Malwar road, which was formerly under the Malwar union, has been proposed by the Committee to be included in the list of roads owing to the recent abolition of that union; it has also been recommended that the road from Pokhrera to Hajipur, via Pochai, Bhalooi, Rajapaker, and Langah be also included, and its improvement estimated for in the budget for 1886-87. The same proposition has been made with respect to the road from Rassi to Bhagwanpore station, and the District Engineer has been requested to prepare an estimate for its improvement. Of the 416 miles of roads, 259 miles are class II roads and bridged to make them passable at all times of the year, and the remaining 157 belong to class IV. Most of the roads were in a fair condition for heavy traffic, considering that they were subjected to a very severe test by the heavy rainfall: 211 miles of road were under the supervision of private gentlemen, and the system of repairs by them has been found to work very satisfactorily.

10. The improvements which were commenced during the preceding year have been progressing steadily. The first eight miles of the Lalgunge road are now metalled, and the bridges thoroughly overhauled. The road promises to be an admirable one. Extensive repairs to bridges have been caused into on all the important roads, and some more of the Mohwa road has been metalled. The latter road is a very important one, and is now very presentable.

11. Nothing has been done towards the planting of trees, the idea having very justly been condemned by the District Committee. Those that already exist have been kept up, a sum of Rs. 476 having been thereby expended. Even this is, I think, doing too much. The trees in many places are an absolute nuisance, and the tar trees especially which have been planted on the Gurrhia road will undoubtedly prove to be a source of actual danger. The trees on the Mohwa road are open to less objection because they are in most places well removed from the roadway itself, and while they considerably add to appearance, they cause no inconvenience or damage.

MOZUFFERPORE TREASURY,
The 9th December 1885.

Treasury Officer.

No. 92, dated Durbhunga, the 12th December 1885.

From—The Chairman, District Road Committee, Durbhunga,
To—The Commissioner of the Patna Division.

As required under section 179 of Act IX (B.C.) of 1880, I have the honour to submit the following report on the operations of the District Road Department of this district during the last cess year (1884-85).

District Committee.—The total number of members on the list was 25.

One member died during the year, and another left the country for Europe. Of the rest, three did not attend any meeting at all.

In comparison with the previous years, there was no improvement in the attendance of the members, though in spite of this I am glad to report that some of the members, especially Europeans, took great interest in the Committee's work and helped the Committee as usual by undertaking the repairs of both district and village roads. During the year the names of certain European gentlemen were sent up for appointment as new and additional members, with a view to strengthen the Committee, but the proposal was not favourably entertained by the Commissioner, in view, I think, of the introduction of the scheme of Local Self-Government.

Branch Committees.—There are two Branch Committees in the two subdivisions of the district, viz., Madhubani and Tajpur; but these Branch Committees existed only in name during the last year, and proved to be utter failures as deliberative bodies. In one of them, viz. Madhubani, only one meeting was held throughout the year, while in the other not even a single meeting was held. The status of these Committees cannot be improved unless they are thoroughly reconstituted. But this can only be done when the new Local Self-Government scheme comes into force.

The work of these Branch Committees, which chiefly consists of carrying out the repairs of village roads in their respective jurisdictions, however, did not suffer in any way during the year under report. The work was done very energetically by the two Sub-divisional Officers concerned, with the assistance of several European Planters, who are always ready to render material help in the matter of road repairs.

Income.—The principal item of income of the Committee was the Road Cess.

The total demand of the cess according to the revaluations completed during the year before was Rs. 2,12,605, and the budget of the year was originally framed according to it; but afterwards the Government having refused to sanction the revaluations with retrospective effect from the year 1883-84, a sum of Rs. 42,000, which had already been realized from the parties during that year, had to be treated as advance and deducted from the income of the year under report. The budget had to be revised accordingly.

The year commenced with an arrear balance of Rs. 44,168, and as the demand of the year was Rs. 1,94,340, the total realizable demand of the year was Rs. 2,38,508. Of this, Rs. 1,98,448 were collected during the year, and Rs. 2,095 remitted, leaving an unrealized balance of Rs. 37,965 at the end of the year. The percentages of the collections and the arrears were 83 and 15, as compared to 77 and 21 of the previous year, respectively.

Expenditure.—The details of the expenditure under the several heads will appear from the annual accounts submitted herewith. I beg, however, to make the following remarks on some of them.

Original Works.—The following works of a permanent nature were executed during the year :—

1. Metalling of roads with jhama and kuner	...	6½ miles.
2. New culverts	...	4
3. Arching over large old culverts	...	26
4. Remodelling of roads	...	9 miles.
5. Abutments built to one large iron bridge on the North Emigration road

Besides the above, the work of providing three very important second class roads, viz., Kumtowl to Pupree, Sakri to Gopalpore Ghât, and Hatti to Moserah, with permanent masonry bridges, was also taken in hand in the beginning of the year, a total sum of Rs. 50,000 being provided for them in the budget; but before sufficient progress had been made with the works, they had to be stopped owing to the income of the year having been reduced by Rs. 42,000 as explained above. A considerable quantity of materials have, however, been already procured for the works, and due provision for them has been made in the budget of the current year.

Under the head "Original works," I may also mention here that the large iron bridge at Burna on the road Tappur to Jandaha, which was in course of construction for the last two or three years, was completed during the year.

Repairs.—Of the 640 miles of district roads, about 150 miles were repaired through the agency of planters. All heavy earthwork and bridge repairs were, however, executed by the District Engineer himself through contractors. The heavy repairs consisted chiefly of the mending of flood damages, and the annual repairs on roads and bridges, but besides this, some more substantial work was done in the way of arching over 53 old and temporary bridges, and converting them into permanent ones.

The state of the roads is on the whole as bad as it can well be. In this respect the Committee have had good reason to find serious fault with their District Engineer, who worked in an unsystematic and therefore expensive manner, and without securing any real benefit by the expenditure he incurred.

VILLAGE ROADS.

Sudder Subdivision.—Much useful work was done under this head during the year. Besides the usual repairs of roads throughout the subdivision, carried out chiefly through the agency of the planters, a sum of about Rs. 3,000 was spent for opening out roads and tracts in the eastern portion of the subdivision with a view to afford relief to the people who had been suffering from drought, owing to the deficient rainfall of the previous year. These works were done very satisfactorily, and they really proved to be a source of great relief to the people for whom they were intended.

Subdivisions.—The work of repairing village roads in the subdivisions was also done satisfactorily. I beg to annex extracts from the reports received from them.

Mr. Reily, the Subdivisional Officer of Madhubani, states—"I have to add that the Road Cess money has been expended and the work done on the same principle as last year as far as practicable, that is, the construction of pucca culverts in sites where such seemed necessary, and replacing old timber bridges by pucca culverts, or by pucca abutments and centre pucca wall with Jamoon wood platform. It is more sensible and practically more useful to have a rough and indifferent road bridged throughout than to have properly repaired and smooth roads, but unbridged. In the former case the road would be of use the whole year round, while in the latter case, it would only be of use when the water had subsided and the necessity for a bridge did not exist."

Mr. Earle, the Subdivisional Officer of Tajpur, writes—"The allotments for village roads during the year was Rs. 5,000, and besides this an additional amount of Rs. 1,000 was sanctioned. The whole amount was expended during the year, leaving a surplus expenditure of about Rs. 1,500, which still remains unpaid. I may here remark that a large sum was expended on account of the metalling of the Tajpur bazar road and the opening of a new road from Poosa to Samastipore and erection of pucca bridges on that road. The ordinary rate allowed was Rs. 15 per mile, and also further allowance was made for roads which were in very bad condition. In some cases where the repairs were considered petty, lower rates than the ordinary rates were allowed. Some new pucca bridges were constructed during the year, which undoubtedly rendered the roads much more serviceable."

The annual accounts are submitted herewith. They have been duly audited by a Sub-Committee, as required under section 179 of the Act.

Dated Chupra, the 1st December 1885.

From—BAROO RAM ANUGRA NARAIN SINGH, Vice-Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Sarun,

To—The Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Sarun.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith a detailed account of receipts and expenditure of the Sarun District Road Fund for the cess year 1884-85.

2. With the exception of the works noted in the explanatory sheet, all other works provided for in the budget were completed.

3. All original works and repairs on the Sewan subdivision were executed by the Sewan Branch committee and those in the Gopalgunge subdivision, excepting original works on the main roads were executed by the Gopalgunge Branch committee.

4. Due attention was paid to the repairs of important village roads, and the works were carried out by the managers of factories and native zemindars.

5. The kutchra roads were not in as good order as could be wished, hence the Committee have arranged with the planter gentlemen for the supervision of road repairs during the cess year 1885-86.

6. During the year under review there were about 2 miles of road in Chupra subdivision, 22 miles of road in Gopalgunge subdivision, and 4 miles of road in Sewan subdivision planted with fruit-bearing trees, and all the trees were properly taken care of and maintained.

7. No heavy damages were done to any of the district roads or bridges thereon by the flood of the last year, except that portions of 46th, 47th, and 52nd miles of the Chupra-Goothny road were encroached upon by the Gogra and one plank-topped bridge on the 17th mile of the Sewan-Sallempore road gave way.

8. The establishment under the District Committee, as well as the staff under the District Engineer, worked satisfactorily.

No. 6.—Part II.

R. H. N. SING,

Vice-Chairman.

No. 175, dated Motihari, the 26th January 1886.

From—C. F. WORSLEY, Esq., Collector and Chairman, Chumparun,
To—The Commissioner of the Patna Division.

WITH reference to the circular, No. 973A of the 14th September 1880, forwarded with your No. 283J.Cir. of the 25th September 1880, I have the honour to submit the annual accounts and report of the District Road Fund for the cess year 1884-85.

The balance left unrealized on the last day of the cess year is Rs. 15,402. This unusually large balance in the unrealized demand is mainly owing to the introduction of the new procedure in the working of the Certificate Act, concerning which some correspondence between the Collector of the district and you has passed, which has resulted in a modification of the original orders issued. There were six meetings of the Sudder District Road Cess and two of the Branch Committee held during the year.

During the year under review two bridges have been constructed—one over 150 feet in length, over Imirti Nuddee on the Motihari Dhaka road; and the other, 45 feet in length at Fatooha on Turkaulia to Sungramapore road.

Seven hundred and fifteen and a half miles of road have been repaired and kept in good order; also, about 102 miles of village roads with their cart leeks have been repaired; and apart from the bridges noted above, 30 bridges have also been repaired and rebuilt.

Fifteen thousand four hundred and eighty trees have been planted along the sides of the different roads to demarcate the boundary of the district roads.

There is a Branch Committee at Bettiah in this district, and an allotment for expenditure in village roads is placed to the credit of the Chairman, Branch Road Cess Committee. Allotment for the year under report was Rs. 3,500.

The different establishments worked satisfactorily during the year.

No. 6. Part II.

CHUMPARUN DISTRICT ROAD FUND.

Form of Audit Certificate.

WE hereby certify that the books and accounts specified below, prescribed for the Road Cess office and for the office of the District Engineer, are duly kept up, and that they have been posted for the year 1884-85, and have been duly scrutinized by the Sub-Committee.

Also that the Treasury officer's abstract of the account of the Committee for the year has been duly received, checked with the cash and pass-books, and found to agree therewith (except in respect of uncashed cheques, which are above enumerated and have been duly noted in the cash-book).

That the vouchers for the payments of the year have been cancelled.

That all necessary steps have been taken for the recovery or adjustment of outstanding advances.

That none but duly sanctioned expenditure has been incurred, and that, in the case of original works, the register of monthly expenditure shows clearly the amount of sanctioned estimate, the grant for the year, and the expenditure on each work to end of the year.

And generally that the work of the office has been performed with carefulness and regularity, and with due observance of the rules prescribed by Government.

E. BOVILL,
Vice-Chairman.

No. 180G, dated Bankipore, the 12th March 1886.

From,—F. M. HALLIDAY, Esq., Commissioner of the Patna Division,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

I HAVE the honour to forward herewith in original the annual accounts and reports of the several District Road Committees in this division for the cess year 1884-85.

2. The receipts in the whole division during the year amounted to Rs. 16,42,108, inclusive of Rs. 1,83,464 (the balance of the previous year), and Rs. 2,72,903 the receipts under the head "Advances" and "Deposits."

The expenditure of the year amounted to Rs. 14,06,511-5-2 as shown below:—

Items.	Amount.
	Rs.	A.	P.
1. Original works	4,85,184	1	9
2. Repairs	3,59,299	15	11
3. Establishment	1,94,179	5	0
Ditto Contribution towards the cost of establishment of Divisional Superintendent of Works ...	25,789	5	5
4. Tools and plant	26,992	11	3
5. Staging bungalows, &c.	9,498	9	5
6. Stationery and printing	5,585	3	2
7. Refunds of cess and other receipts	4,302	12	7
8. Toll and ferries	1,738	5	10
9. Miscellaneous	1,731	11	0
10. Advance and deposits	2,92,209	13	10
Total	14,06,511	15	2

3. The expenditure on original works during the year exceeded that of the previous year by Rs. 1,04,752, and averaged about 40 per cent. of the aggregate net receipts of the Committees. But in the case of repair works the expenditure fell short of the estimate of the year by Rs. 95,376—nearly all the districts having failed to work to the full amount of their estimates, notably so the Gya district—where out of an estimate of Rs. 61,754, only Rs. 33,420 or about 53 per cent. was utilized.

4. The aggregate cost of establishment in the whole division, exclusive of that of the establishment of the Divisional Superintendent of Works, was Rs. 1,94,179-5 against Rs. 2,07,579 of the previous year, and equalled nearly 16 per cent. of the net receipts of the year.

There were some changes in the personnel of the executive staff in the districts of Sarun and Mozufferpore during the year—Messrs. J. Ellis and G. W. Disney being appointed District Engineers in the places of Messrs. G. St. Nixon and J. Davis respectively.

5. The improvement of village communication continues to receive a fair share of attention, but with one or two exceptions the District Road Cess Committees do not appear to attach so much importance to the maintenance and conservation of the cart tracks on the sides of the main roads as the subject requires. The result is that petty encroachments are constantly being made by the cultivators, and unless this practice is promptly and stringently guarded against, the width of the present district communications will be soon reduced to an impracticable working limit.

In the Sarun district much has been done to remedy the evil complained of, but generally speaking sufficient care is not exercised in this direction.

6. The working of some of the Branch Road Committees has not proved satisfactory. It is not, however, contemplated to make any change in the personnel of the committees—pending the introduction of the new Local Self-Government Act.

7. Champaran	1,389	5	8
8. Hajipur Branch Committee with independent powers ...	668	1	0
Total	19,526	6	6

7. The cost of the establishment of the Divisional Superintendent of Works during the year was Rs. 19,526-6-6, and was distributed proportionately among the several committees in the division as shown in the margin.

8. The supervision and control of the large expenditure in this extensive division, and of the important works under construction, have been, as usual, very ably carried out by Mr. Joll, the Divisional Superintendent of Road Cess Works.

A Bill to Amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and consolidate the law relating to bankruptcy and insolvency; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

Short title, extent and commencement.

- 1. (1) This Act may be cited as the Indian Bankruptcy Act, 1886.

(2) It shall extend to the whole of British India, and shall apply to all British subjects of Her Majesty within the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her Majesty, whether in the service of the Government of India or otherwise, and to all Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty in any place beyond the limits of British India.

(3) It shall, except as by this section otherwise provided, come into force on such date as the Governor-General in Council may, by notification in the official Gazette, fix in this behalf, which date is in this Act referred to as the commencement of this Act.

(4) Any power conferred by this Act to make rules may be exercised at any time after the passing of this Act; but a rule so made shall not take effect till the commencement of this Act.

PART I.

PROCEEDINGS FROM ACT OF BANKRUPTCY TO DISCHARGE.

Acts of Bankruptcy.

- 2. (1) A debtor commits an act of bankruptcy in each of the following cases:—

- (a) if in British India or elsewhere he makes a conveyance or assignment of his property to a trustee or trustees for the benefit of his creditors generally;
- (b) if in British India or elsewhere he makes a fraudulent conveyance, gift, delivery or transfer of his property, or of any part thereof;
- (c) if in British India or elsewhere he makes any conveyance or transfer of his property or any part thereof, or creates any charge thereon, which would, under this or any other enactment for the time being in force, be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged bankrupt;
- (d) if with intent to defeat or delay his creditors he does any of the following things, namely, departs out of British India, or, being out of British India, remains out of British India, or departs from his dwelling-house, or otherwise absents himself, or begins to keep house, or closes his place of business, or suffers himself to be arrested or taken in execution for a debt not due, or submits collusively or fraudulently to an adverse decree, or procures himself, or his property, moveable or immovable, to be attached or taken in execution;

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1886.(Part I.—Proceedings from Act of Bankruptcy to Discharge.—Sections 3-6.)

- (e) if he files in the Court a declaration of his inability to pay his debts or presents a bankruptcy petition against himself;
- (f) if he gives notice that he has suspended, or that he is about to suspend, payment of his debts;
- (g) if he makes to any of his creditors an offer of a composition in satisfaction of any of his debts, or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs;
- (h) if he is imprisoned in execution of a decree or order of a Civil Court for a longer period than twenty-one days for making default in payment of a sum of money.

Receiving Order.

3. Subject to the conditions specified in this Act, if a debtor has committed an act of bankruptcy, the Court may, on a bankruptcy petition being presented either by a creditor or by the debtor, make an order, in this Act called a receiving order, for the protection of the estate.

Jurisdiction to make receiving order.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 6 (1), dictum. clause (d).]

4. (1) The Court shall not have jurisdiction to make a receiving order unless—
- (a) the debtor is, at the time of the presentation of the bankruptcy petition, in prison within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, under an order of a Civil Court, for making default in payment of a sum of money; or
 - (b) the debtor, or, if he is a member of a firm, his partner or one of his partners, has, within a year before the date of the presentation of the bankruptcy petition, ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business within those limits:

Provided as follows:—

- (i) in any case where an application for declaring a debtor insolvent has been made under section 344 of the Code of Civil Procedure to any Court subordinate to the Court, and the Court is of opinion that the proceedings may be more advantageously conducted before itself and under this Act, the Court, on the application of the debtor or of any of his creditors, or of its own motion, may withdraw the proceedings from the subordinate Court, if competent so to do under its Letters Patent or section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and may then make a receiving order under this Act in supersession of all or any of the proceedings which may have been previously taken under the said Code:

- (ii) the Court may in any prescribed class of cases make a receiving order on a bankruptcy petition notwithstanding the restrictions imposed by clauses (a) and (b) of this sub-section.

(2) The application of the provisions of this Act to a case withdrawn under proviso (i) to sub-section (1) shall be subject to such modifications, if any, of those provisions as may be prescribed.

5. (1) A creditor shall not be entitled to present a bankruptcy petition against a debtor unless—

- (a) the debt owing by the debtor to the petitioning creditor, or, if two or more creditors join in the petition, the aggregate amount of debts owing to the several petitioning creditors, amounts to five hundred rupees; and
- (b) the debt is a liquidated sum, payable either immediately or at some certain future time; and
- (c) the act of bankruptcy on which the petition is grounded has occurred within three months before the presentation of the petition.

(2) If the petitioning creditor is a secured creditor, he must in his petition either state that he is willing to give up his security for the benefit of the creditors in the event of the debtor being adjudged bankrupt, or give an estimate of the value of his security. In the latter case he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him, after deducting the value so estimated, in the same manner as if he were an unsecured creditor.

6. (1) A creditor's petition shall be verified by affidavit of the creditor, or of some person on his behalf having knowledge of the facts, and be served in the prescribed manner.

(2) At the hearing the Court shall require proof of—

- (a) the debt of the petitioning creditor,
- (b) the act of bankruptcy, or, if more than one act of bankruptcy is alleged in the petition, some one of the alleged acts of bankruptcy, and,
- (c) if the debtor does not appear, the service of the petition; and, if satisfied with the proof, may make a receiving order in pursuance of the petition.

(3) If the Court is not satisfied with the proof of the petitioning creditor's debt, or of the act of bankruptcy, or of the service of the petition, or is satisfied by the debtor that he is able to pay his debts, or that for other sufficient cause no order ought to be made, the Court may dismiss the petition.

(4) Where the debtor appears on the petition, and denies that he is indebted to the petitioner, or that he is indebted to such an amount as would justify the petitioner in presenting a petition against him, the Court, on such security (if any) being given as the Court may require for payment to the petitioner of any debt which may be established against the debtor in due course of law, and of the costs of establishing the debt, may, instead of dismissing the petition, stay all proceedings on the petition for such time as may be required for trial of the question relating to the debt.

(5) Where proceedings are stayed, the Court may, if by reason of the delay caused by the stay of proceedings or for any other cause it thinks just, make a receiving order on the petition of some other creditor, and shall thereupon dismiss,

(2) But this section shall not affect the power of any secured creditor to realize or otherwise deal with his security in the same manner as he would have been entitled to realize or deal with it if this section had not been passed.

c. 52, s. 10.]

9. (1) The Court may, if it is shown to be necessary for the protection of the estate, at any time after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition and before a receiving order is made, appoint the official assignee to be interim receiver of the property of the debtor, or of any part thereof, and direct him to take immediate possession thereof or of any part thereof.

(2) The Court may at any time after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition stay any suit or other legal proceeding pending before any Judge or Judges of the Court or in any other Court in British India against the property or person of the debtor, and any Court in which proceedings are pending against a debtor may, on proof that a bankruptcy petition has been presented by or against the debtor, either stay the proceedings or allow them to continue on such terms as it may think just.

c. 52, s. 11.]

10. Where the Court makes an order staying any suit or other legal proceeding, or staying proceedings generally, the order may be served by sending a copy thereof, under the seal of the Court, by prepaid letter addressed to the Court before which the proceeding is pending and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866.

[XIV of 1866.]

c. 52, s. 12.]

11. (1) If in any case the official assignee, having regard to the nature of the debtor's estate or business or to the interests of the creditors generally, is of opinion that a special manager of the estate or business other than the official assignee ought to be appointed, he may appoint a manager thereof accordingly to act until the property vests in the official assignee, or, if a special assignee is appointed as hereinafter provided, until that appointment takes effect, and to have such powers of the official assignee himself as may be entrusted to him by the official assignee.

(2) The debtor may be appointed special manager.

(3) The special manager shall give security and furnish accounts in such manner as the official assignee, subject to the control of the Court, may direct, and shall receive such remuneration as the official assignee may, within limits prescribed and subject to that control, determine.

12. Notice of every receiving order, stating the name, address and description of the debtor, the date of the order, the Court by which the order is made and the date of the petition, shall be published in the prescribed manner.

13. If in any case where a receiving order has been made on a bankruptcy petition it appears to the Court by which the order was made, upon an application by the official assignee, or by any creditor or other person interested, that by reason of the residence of the majority of the creditors in number or value, or the situation of the property of the debtor, in some part of British India or of Her Majesty's dominions elsewhere, beyond the limits within which the Court ordinarily exercises civil jurisdiction, or from any other cause, his estate and effects ought to be administered by some other Court having jurisdiction under this Act or under the Bankruptcy or Insolvent Laws of some other part of Her Majesty's dominions, the Court, after such enquiry as to it may seem fit, may rescind the receiving order and stay all proceedings on, or dismiss, the petition, upon such terms, if any, as the Court may think fit.

Proceedings consequent on Order.

14. (1) When a receiving order is made against a debtor, he shall prepare a statement of his affairs, and submit to the official assignee a statement of and in relation to his affairs in the prescribed form, verified by affidavit, and showing the particulars of the debtor's assets, debts and liabilities, the names, residences and occupations of his creditors, the securities held by them respectively, the dates when the securities were respectively given, and such further or other information as may be prescribed or as the official assignee may require.

(2) The statement shall be so submitted within the following times, namely:—

- (i) if the order is made on the petition of the debtor, within seven days from the date of the order;
- (ii) if the order is made on the petition of a creditor, within fourteen days from the date of the order.

But the Court may, in either case, for special reasons, extend the time.

(3) If the debtor fails to comply with the requirements of this section, the official assignee may, at the expense of the estate, cause a statement of affairs to be prepared in manner prescribed, and, if the default of the debtor was in the opinion of the Court without reasonable excuse, the Court may, on the application of the official assignee, or of any creditor, adjudge him bankrupt.

(4) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor of the bankrupt may, personally or by agent, inspect the statement prepared under sub-section (1) or sub-section (5) at all reasonable times, and take any copy thereof or extract therefrom; but any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor shall be punished, on the complaint of the official assignee, with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine, or with both.

[New, cf. 46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 15.]

15. The debtor may within the time limited for the submission of the statement of his affairs, or with the permission of the Court, at any time before he has been adjudged bankrupt, submit to the official assignee a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of the debts due to his creditors or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs.

Public Examination of Debtor.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 17.]

16. (1) Where the Court makes a receiving order it shall hold a public sitting, on a day to be appointed by the Court, for the examination of the debtor, and the debtor shall attend thereat, and shall be examined as to his conduct, dealings and property.

(2) The examination shall be held as soon as conveniently may be after the expiration of the time for the submission of the debtor's statement of affairs.

(3) The Court may adjourn the examination from time to time.

(4) Any creditor who has tendered a proof, or a legal practitioner authorised by him in this behalf, may question the debtor concerning his affairs and the causes of his failure.

(5) The official assignee shall take part in the examination, and for the purpose thereof may, subject to such directions as may be given by the Court, employ a legal practitioner.

(6) The Court may put such questions to the debtor as it may think expedient.

(7) The debtor shall be examined upon oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him.

(8) Such notes of the examination as the Court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing, and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor at all reasonable times.

(9) When the Court is of opinion that the affairs of the debtor have been sufficiently investigated, it shall, by order, declare that his examination is concluded, but that order shall not preclude the Court from directing a further examination of the debtor as to his conduct, dealings or property whenever it may see fit to do so.

Composition or Scheme of Arrangement.

[New, cf. 46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 15.]

17. (1) Where a debtor has submitted a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of the debts due to his creditors or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs, the official assignee shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, communicate the proposal in manner prescribed to each creditor mentioned in the debtor's statement of affairs and either summon him to attend a meeting to be held for the consideration of the proposal, or cause a notice to be served on him in manner prescribed requiring him, within a time to be specified in the notice, to notify in writing to the official assignee whether or not he accepts the proposal.

(2) The Court may at any time direct, and one-fourth in value of the creditors mentioned in the debtor's statement of affairs may, within the time specified in the notice served under sub-section (1), by requisition in writing, require, that a meeting of the creditors shall be held for the consideration of the proposal.

(3) With respect to the summoning of and proceedings at a meeting convened under this section, or any subsequent meeting of creditors, the rules in the first schedule shall be observed.

(4) Where the official assignee issues a notice under sub-section (1), requiring a creditor to notify whether or not he accepts a proposal, he shall send with the notice a summary of the debtor's statement of affairs, including the causes of his failure, and any observations thereon which the official assignee may think fit to make.

18. (1) The composition or scheme proposed by the debtor shall not be deemed to be accepted by the creditors unless—

(a) where a meeting has been convened under the last foregoing section, the creditors who have proved resolve, by special resolution passed at that meeting or an adjournment thereof, that the proposal shall be accepted, or,

(b) where a meeting has not been convened under that section, a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors who have proved notify in writing to the official assignee their acceptance of the proposal.

(2) The composition or scheme shall not be binding on the creditors unless, after its acceptance by them, it is approved by the Court.

(3) The debtor or the official assignee may, after the conclusion of the public examination of the debtor, apply to the Court to approve any composition or scheme which has been accepted by the creditors, and notice of the time appointed for hearing the application shall be given to each creditor who has proved.

(4) The Court shall, before approving a composition or scheme, hear a report of the official assignee as to the terms of the composition or scheme and as to the conduct of the debtor, and any objections which may be made by or on behalf of any creditor.

(5) If the Court is of opinion that the terms of the composition or scheme are not reasonable, or are not calculated to benefit the general body of creditors, or in any case in which the Court is required under this Act where the debtor is adjudged bankrupt to refuse his discharge, the Court shall, or if any such facts are proved as would under this Act justify the Court in refusing, qualifying or suspending the debtor's discharge, the Court may in its discretion, refuse to approve the composition or scheme.

(6) If the Court approves the composition or scheme, the approval shall be testified in the prescribed manner.

(7) A composition or scheme accepted and approved in pursuance of this section shall be binding on all the creditors so far as relates to any debts due to them from the debtor and provable in bankruptcy.

(8) A certificate of the official assignee that a composition or scheme has been duly accepted and approved shall, in the absence of fraud, be conclusive as to its validity.

(9) The provisions of a composition or scheme under this section may be enforced by the Court on application by any person interested, and an order of the Court made on the application may be executed as if it were a decree.

(10) If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court, on satisfactory evidence, that the composition or scheme cannot, in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, proceed without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or to the debtor, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on application by any creditor, adjudge the debtor bankrupt, and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made or thing duly done under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt under this subsection, any debt provable in other respects, which has been contracted before the date of the adjudication, shall be provable in the bankruptcy.

(11) If, under or in pursuance of a composition or scheme, the official assignee or a special assignee is appointed to administer the debtor's property or manage his business, Part IV or Part V of this Act, as the case may be, and such other portions of the Act as may be prescribed, shall apply to the assignee as if he were an assignee in a bankruptcy, and as if the terms "bankruptcy," "bankrupt" and "order of adjudication" included respectively a composition or scheme of arrangement, a compounding or arranging debtor and an order approving the composition or scheme.

(12) Part III of this Act shall, so far as the nature of the case and the terms of the composition or scheme admit, apply thereto, the same interpretation being given to the words "assignee," "bankruptcy," "bankrupt" and "order of adjudication" as in the last preceding sub-section.

(13) A composition or scheme shall not be approved by the Court unless it provides for the payment in priority to other debts of all debts directed to be so paid in the distribution of the property of a bankrupt.

(14) The acceptance by a creditor of a composition or scheme shall not release any person who under this Act would not be released by an order of discharge if the debtor had been adjudged bankrupt.

19. Notwithstanding the acceptance and approval of a composition or scheme, the composition or scheme shall not be binding on any creditor so far as regards a debt or liability from which, under the provisions of this Act, the debtor would not be discharged by an order of discharge in bankruptcy, unless the creditor assents to the composition or scheme.

Adjudication of Bankruptcy.

20. (1) At the time of making a receiving order, or at any time thereafter, the Court may, on the application of the debtor himself, adjudge him bankrupt. The application may be made orally and without notice.

(2) Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, then, if a composition or scheme is not accepted and approved in pursuance of this Act within fourteen days after the conclusion of the examination of the debtor or such further time as the Court may allow, the Court shall adjudge the debtor bankrupt.

(3) When a debtor is adjudged bankrupt his property shall become divisible among his creditors and shall vest in the official assignee.

(4) Notice of every order adjudging a debtor bankrupt, stating the name, address and description of the bankrupt, the date of the adjudication and the Court by which the adjudication is made, shall be published in the prescribed manner, and the date of the order shall, for the purposes of this Act, be the date of the adjudication.

21. (1) Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt the creditors may, if they think fit, at any time after the adjudication, by special resolution, resolve to entertain a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of the debts due to them under the bankruptcy, or for a scheme of arrangement of the bankrupt's affairs; and thereupon the same proceedings shall be taken and the same consequences shall ensue as in the case of a composition or scheme accepted before adjudication.

(2) If the Court approves the composition or scheme, it may make an order annulling the bankruptcy and vesting the property of the bankrupt in him or in such other person as the Court may appoint, on such terms, and subject to such conditions, if any, as the Court may declare.

(3) If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court that the composition or scheme cannot proceed without injustice or undue delay, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on application by any person interested, adjudge the debtor bankrupt, and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made, or thing duly done, under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt under this subsection, all debts, provable in other respects, which have been contracted before the date of such adjudication shall be provable in the bankruptcy.

Control over Person and Property of Debtor.

22. (1) Every debtor against whom a receiving order is made shall, unless prevented by sickness or other sufficient cause, attend any meeting of his creditors which the official assignee may require him to attend, and shall submit to such examination and give such information as the meeting may require.

[See ss. 23 and 24 of this Bill.]

Limitation of effect of composition or scheme.

proval of a composition or scheme, the composition or scheme shall not be binding

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1886.(Part I.—Proceedings from Act of Bankruptcy to Discharge.—Sections 23-26.)

(2) He shall give such inventory of his property, such list of his creditors and debtors, and of the debts due to and from them respectively, submit to such examination in respect of his property or his creditors, wait at such times and places on the official assignee or special manager, execute such powers-of-attorney, conveyances, deeds and instruments, and generally do all such acts and things in relation to his property and the distribution of the proceeds amongst his creditors, as may be reasonably required by the official assignee or special manager or may be prescribed by general rules, or be directed by the Court by any special order or orders made in reference to any particular case, or made on the occasion of any special application by the official assignee or special manager, or any creditor or person interested.

(3) He shall, if adjudged bankrupt, aid, to the utmost of his power, in the realization of his property and the distribution of the proceeds among his creditors.

(4) If a debtor wilfully fails to perform the duties imposed on him by this section, or to deliver up possession of any part of his property which is divisible amongst his creditors under this Act, and which is for the time being in his possession or under his control, to the official assignee or to any person authorised by the Court to take possession of it, he shall, in addition to any other punishment to which he may be subject, be guilty of a contempt of Court, and may be punished accordingly.

c. 52, s. 25.] 23. (1) The Court may, by warrant addressed to any police-officer or prescribed officer of the Court, cause a debtor to be arrested, and any books, papers, money and goods in his possession to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept as prescribed until such time as the Court may order, under the following circumstances:—

(a) if, after presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him, it appears to the Court that there is probable reason for believing that he has absconded or is about to abscond with a view of avoiding service of a bankruptcy petition or of avoiding appearance to any such petition, or of avoiding examination in respect of his affairs, or of otherwise avoiding, delaying or embarrassing proceedings in bankruptcy against him;

(b) if, after presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him, it appears to the Court that there is probable reason for believing that he is about to remove his property with a view of preventing or delaying possession being taken of it by the official assignee, or that there is probable reason for believing that he has concealed or is about to conceal or destroy any of his property or any books, documents or writings which might be of use to his creditors in the course of his bankruptcy;

(c) if, after service of a bankruptcy petition on him, or after a receiving order is made against him, he removes any property in his possession above the value of fifty rupees without the leave of the official assignee;

(d) if, without good cause shown, he fails to attend any examination ordered by the Court.

(2) No payment or composition made or security given after arrest made under this section shall be exempt from the provisions of this Act relating to fraudulent preferences.

24. Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, the Court, on the application of the official assignee, may, from time to time, order that for such time, not exceeding three months, as the Court thinks fit, post letters and telegrams addressed to the debtor at any place or places mentioned in the order for re-direction shall be re-directed, sent or delivered by the Postal and Telegraph authorities in British India to the official assignee, or otherwise as the Court directs; and the same shall be done accordingly.

25. (1) The Court may, on the application of the official assignee, or of any creditor who has proved his debt, at any time after a receiving order has been made against a debtor, summon before it the debtor or any person known or suspected to have in his possession any property belonging to the debtor, or supposed to be indebted to the debtor, or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information respecting the debtor, his dealings or property; and the Court may require any such person to produce any documents in his custody or power relating to the debtor, his dealings or property.

(2) If a person so summoned, after having been tendered a reasonable sum, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, or refuses to produce any such document, having no lawful impediment made known to the Court at the time of its sitting and allowed by it, the Court may, by warrant, cause him to be apprehended and brought up for examination.

(3) The Court may examine on oath, either by word of mouth or by written interrogatories, any person so brought before it concerning the debtor, his dealings or property.

(4) If on the examination of any such person it appears to the Court that he is indebted to the debtor, the Court may, on the application of the official assignee, order him to pay to the official assignee, at such time and in such manner as to the Court seems expedient, the amount in which he is indebted, or any part thereof, either in full discharge of the whole amount or not, as the Court thinks fit, with or without costs of the examination.

(5) If on the examination of any such person it appears to the Court that he has in his possession any property belonging to the debtor, the Court may, on the application of the official assignee, order him to deliver to the official assignee that property, or any part thereof, at such time, in such manner and on such terms as to the Court may seem just.

Discharge of Bankrupt.

26. (1) A bankrupt may, at any time after being adjudged bankrupt, apply to the Court for an order of discharge, and the Court shall appoint a day for hearing the application, but the application shall not be heard until the public examination of the bankrupt is concluded. The application shall be heard in open Court.

(2) On the hearing of the application the Court shall take into consideration a report of the official assignee as to the bankrupt's conduct and affairs, and may either grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge, or suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the bankrupt, or with respect to his after-acquired property:

[11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, ss. 50 & 51.] Provided that the Court shall refuse the discharge in all cases where the bankrupt has committed any offence under this Act, or under section 421, 422, 423 or 424 of the Indian Penal Code or any amendment thereof, and shall, on proof of any of the facts hereinafter mentioned, either refuse the order, or suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or grant an order of discharge subject to such conditions as aforesaid.

XLV of 1860.

(3) The facts hereinbefore referred to are—

(a) that the bankrupt, if a trader, has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his bankruptcy or within such shorter period immediately preceding that event as the Court may deem reasonable in the circumstances of the case;

(b) that the bankrupt has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent;

(c) that the bankrupt has contracted any debt provable in the bankruptcy without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (proof whereof shall lie on him) of being able to pay it;

(d) that the bankrupt has brought on his bankruptcy by rash and hazardous speculations or unjustifiable extravagance in living;

(e) that the bankrupt has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any suit or other legal proceeding properly brought against him;

(f) that the bankrupt has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order, when unable to pay his debts as they become due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors;

(g) that the bankrupt has on any previous occasion been adjudged bankrupt or made under any enactment in force in any part of Her Majesty's dominions a composition or arrangement with his creditors;

(h) that the bankrupt has been guilty of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust.

(4) For the purposes of this section the report of the official assignee shall be prima facie evidence of the statements therein contained.

(5) Notice of the appointment by the Court of the day for hearing the application for discharge shall be published in the prescribed manner and sent one month at least before the day so appointed to each creditor who has proved, and the Court may hear the official assignee, and may also hear any creditor. At the hearing the Court may put such questions to the debtor and receive such evidence as it may think fit.

(6) The Court may, in making an order of discharge, pass a decree against the debtor in favour of the official assignee for any balance of the debts provable under the bankruptcy which is not satisfied at the date of his discharge; but in that case the decree shall not be executed without leave of the Court, which leave may be given on proof that the bankrupt has since his discharge acquired property or income available for payment of his debts.

(7) A discharged bankrupt shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the official assignee may require in the realization and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the official assignee, and if he fails to do so he shall be guilty of a contempt of Court; and the Court may also, if it thinks fit, revoke his discharge, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made or thing duly done subsequent to the discharge, but before its revocation.

(8) Where the Court refuses the discharge of the bankrupt, it may, after such time and in such circumstances as may be authorised by general rules, permit him to renew his application for an order of discharge.

Fraudulent settlements. 27. In either of the following cases, that is to say:—

(1) in the case of a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage where the settlor is not at the time of making the settlement able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in the settlement, or

(2) in the case of any covenant or contract made in consideration of marriage for the future settlement on or for the settlor's wife or children of any money or property wherein he had not at the date of his marriage any estate or interest (not being money or property of or in right of his wife),

if the settlor is adjudged bankrupt or compounds or arranges with his creditors, and it appears to the Court that the settlement, covenant or contract was made in order to defeat or delay creditors, or was unjustifiable having regard to the state of the settlor's affairs at the time when it was made, the Court may refuse or suspend an order of discharge or grant an order subject to conditions or refuse to approve a composition or arrangement, as the case may be, in like manner as in cases where the debtor has been guilty of fraud.

28. (1) An order of discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any debt on a recognisance, or from any debt with which the bankrupt may be chargeable at the suit of the Crown or of any person for any offence against an enactment relating to any branch of the public revenue, or at the suit of the sheriff or other public officer on a bail-bond entered into for the appearance of any person prosecuted for any such offence; and the bankrupt shall not be discharged from these excepted debts unless the Government certifies in writing its consent to his being discharged therefrom.

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1885.
(Part II.—Disqualifications of Bankrupt.—Part III.—Administration of Property.—Sections 29-32.)

(2) An order of discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any debt or liability incurred by means of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which he was a party, or from any debt or liability whereof he has obtained forbearance by any fraud to which he was a party.

(3) An order of discharge shall release the bankrupt from all other debts provable in bankruptcy.

(4) An order of discharge shall be conclusive evidence of the bankruptcy, and of the validity of the proceedings therein; and in any proceedings that may be instituted against a bankrupt who has obtained an order of discharge in respect of any debt from which he is released by the order, the bankrupt may plead that the cause of action occurred before his discharge, and may give this Act and the special matter in evidence.

ss. 59
(5) An order of discharge shall not release any person who at the date of the receiving order was a partner or co-trustee with the bankrupt or was jointly bound or had made any joint contract with him, or any person who was surety or in the nature of a surety for him.

PART II.

DISQUALIFICATIONS OF BANKRUPT.

47 Vic.,

(2) The disqualifications to which a bankrupt is subject under this section shall be removed and cease if and when—

The Court may grant or withhold the certificate as it thinks fit, but a refusal of the certificate shall be subject to appeal.

(3) If a person is adjudged bankrupt whilst holding the office of Member of a Legislative Council, Justice of the Peace, Judge, Magistrate or member of a local authority, his office shall thereupon become vacant.

PART III.

47 Vic.,
s. 37.
(1) Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract, promise or breach of trust shall not be provable in bankruptcy.

(2) A person having notice of any act of bankruptcy available against the debtor shall not prove under the receiving order for any debt or liability contracted by the debtor subsequently to the date of his so having notice.

(3) Save as aforesaid, all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject at the date of the receiving order, or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of the receiving order, shall be deemed to be debts provable in bankruptcy.

(4) An estimate shall be made by the official assignee of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid which by reason of its being subject to any contingency or contingencies, or for any other reason, does not bear a certain value.

(5) Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by the official assignee as aforesaid may appeal to the Court.

(6) If, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt or liability shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a debt not provable in bankruptcy.

(7) If, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated, the Court may direct the value to be assessed before the Court itself, and may give all necessary directions for this purpose, and the amount of the value when assessed shall be deemed to be a debt provable in bankruptcy.

(8) "Liability" shall for the purposes of this Act include any compensation for work or labour done, and any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied covenant, contract, agreement or undertaking, whether the breach does or does not occur, or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring before the discharge of the debtor, and generally it shall include any express or implied engagement, agreement or undertaking to pay, or capable of resulting in the payment of, money, or money's worth, whether the payment is, as respects amount, fixed or unliquidated; as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any one contingency or on two or more contingencies; as to mode of valuation, capable of being ascertained by fixed rules, or as matter of opinion.

31. Where there have been mutual credits, mutual debts or other mutual dealings between a debtor against whom a receiving order is made under this Act and any other person proving or claiming to prove a debt under the receiving order, an account shall be taken by, or under the orders of, the Court of what is due from the one party to the other in respect of those mutual dealings, and the sum due from the one party shall be set off against any sum due from the other party, and the balance of the account, and no more, shall be claimed or paid on either side respectively; but a person shall not be entitled under this section to claim the benefit of any set-off against the property of a debtor in any case where he had at the time of giving credit to the debtor notice of an act of bankruptcy committed by the debtor and available against him.

32. With respect to the mode of proving debts, the right of proof by secured and other creditors, the admission and rejection of debts.

(c) all wages of any labourer or workman, not exceeding five hundred rupees for each, whether payable for time or piece-work, in respect of services rendered to the bankrupt during four months before the date of the receiving order.

(2) The foregoing debts shall rank equally among themselves, and shall be paid in full, unless the property of the bankrupt is insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions among themselves.

(3) Nothing in this section shall take away or abridge any power of the chief officer of any public department to dismiss a bankrupt.

46. The property of a debtor who has been adjudged bankrupt shall pass from official assignee to official assignee, and shall vest in the official assignee for the time being during his continuance in office, with it any conveyance, assignment or transfer whatever.

47. (1) Where any part of the property of the bankrupt consists of any tenancy burdened with onerous covenants, of shares or stock in companies, of unprofitable contracts, or of any other property that is unsaleable, or not readily saleable, by reason of its binding the possessor thereof to the performance of any onerous act, or to the payment of any sum of money, the official assignee, notwithstanding that he has endeavoured to sell or has taken possession of the property, or exercised any act of ownership in relation thereto, but subject to the provisions of this section, may, by writing signed by him, at any time within three months after the adjudication of bankruptcy, disclaim the property:

Provided that, where any such property has not come to the knowledge of the official assignee within one month after the adjudication, he may disclaim the property at any time within two months after he first became aware thereof.

(2) The disclaimer shall operate to determine, as from the date of disclaimer, the rights, interests and liabilities of the bankrupt and his property in or in respect of the property disclaimed, and shall also discharge the official assignee from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed as from the date when the property vested in him, but shall not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the bankrupt and his property and the official assignee from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person.

(3) The official assignee shall not be entitled to disclaim a tenancy without the leave of the Court, except in any cases which may be prescribed by general rules; and the Court may, before or on granting the leave, require such notices to be given to persons interested, and impose such terms as a condition of granting leave, and make such orders with respect to fixtures, tenant's improvements and other matters arising out of the tenancy, as the Court thinks just.

(4) The official assignee shall not be entitled to disclaim any property in pursuance of this section in any case where an application in writing has been made to him by any person interested in the property requiring him to decide whether he will disclaim or not, and he has for a period of twenty-eight days after the receipt of the application, or such extended period as may be allowed by the Court, declined or neglected to give notice whether he disclaims the property or not; and, in the case of a contract, if the official assignee, after such application as aforesaid, does not within the said period or extended period disclaim the contract, he shall be deemed to have adopted it.

(5) The Court may, on the application of any person who is, as against the official assignee, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract made with the bankrupt, make an order rescinding the contract on such terms as to payment by or to either party of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise, as to the Court may seem equitable; and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt under the bankruptcy.

(6) The Court may, on application by any person either claiming any interest in any disclaimed property, or being under any liability not discharged by this Act in respect of any disclaimed property, and on hearing such persons as it thinks fit, make an order for the vesting of the property in or delivery thereof to any person entitled thereto, or to whom it may seem just that the same should be delivered by way of compensation for such liability as aforesaid, or a trustee for him, and on such terms as the Court thinks just; and, on any such vesting order being made, the property comprised therein shall vest accordingly in the person therein named in that behalf without any conveyance or assignment for the purpose:

Provided always that, where the property disclaimed is a tenancy, the Court shall not make a vesting order in favour of any person claiming under the bankrupt, whether as under-tenant or as mortgagee by demise, except upon the terms of making that person subject to the same liabilities and obligations as the bankrupt was subject to under the tenancy in respect to the property at the date when the bankruptcy petition was filed, and any under-tenant or mortgagee declining to accept a vesting order upon these terms shall be excluded from all interest in and security upon the property; and if there is no person claiming under the bankrupt who is willing to accept an order upon these terms, the Court shall have power to vest the bankrupt's estate and interest in the property in any person bound either personally or in a representative character, and either alone or jointly with the bankrupt, to discharge the tenant's liabilities and obligations, freed and discharged from all estates, incumbrances and interests created therein by the bankrupt.

(7) Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under this section shall be deemed to be a creditor of the bankrupt to the extent of the injury, and may accordingly prove the same as a debt under the bankruptcy.

(2) The official assignee may, from time to time, summon meetings of the creditors for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors, by resolution at any meeting, or the Court may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one-fourth in value of the creditors.

(3) The official assignee may apply to the Court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the bankruptcy.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the official assignee shall use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

PART V.

SPECIAL ASSIGNEES.

77. (4) If a special assignee is appointed, he shall give security in manner prescribed to the satisfaction of the Court; and the Court, if satisfied with the security, shall certify that his appointment has been duly made, unless it disapproves of the appointment on the ground that it has not been made in good faith by a majority in value of the creditors voting, or that the person appointed is not fit to act as assignee, or that his connection with or relation to the bankrupt or his estate or any particular creditor makes it difficult for him to act with impartiality in the interests of the creditors generally. [46 & 47 Vic. c. 52, s. 21 sub-s. (2).]

(5) The appointment of a special assignee shall take effect as from the date of the certificate. [46 & 47 Vic. c. 52, s. 2 sub-s. (4).]

(7) If either at the meeting summoned under sub-section (2) or at the further meeting summoned under sub-section (6) the creditors do not, by ordinary resolution, appoint a special assignee, or if at the further meeting they make an appointment of which the Court disapproves on any of the grounds mentioned in sub-section (4), the official assignee shall be the assignee throughout the bankruptcy. [New.]

(8) Subject to the provisions of this Act with respect to security and the approval of the Court, the creditors, if they think fit, may, by ordinary resolution, appoint more persons than one to the office of special assignee; and, where more persons than one are appointed, the creditors shall declare whether any act required or authorised to be done by the special assignee is to be done by all or any one or more of those persons, all of whom are in this Act included under the term "special assignee," and shall be joint-tenants of the property of the bankrupt with right of survivorship. Whereby any enactment or instrument [46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 149.] reference is made to the 11 & 12 Vic., cap. 21 (an Act to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to Insolvent Debtors in India), the enactment or instrument shall, so far as may be, be construed and have effect as if reference were made therein to the corresponding provisions of this Act.

128. The provisions of this Act relating to the [46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 150.] remedies against the property of a debtor, the priorities of debts, the effect of a composition or scheme of arrangement, and the effect of a discharge shall bind the Crown.

129. Nothing in this Act, or in any transfer of [11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 3.] jurisdiction effected thereby, shall take away or affect any right of audience that any person may have had immediately before the commencement of this Act; and all attorneys or other persons who had the right of audience before the Courts for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors shall have the like right of audience in bankruptcy matters in the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, respectively.

Unclaimed Funds or Dividends.

130. (1) Where an assignee under any bank- [46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 162.] ruptcy, composition or scheme pursuant to this Act has under his control any unclaimed dividend which has remained unclaimed for more than six months, or where, after making a final dividend, he has in his hands or under his control any unclaimed or undistributed money arising from the property of the debtor, or where, after the passing of this Act, any unclaimed or undistributed fund or dividend in the hands or under the control of an assignee under the 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21 (An Act to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to Insolvent Debtors in India) has remained or remains unclaimed or undistributed for six months after the same became claimable or distributable, or in any other case for two years after the receipt thereof by the assignee, the assignee shall forthwith pay it into the Court for credit, if it is held for an estate, to the Bankruptcy Estates Account of that Court, or, if it is held as a dividend for a creditor, to the Bankruptcy Dividends Account of that Court.

(2) In the case of an assignee under the Statute aforesaid in the Court for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors at Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, or in the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, "the Court" in sub-section (1) means the High Court of Judicature at Fort William, Madras or Bombay, or the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, as the case may be.

(3) The Court, with the concurrence of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time, appoint a person to collect and get in all such unclaimed or undistributed moneys, funds or dividends; and for the purposes of this section the Court shall have, and at the instance of the person so appointed or of its own motion may exercise, all the powers conferred by this Act with respect to the discovery and realization of the property of a debtor, and the provisions of Part I of this Act with respect thereto shall, with any necessary modifications, apply to proceedings under this section.

(4) The provisions of this section shall not, except as expressly declared herein, deprive any person of any larger or other right or remedy to which he may be entitled against the assignee.

[Act II of 1874, s. 62.]

131. Moneys transferred to the credit of the Bankruptcy Dividends Account which are not paid within six years from the date of their transfer to that account shall be carried to the account and credit of the Government of India, unless the Court, on the motion of a person interested, otherwise directs.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 162. Act II of 1874, s. 63.]

132. Any person claiming to be entitled to any moneys paid into the Bankruptcy Estates Account or the Bankruptcy Dividends Account pursuant to section 130, or carried to the account and credit of the Government of India pursuant to section 131, may apply to the Court for an order for payment to him of the same; and the Court, if satisfied that the person claiming is entitled, shall make an order for payment to him of the sum due:

Provided that, before making an order for the payment of a sum which has been carried to the account and credit of the Government of India, the Court shall cause a notice to be served on such officer as the Governor General in Council may appoint in this behalf, calling on the officer to show cause, within one month from the date of the service of the notice, why the order should not be made.

[New.]

133. (1) Where in the books of the official assignee of the Court for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors at Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, or of the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, a dividend in respect of the claim of a person who has been named in a schedule as a creditor of an insolvent in proceedings under the 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21 (An Act to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to Insolvent Debtors in India), but has not established his title to the dividend, has been standing to the credit of the estate of the insolvent for a longer period than six years from the date of the declaration of the dividend, the official assignee of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William, Madras or Bombay, or of the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, as the case may be, shall, at the prescribed time and in the prescribed form, file an account of it in Court, and publish the account in two successive issues of the local official Gazette.

(2) If the dividend is not claimed within six months from the date of the second publication of the account in the Gazette, it shall, after deduction therefrom of the cost of preparing, filing and publishing the account, be divided rateably among the creditors of the estate who have proved their debts or demands.

Debtor's Books.

134. (1) No person shall, as against the assignee, be entitled to withhold possession of the books of accounts belonging to the debtor or to set up any lien thereon.

[46 & 47 Vic.,
c. 52, s. 169.]

136. (1) The enactments described in the third schedule are hereby repealed as from the commencement of this Act to the extent mentioned in that schedule.

(2) The repeal effected by this Act shall not affect—

(a) anything done or suffered before the commencement of this Act under any enactment repealed by this Act ; or

(b) any right or privilege acquired, or duty imposed, or liability or disqualification incurred, under any enactment so repealed ; or

(c) any fine, forfeiture or other punishment incurred or to be incurred in respect of any offence committed or to be committed against any enactment so repealed ; or

(3) Notwithstanding the repeal effected by this Act, all proceedings in any Court or before a Judge of any Court under any of the enactments repealed pending at the commencement of this Act shall, except so far as any provision of this Act expressly applies to pending proceedings, continue, and those enactments shall, except as aforesaid, apply thereto, as if this Act had not passed.

(4) The person for the time being holding the office of official assignee for any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, or for the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, shall, for the purposes of any such proceedings pending before that Court or any Judge thereof, be deemed to have been appointed official assignee under the repealed enactment.

2. The official assignee shall also, as soon as practicable, send to each creditor mentioned in the debtor's statement of affairs a notice of the time and place of the meeting, accompanied by a summary of the debtor's statement of affairs, including the causes of his failure, and any observations thereon which the official assignee may think fit to make ; but the proceedings at the meeting shall not be invalidated by reason of any such notice or summary not having been sent or received before the meeting.

3. The meeting shall be held at such place as is in the opinion of the official assignee most convenient for the majority of the creditors.

4. The official assignee or the special assignee may at any time summon a meeting of creditors, and shall do so whenever so directed by the Court, or so requested in writing by one-fourth in value of the creditors.

5. Meetings subsequent to the meeting mentioned in section 17 shall be summoned by sending notice of the time and place thereof to each creditor or at the address given in his proof, or, if he has not proved, at the address given in the debtor's statement of affairs, or at such other address as may be known to the person summoning the meeting.

6. The official assignee, or some person nominated by him, shall be the chairman at every meeting : Provided that, if the Court so directs, the chairman at any meeting subsequent to the meeting mentioned in section 17 shall be such person as the meeting by ordinary resolution appoint.

9. For the purpose of voting a secured creditor shall, unless he surrenders his security, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to vote only in respect of the balance (if any) due to him, after deducting the value of his security. If he votes in respect of his whole debt, he shall be deemed to have surrendered his security, unless the Court on application is satisfied that the omission to value the security has arisen from inadvertence.

10. A creditor shall not vote in respect of any debt on or secured by a current bill of exchange or promissory note held by him, unless he is willing to treat the liability to him thereon of every person who is liable thereon antecedently to the debtor, and against whom a receiving order has not been made, as a security in his hands, and to estimate the value thereof and for the purposes of voting, but not for the purposes of dividend, to deduct it from his proof.

11. It shall be competent to the assignee, within twenty-eight days after a proof estimating the value of a security as aforesaid has been made use of in voting at any meeting, to require the creditor to give up the security for the benefit of the creditors generally on payment of the value so estimated, with an addition thereto of twenty per centum: Provided that, where a creditor has put a value on the security, he may at any time before he has been required to give up the security as aforesaid correct the valuation by a new proof, and deduct the new value from his debt, but in that case the addition of twenty per centum shall not be made if the assignee requires the security to be given up.

12. If a receiving order is made against one partner of a firm, any creditor to whom that partner is indebted jointly with the other partners of the firm, or any of them, may prove his debt for the purpose of voting at any meeting of creditors, and shall be entitled to vote thereat.

13. The chairman of a meeting shall have power to admit or reject a proof for the purpose of voting, but his decision shall be subject to appeal to the Court. If he is in doubt whether the proof of a creditor should be admitted or rejected, he shall mark the proof as objected to and shall allow the creditor to vote, subject to the vote being declared invalid in the event of the objection being sustained.

14. A creditor may vote either in person or by proxy.

15. Every instrument of proxy shall be in the prescribed form, and shall be issued by the official assignee, or, if a special assignee has been appointed, by the special assignee, and every insertion therein shall be in the handwriting of the person giving the proxy.

16. A creditor may give a general proxy to his manager or clerk, or any other person in his regular employment. In that case the instrument of proxy shall state the relation in which the person to act thereunder stands to the creditor.

17. A creditor may give a special proxy to any person to vote at any specified meeting or adjournment thereof, for or against any specific resolution, or for or against any specified person as special assignee.

18. A proxy shall not be used unless it is deposited with the official assignee or special assignee before the meeting at which it is to be used.

19. Where it appears to the satisfaction of the Court that any solicitation has been used by or on behalf of a special assignee in obtaining proxies, or in procuring the special assigneeship, except by the direction of a meeting of creditors, the Court shall have power, if it thinks fit, to order that no remuneration shall be allowed to the person by whom, or on whose behalf the solicitation has been exercised, notwithstanding any resolution of the creditors to the contrary.

20. A creditor may appoint the official assignee of the debtor's estate to act in manner prescribed as his general or special proxy.

21. The chairman of a meeting may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn the meeting from time to time, and from place to place.

22. A meeting shall not be competent to act for any purpose, except the election of a chairman and the adjournment of the meeting, unless there are present, or represented thereat, at least three creditors, or all the creditors if their number does not exceed three.

23. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of creditors is not present or represented, the meeting shall be adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place, or to such other day as the chairman may appoint, not being less than seven or more than twenty-one days.

24. The chairman of every meeting shall cause minutes of the proceedings at the meeting to be drawn up, and fairly entered in a book kept for that purpose, and the minutes shall be signed by him.

25. No person acting under either a general or a special proxy shall vote in favour of any resolution which would directly or indirectly place himself, his partner or employer in a position to receive any remuneration out of the estate of the debtor otherwise than as a creditor rateably with the other creditors of the debtor: Provided that where any person holds special proxies to vote for the appointment of himself as special assignee, he may use the said proxies and vote accordingly.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

[46 & 47 Vic.,
c. 52, Sch. II.]

PROOF OF DEBTS.

Proof in ordinary cases.

1. Every creditor shall prove his debt as soon as may be after the making of a receiving order.

2. A debt may be proved by delivering or sending through the post in a prepaid letter to the official assignee, or, if a special assignee has been appointed, to the special assignee, an affidavit verifying the debt.

3. The affidavit may be made by the creditor himself or by some person authorised by or on behalf of the creditor. If made by a person so authorised, it shall state his authority and means of knowledge.

4. The affidavit shall contain or refer to a statement of account showing the particulars of the debt, and shall specify the vouchers, if any, by which the same can be substantiated. The official assignee or special assignee may at any time call for the production of the vouchers.

5. The affidavit shall state whether the creditor is or is not a secured creditor.

6. A creditor shall bear the cost of proving his debt, unless the Court otherwise specially orders.

7. Every creditor who has lodged a proof shall be entitled to see and examine the proofs of other creditors at all reasonable times.

8. A creditor proving his debt shall deduct therefrom all trade discounts, but he shall not be compelled to deduct any discount, not exceeding five per centum on the net amount of his claim, which he may have agreed to allow for payment in cash.

Proof by Secured Creditors.

9. If a secured creditor realizes his security, he may prove for the balance due to him, after deducting the net amount realized.

10. If a secured creditor surrenders his security to the assignee for the general benefit of the creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.

11. If a secured creditor does not either realize or surrender his security, he shall, before ranking for dividend, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1886.
(The Second Schedule.—Proof of Debts.)

12. (a) Where a security is so valued the assignee may at any time redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value.

(b) If the assignee is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed, he may require that the property comprised in any security so valued be offered for sale at such times and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed on between the creditor and the assignee, or as, in default of agreement, the Court may direct. If the sale is by public auction, the creditor, or the assignee on behalf of the estate, may bid or purchase.

(c) Provided that the creditor may at any time, by notice in writing, require the assignee to elect whether he will or will not exercise his power of redeeming the security or requiring it to be realized, and if the assignee does not, within six months after receiving the notice, signify in writing to the creditor his election to exercise the power, he shall not be entitled to exercise it; and the equity of redemption, or any other interest in the property comprised in the security which is vested in the assignee, shall vest in the creditor, and the amount of his debt shall be reduced by the amount at which the security has been valued.

13. Where a creditor has so valued his security, he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing to the satisfaction of the assignee, or the Court, that the valuation and proof were made bona fide on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but every such amendment shall be made at the cost of the creditor, and upon such terms as the Court shall order, unless the assignee shall allow the amendment without application to the Court.

14. Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with the foregoing rule, the creditor shall forthwith repay any surplus dividend which he has received in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation, or, as the case may be, shall be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being available for dividend any dividend or share of dividend which he has failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation, before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the date of the amendment.

15. If a creditor after having valued his security subsequently realizes it, or if it is realized under the provisions of rule 12, the net amount realized shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor, and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.

16. If a secured creditor does not comply with the foregoing rules, he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

17. Subject to the provisions of rule 12, a creditor shall in no case receive more than sixteen annas in the rupee and interest as provided by this Act.

Taking Accounts of Property mortgaged and Sale thereof.

18. Upon application by motion by any person claiming to be a mortgagee of any part of the bank-rupt's immovable property, whether the mortgage is of a legal or equitable nature, the Court shall proceed to inquire whether the person is such mortgagee, and for what consideration and under what circumstances; and if it is found that the person is such mortgagee, and if no sufficient objection appears to the title of the person to the sum claimed by him under the mortgage, the Court shall direct such accounts and inquiries to be taken as may be necessary for ascertaining the principal, interest and costs due upon the mortgage, and the rents and profits, or dividends, interest or other proceeds received by the person, or by any other person by his order or for his use in case he has been in possession of the property over which the mortgage extends, or any part thereof; and the Court, if satisfied that there ought to be a sale, shall direct notice to be given in such Gazettes or newspapers as it thinks fit, when and where, and by whom and in what way, the property, or the interest therein so mortgaged, is to be sold, and that the sale be made accordingly, and that the assignee (unless it be otherwise ordered) shall have the conduct of the sale; but it shall not be imperative on any such mortgagee to make such application. At any such sale the mortgagee may bid and purchase.

19. All proper parties shall join in the conveyance to the purchaser, as the Court may direct.

20. The moneys arising from the sale shall be applied in the first place in payment of the costs, charges and expenses of the assignee, of and occasioned by the application to the Court and of attending the sale, and then in payment and satisfaction so far as the same will extend of what is found due to the mortgagee, for principal, interest and costs; and the surplus of the said moneys (if any) shall then be paid to the assignee. But in case the moneys arising from the sale are insufficient to pay and satisfy what is so found due to the mortgagee, then he shall be entitled to prove as a creditor for the deficiency, and receive dividends thereon rateably with the other creditors, but not so as to disturb any dividend then already declared.

21. For the better taking of such inquiries and accounts, and making a title to the purchaser, all parties may be examined by the Court upon interrogatories or otherwise as it may think fit, and shall produce before the Court upon oath all deeds, papers, books and writings in their respective custody or power relating to the estate or effects of the bankrupt, as the Court may direct.

Proof in respect of Distinct Contracts.

22. If a debtor was at the date of the receiving order liable in respect of distinct contracts as a member of two or more distinct firms, or as a sole contractor and also as member of a firm, the circumstance that the firms are in whole or in part composed of the same individuals, or that the sole contractor is also one of the joint contractors, shall not prevent proof in respect of the contracts against the properties respectively liable on the contracts.

Periodical Payments.

23. When any rent or other payment falls due at stated periods, and the receiving order is made at any time other than one of those periods, the person entitled to the rent or payment may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the date of the order as if the rent or payment grew due from day to day.

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1886.
(The Third Schedule.—Enactments repealed.)

Interest.

24. On any debt or sum certain, payable at a certain time or otherwise, whereon interest is not reserved or agreed for, and which is overdue at the date of the receiving order and provable in bankruptcy, the creditor may prove for interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum to the date of the order from the time when the debt or sum was payable, if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, and, if payable otherwise, then from the time when a demand in writing has been made giving the debtor notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment.

Debt payable at a future Time.

25. A creditor may prove for a debt not payable when the debtor committed an act of bankruptcy as if it were payable presently, and may receive dividends equally with the other creditors, deducting only thereout a rebate of interest at the rate of five per centum per annum computed from the declaration of a dividend to the time when the debt would have become payable according to the terms on which it was contracted.

Admission or Rejection of Proofs.

26. The assignee shall examine every proof and the grounds of the debt, and in writing admit or reject it in whole or in part, or require further evidence in support of it. If he rejects a proof, he shall state in writing to the creditor the grounds of the rejection.

27. If the assignee thinks that a proof has been improperly admitted, the Court may, on the application of the assignee, after notice to the creditor who made the proof, expunge the proof or reduce its amount.

28. If a creditor is dissatisfied with the decision of the assignee in respect of a proof, the Court may, on the application of the creditor, reverse or vary the decision.

29. The Court may also expunge or reduce a proof upon the application of a creditor if the assignee declines to interfere in the matter, or, in the case of a composition or scheme, upon the application of the debtor.

30. For the purpose of any of his duties in relation to proofs, the assignee may administer oaths and take affidavits.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS matter of the general amendment of the law of bankruptcy and insolvency in India has been frequently of late years pressed upon the attention of the Government of India.

There are at present two main bodies of insolvency law in force in British India—first, the Statute 11 & 12 Vic., cap. 21; and secondly, Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure (XIV of 1882). Roughly speaking, the former constitutes the insolvency law for the three Presidency-towns and for the towns of Rangoon, Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein; the latter the law for the country outside those towns. It is, however, to be observed that the High Courts administer the insolvency chapter of the Civil Procedure Code concurrently with their ordinary insolvency jurisdiction. Besides these two main bodies of law, there is a special insolvency law for the Punjab under Act IV of 1872, sections 22 to 33; and there are special Acts that have been passed for the relief of indebted landowners in different parts of the country.

2. In the year 1870 Sir James Stephen introduced a Bill repealing the Statute of 1848, and substituting for it an insolvency law applicable to the whole of British India. It was taken mainly from the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869. The general opinion about it was that its provisions were too complicated for the Mufassal, and that the system of voluntary management by creditors, which was then the principle of the English Act, was unsuitable to India, and the measure was accordingly dropped. The Bill was possibly open to the objection that it was beyond the competency of the Indian legislature, but this point does not appear to have been taken at the time.

3. Sir Arthur Hobhouse did not attempt to touch the insolvency law of the Presidency-towns, but he paid a good deal of attention to what he described as "those seldom-used sections" of the Code of Civil Procedure "which do duty for an insolvency law" in the Mufassal.* Speaking on the subject in 1875,† he remarked that the Code then contained the germ of an insolvency law, but nothing more than a germ. He believed that this part of the Code had been very little used, and he remarked that if this was so it was not surprising, as there was very small inducement to the debtor to avail himself of it. It seemed, however, he went on to say, to be the prevailing opinion that the judicial machinery in the Mufassal was hardly adapted to the working of any general and complete law of insolvency. At all events, he said, such a law should be treated as a separate measure, and not as part of the Code. It would probably, he added, be better for the present, and be likely to pave the way for some more complete measure in the future, if the legislature were to make the law a little less rudimentary than it then was, and at all events to supplement it where it seemed to be broken off in its natural course; and he embodied in Chapter XX of the Code of 1877 certain provisions framed in accordance with these views.

4. By Act XII of 1879 (now superseded by the Code of Civil Procedure of 1882) several amendments were made in the insolvency chapter of the Code. The most important of these was the extension of the chapter to persons against whose property orders of attachment had been issued in execution of money-decrees. In his speech on the passing of this Act, Mr. Whitley Stokes said that Chapter XX, even with all the improvements made by this Act, would still be incomplete; but that it went as far as most of the Committee with their present knowledge of the condition of the Mufassal Courts and the extent of India's indebtedness thought safe and wise. The Government of India in the Home Department, he said, either had issued, or was about to issue, a circular to the Local Governments, requesting their opinion as to the propriety of allowing debtors to a certain amount to apply for a declaration of insolvency, and if this were found possible the law would be altered accordingly.‡

5. The circular referred to by Mr. Stokes was issued on the 22nd of September, 1879, and invited an expression of opinion on the suggestion that persons owing Rs. 200 and upwards should be allowed to apply to be adjudged insolvents, though they might not have been arrested or imprisoned, and though no order of attachment against their property had been made. The majority of the opinions received was adverse to the suggestion, and accordingly it was dropped.

6. In January, 1881, Mr. Pitt-Kennedy brought in a Bill for the amendment of the law relating to insolvent debtors in India. It was a short amending Bill of seven sections, and did not attempt to consolidate the law. Serious doubts were entertained whether some of the proposals of the Bill were not ultra vires, and it was therefore decided that the Bill should not be proceeded with. In the meantime, however, it had been circulated to Local Governments and Administrations for opinion; and among the comments and criticisms which were passed upon it the doubt is not unfrequently expressed whether it was worth while to pass a mere amending Bill, and whether it would not be possible to re-cast completely the insolvency law for India.

7. It is clear further that, apart from any question of general revision, there are certain points in which the existing law stands in somewhat urgent need of emendation.

Thus, the Secretary of State, in a despatch dated the 21st October, 1880, requested the early consideration by the Government of India, in communication with the several High Courts, of the question whether the Insolvency Courts could not under the existing law order the charge for advertising notices of insolvency in the provincial Gazettes and in the London Gazette to be defrayed from the estates concerned, and suggested that, if necessary, recourse should be had to legislation to ensure the recovery from every estate of all costs, whether incurred in England or in India, attendant on the insolvency. The Local Governments and High Courts were consulted on this question; and though the majority of them were of opinion that the point might be dealt with by an alteration of the statutory rules, yet the possibility of meeting the difficulty satisfactorily in this way does not appear to be altogether free from doubt.

8. Again, at Bombay, in consequence of the discovery some five or six years ago of serious defalcations on the part of the Official Assignee, it became necessary to re-organize the office of that functionary, and the High Court deemed it necessary—

(1) to provide that the accounts of the Official Assignee should be regularly audited by a competent auditor; and

(2) to appoint an Official Assignee of such position and character as might afford an effectual guarantee against misappropriation, and of such energy and legal knowledge as might ensure the most satisfactory and least expensive realization and distribution amongst creditors.

For these purposes additional funds were required, and the Court proposed to provide these funds mainly from unclaimed dividends. Accordingly, they framed certain new rules under the Insolvency Act of 1818, by which the unclaimed dividends were to be formed into a fund to be invested, with other money, in Government paper. The interest was to be applied in paying an auditor, and in supplementing the remuneration of the Official Assignee. These rules have hitherto been acted on, but doubts have been suggested as to their validity, and the Bombay Government have been pressing the Government of India to introduce or sanction legislation for the purpose of validating them. It appears, however, to be doubtful whether they can be validated by anything short of Parliamentary legislation.

9. The insolvency law of the Presidency-towns is admittedly cumbrous, defective and out of date, and in some points of detail is, as has been shown, urgently in need of amendment. The proposals for its revision which have hitherto been submitted to the legislature have been objected to, not so much on the ground that they were undesirable, as on the ground that they were insufficient, and that, while it was desirable to re-cast the whole law and bring it into conformity with English law, it was expedient to postpone legislation for this purpose while proposals involving important amendments of the English law itself were under consideration. This objection has recently been removed by the passing of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883. That Act may not be perfect; but at least it embodies the accumulated experience of the thirty-five years which elapsed since the passing of the Indian Insolvency Act; and in commercial law perfection of detail is less important than uniformity of principle. It is eminently desirable that the circumstances under which a debtor may be declared insolvent and under which he may obtain his discharge should be, as far as possible, the same in London and Calcutta.

10. The Government of India, therefore, after reference to the Secretary of State, came to the conclusion that the opportunity should be taken of repealing the Indian Insolvency Act and substituting a new Act conforming in general principles to the English Act of 1883, but adapted in details to Indian circumstances.

A Bill on these lines was prepared last year, and, having regard to the circumstance that an Indian Bankruptcy Act will have in some cases to be used by persons beyond the limits of British India, and to the advantage of having the decisions of the English Courts as a guide to its construction, it was thought well that its form and drafting should follow the English Act as closely as possible, except where there was some substantial reason for taking a different course. The result of the adoption of the English Act as a model then is that in some instances the phraseology of the present Bill, which is based on the draft of 1885, will be found to vary slightly from that ordinarily adopted in Acts of the Indian legislature, and in others it may be found to contain rules of interpretation and evidence, penal clauses and other provisions, which either cover ground already covered by parallel Indian enactments, or would be somewhat differently framed in a Bill intended only for this country.

11. The Bill which was prepared last year was submitted for opinion to the authorities most competent to advise on the subject of bankruptcy, and the further deviations from the scheme of the English Act which will be found in the present Bill are the outcome of the advice given by those authorities.

12. The first question which presents itself in connection with this measure is whether the new law should be applied to the whole of British India or only to specified towns.

There is something to be said in favour of having one, and only one, insolvency law for the whole of India. But, on the other hand, the difference between the circumstances of indebtedness in commercial seaports and in the interior appears to be such as to require, not indeed a different law, but different machinery. If Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure were not in existence, it might be desirable to insert in a general Insolvency Act a chapter applying the law for the Presidency-towns, with modifications and simplifications, to the Mufassal Courts. But under existing circumstances it is thought that the best course is to keep Chapter XX standing, to amend it where necessary, and to apply it generally to parts of the country and to forms of indebtedness to which a law framed principally with a view to commercial insolvencies is not applicable, the new law being applied in the first instance only to the three Presidency-towns, and to Rangoon, Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein, and a power being taken to extend it to other commercial centres, such as Karachi.

13. The Bill accordingly (section 79) constitutes by its direct operation only four Courts of Bankruptcy, namely, the High Courts of Judicature at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay and the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, and confers upon the Local Governments power, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to constitute other Courts of Bankruptcy in the territories administered by them. The local limits of the jurisdiction of the Presidency High Courts when exercising bankruptcy jurisdiction are (section 80) defined to be the same as the local limits of their ordinary original civil jurisdiction, the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Recorder of Rangoon to comprise (as at present) the towns of Rangoon, Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein. The local limits of the Courts which may be constituted by Local Governments will be defined by those Governments with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

14. The next question that presents itself is one as to the powers of the Governor General's Council. The present Indian insolvency law is contained in an Act of Parliament so framed as to operate throughout Her Majesty's dominions. Thus a vesting order made under it vests in the assignee by its direct operation all the real and personal estate and effects of the insolvent in whatever part of those dominions they may be situated or accrue. An order of discharge made under it has direct effect in every part of those dominions. And the subordinate provisions of the Act are, speaking generally, framed on similar lines. The Act is one of those which it is within the competency of the Legislative Council of the Governor General to modify or repeal; but if we were to undertake without the aid of Parliament to repeal and re-cast it in the manner above indicated, we should, owing to the limitation of our legislative powers, produce an enactment which would fall short of the present law in the important matter of its local extent and operation. Nor could we attain our object by any amendment of the existing Act. To say nothing of the impracticability, from the draftsman's point of view, of effecting, by way of amendment, the multitude of alterations which are needed in details and in matters of form, it must be remembered that it would be beyond the powers of the Council to extend in any way or substantially modify any of those provisions which apply beyond the limits of British India. And it is apprehended that, even if we were content to forego all notion of directly interfering with these provisions, any extensive amendment of the Act would probably affect them in such a way that either they would be held to have lost their operation beyond British India, or our enactment would be held to be ultra vires so far as it affected them, or else some other confusion or difficulty would arise.

15. It is an apprehension of some such result as this that has deterred the Government from attempting certain amendments of the Insolvency Act which have been from time to time suggested, and which in themselves would appear to be of a most trifling description. It is true that if the Council were to repeal the existing Act and substitute for it an Act of its own, drawn on improved lines, the new law, though treated as a foreign bankruptcy law, would receive a certain amount of recognition, and would be given effect to in many cases in the United Kingdom and in British Colonies; but it is apprehended that this result would, as a rule, be attainable only indirectly and through the medium of further judicial proceedings, that in some cases those proceedings would give rise to perplexing questions of private international law, and that in other cases again the Indian law would obtain but partial recognition. It is believed, for example, that a vesting order passed by our Courts under such a law would be allowed no effect as regards immoveable property situate in another British jurisdiction, and that the cases in which effect would be given to an order of discharge so passed are not as yet completely defined. Such difficulties could, no doubt, be met by supplementary bankruptcy proceedings concurrently instituted in the United Kingdom or the Colony, but it is obvious that the necessity for this should, if possible, be avoided. The Government of India has no information as to the proportion of the cases that now come before our Insolvency Courts in this country in which a limitation of the local operation of the law, like that just referred to, would be felt as a serious impediment; but it is apprehended that it would be so felt in the more important cases of bankrupts engaged in business transactions extending to the United Kingdom or the Colonies.

16. For these reasons it is necessary that any legislation undertaken here should be supported by an Act of Parliament. The precise form which the Act of Parliament should take is still under consideration in communication with the Secretary of State, but the Government of India as at present advised is disposed to think that the Act should be a confirming Act following legislation here rather than an enabling Act preceding it. An enabling Act followed by an Indian Act would give rise to questions as to whether the Indian legislature had exceeded the powers given to it by the English Act.

17. As regards the provisions of the Bill itself, it will be observed that the most striking difference between them and those of the English Act is that the duties discharged in England by the Board of Trade and committees of inspection are by the Bill entrusted to the Bankruptcy Court. This was unavoidable, as there is no authority in this country outside the Courts which could undertake the duties of the Board of Trade with any prospect of success, and the opinion is almost unanimous that the superintendence of bankruptcy proceedings by committees of inspection is unsuited to India.

18. Opinion is also adverse to the application to India of some of the provisions of the English Act respecting meetings of creditors. It is proposed therefore that meetings shall be held only when they are deemed by the assignee or the Court or one-fourth in value of the creditors to be necessary.

19. The other points in the Bill which appear to require explanation will be referred to, as far as possible, in the order of the sections in which they occur.

20. The local extent of the Act (section 1) has been made as wide as the powers of the Indian legislature permit, and its operation can only be further extended by Parliament.

21. Several of the authorities who have recorded opinions on the draft of 1885, and among them a Committee of the Judges of the High Court at Fort William, have taken exception to the seizure and sale of the goods of a debtor under process of a Civil Court, and the failure of a debtor to comply with the requirements of a bankruptcy notice, being made acts of bankruptcy in India as they have been in England by section 4, sub-section (1), clauses (e) and (g), of the English Act. Those clauses therefore have been excluded from the Bill (section 2), but in their stead have been added clauses making it an act of bankruptcy for a debtor to offer a composition to his creditors (L. R. 13 Q. B. D. 471), or to be lying in prison for a longer period than twenty-one days for making default in payment of money (11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, ss. 8 and 9).

22. By section 4 the jurisdiction of the Court is limited to cases in which the debtor is in prison within the local limits of the jurisdiction under an order of a Civil Court for default in payment of money, or in which the debtor, or, if he is a member of a firm, his partner, has within a year before the presentation of the bankruptcy petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business within those limits. This differs from the corresponding provisions of the English Act, which place no restriction of this kind on a petition by a debtor, and which admit a petition against a debtor when, and only when, he "is domiciled in England, or, within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition, has ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business in England."

It differs also from the corresponding provisions of the Indian Insolvency Act, which proceed on the distinction, now to be abolished, between traders and others, and the effect of which in all particulars it would be hazardous to attempt to state.

23. As regards the difference between the English Act and the Bill in this respect, it seems clear that the fact of the debtor being in prison within the jurisdiction should, in this country, continue to be, as it is under the present Insolvency Act, a ground of jurisdiction; and it seems almost equally clear, having regard to the conditions under which the present legislation is undertaken and to the circumstance that the local limits of the jurisdiction of each Court, however they may be fixed, must embrace only a part of British India, that domicile should be rejected here as a ground of jurisdiction.

24. Comparing the Bill with the existing Indian insolvency law as construed by the High Courts, it will be observed that Bankruptcy Courts will, under the Bill, continue to have jurisdiction in cases where the bankrupt has a house of business within the local limits, as Pontifex, J., held them, in the cases of Turing Churn Goh (L. B. L. R., App. 26) and Howard Brothers (L. B. L. R. 254), to have under the existing law, but that a High Court will not have bankruptcy jurisdiction in respect of an up-country debtor merely by reason of his being personally subject to the jurisdiction of that Court. It will be remembered that opposite views have been taken as to the existence of a jurisdiction on this latter ground under the existing law—see re Tietkins, L. B. L. R., O. C., 81, on the one hand, and re Blackwell, 9 Bo. H. C. Rep. 461, and re Ricks, 3 Mad. H. C. Rep. 151, on the other.

25. It has, however, been provided (section 4), on the recommendation of the Committee of the Judges of the High Court at Fort William, that a Court exercising jurisdiction in bankruptcy under the proposed Act may transfer to itself any proceedings under Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure and deal with them under the Act. It has also been provided (section 4) that in any prescribed class of cases the Court may make a receiving order on a bankruptcy petition notwithstanding the restrictions generally confining its jurisdiction to cases arising within certain local limits. Section 9 provides that, where concurrent proceedings have been instituted under the Bankruptcy Act and under the Code, the Court may stay the proceedings under the Code wherever they may be pending.

26. On the recommendation of the Chief Judge of the Bombay Court of Small Causes it is proposed (section 7) that a Bankruptcy Court may refuse to make a receiving order on a debtor's petition if in its opinion the petition ought to have been presented before some other Bankruptcy Court.

27. A receiving order made under section 6 or section 7 of the Bill will not have precisely the same effect as a vesting order under section 7 of the present Insolvency Act. It will transfer the possession of, but not the property in, the debtor's estate. The debtor will not be divested of his estate until he has been adjudged bankrupt (section 20).

28. When the receiving order has been made, the debtor, if in prison, will be released (section 8), but he will be under the control of the official assignee (section 22), to whom the carriage of proceedings may be given if the petitioner does not proceed with due diligence (section 91).

29. Sections 13 and 100 of the Bill give a Bankruptcy Court power to rescind a receiving order or annul an adjudication of bankruptcy when it considers that the debtor's estate would be more conveniently administered in some other part of British India or of Her Majesty's dominions elsewhere. When an adjudication is annulled under the latter section, anything done under it remains valid, and the Court is empowered to direct that the debtor's property shall vest in any person it may appoint. It is conceived that if similarly wide powers are conferred on the English Bankruptcy Courts the provisions regarding concurrent bankruptcies contained in sections 77 et seq. of the present Indian Insolvency Act may be dispensed with.

30. Section 58 protects existing interests of official assignees, and while it is proposed (section 62), in accordance with ordinary Indian practice, to leave the remuneration of official assignees to be determined by executive order, it is improbable that the existing mode of remuneration will be altered during the incumbency of present office-holders.

31. It was urged, among other objections to Sir J. Stephen's Bill, that it would generally be difficult to find among the creditors in this country persons qualified and willing to take a large share in the administration of a bankrupt's estate, and as a matter of fact the official element has always been prominent in administrations under the existing law. It is accordingly proposed, on the practically unanimous advice of all authorities conversant with the practice of bankruptcy in this country, that the official assignee shall discharge the functions of trustee in bankruptcy except when the creditors express a wish for the appointment of a special assignee (section 77).

32. By section 24 of the Bill the provisions of section 26 of the English Bankruptcy Act, respecting the re-direction of debtors' letters, have, on the advice of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, been extended to debtors' telegrams.

33. The saving of section 5 of the Statute commonly known as Bovill's Act (28 & 29 Vic., c. 86) in section 40 (6) of the English Bankruptcy Act has been omitted from section 33 of the Bill, as there is no corresponding enactment in the law of British India.

34. It has been suggested by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce and the Calcutta Trades Association that the clause (section 37) respecting reputed ownership should be so drawn as to meet the contention of the Official Assignee in the case of Gibbo v. Miller (I. L. R. 6 Cal. 633). This suggestion raises a very difficult question, which has been left unsolved by the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883. The opinions of the authorities in India who specially considered the question in 1881, with reference to Mr. Pitt-Kennedy's Bill, may be summed up in the following remarks of Mr. Justice Pontifex on section 23 of 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21 :—

"The fact is that the clause, though extremely valuable in particular cases, is one very dangerous to meddle with. As it stands, it is beneficial. To alter it as proposed would, in my opinion, be most mischievous. It is impossible with justice to make it apply to every case, and it would be hazardous to attempt to define with particularity to what cases it should apply. In my opinion it should be left as it now stands."

If further legislation is required, it must, in the opinion of the Government of India, take the form of a Bills of Sale Act.

35. Sections 45 and 46 of the English Bankruptcy Act, being framed with reference to English forms of execution, could not be adopted in the Bill without modification. It has been thought (sections 38 and 39 of the Bill) that the course most in harmony at the same time with those sections of the English Act and with the analogies presented by the Code of Civil Procedure would be to make the point of time at which the attaching creditor's title becomes complete against the assignee the same as that at which under section 295 of the Code it becomes complete against rival decree-holders. It is hoped that this will afford a simple and equitable settlement of a point regarding which there has been some difficulty in connection with the existing insolvency law.

36. On the suggestion of Mahārājā Sir Jotendro Mohun Tagore and Bābū Doorga Churn Law the provisions of section 45 of the Bill, with respect to the appropriation of pay or pension, have been made subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure and the Pensions Act, 1871.

37. The difference between section 48 (1) (c) of the Bill, defining the trustee's powers in respect of property to which the bankrupt is entitled "as tenant in tail or other owner of an estate of inheritance less than an estate in fee-simple," and the corresponding provision of the English Bankruptcy Act is explained by the peculiar position in which the owners of such estates are placed by section 2 of Act XXXI of 1854. The simplicity of that position makes it possible to dispense with all the provisions of the Act for the abolition of fines and reverses, which are incorporated by reference in the English Bankruptcy Act, with the exception of one, the substance of which, so far as it appears to be required, is embodied in sub-section (2) of section 48 of the Bill.

38. A Bankruptcy Court will have two entirely different kinds of money under its control, namely, (a) money held by it on account of estates before declaration of dividend, and (b) declared dividends awaiting distribution, the former being the property of estates and the latter the property of specific creditors. Section 64 recognises this distinction, and requires the Court to keep a Bankruptcy Estates Account and a Bankruptcy Dividends Account, the former being an account of money held for estates and the latter of money removed from that account on declaration of dividends and held for creditors till their dividends are paid to them or, through their default, lapse to the Government (section 131).

Both the Accounts are to be kept by the Court with a Government treasury. It is considered desirable that, like moneys received by ordinary Civil Courts, money received on account of bankruptcy estates should be paid into a Government treasury, in order that there may be the security of the Government for safe custody, and that the safeguards against the occurrence of error provided by the rules of the Government regarding payments from Government treasuries may be brought into operation. The expression "Government treasury" is so defined in section 135 as to include a Presidency Bank conducting treasury business for the Government.

39. Under the English Act of 1883, dividends on investments of money belonging to estates in bankruptcy are credited to the Government, and the Lord Chancellor is required to have regard to the amount thus derived in fixing the fees payable in respect of bankruptcy proceedings. It has been urged, and the Government of India is of opinion, that in this country, where bankruptcy proceedings are often necessarily more protracted than in England, interest on investments should be paid to creditors. But in that case each investment must be made and held separately for each estate, any portion of the funds of which is invested, and investments should only be made when the sum available for investment is large enough to make the interest sensible in amount. Section 66 provides for investments being made on these conditions at the instance of the Court out of funds standing to the credit of estates in the Bankruptcy Estates Account. It is only under that Account that delay prejudicial to creditors can arise. After money has been transferred to the Bankruptcy Dividends Account, any person to whom a dividend is due has only to present his receipt to obtain it, and he should have no inducement, whether by the money lying at interest or in any other way, to postpone for a day his taking the money out of the custody of the Court.

40. Section 79, sub-section (1), clause (e), of the Bill has been so drawn that jurisdiction in bankruptcy may be conferred in a limited class of cases on Courts beyond the Presidency-towns, as, for instance, on the High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces or the Chief Court of the Punjab, with respect to proceedings under Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure, where, by reason of the sum involved or the difficulty of winding up the estate under the Code, the Court may see fit to withdraw the proceedings from the Court in which they are pending and deal with them under proviso (r) to section 4, sub-section (1).

41. Section 85 is based on the section of the English Act which permits the delegation of subordinate jurisdiction in certain matters to Registrars in bankruptcy. It seems that this jurisdiction may be most conveniently exercised by a Judge of the Small Cause Court in Madras and by officers of the High Court in Calcutta and Bombay.

42. Under section 88 of the Bill the appeal from a single Judge of a Presidency High Court and the Recorder of Rangoon exercising bankruptcy jurisdiction lies as at present. The appeal from any Mufassal Courts of Bankruptcy which may be established will in most cases lie to the High Court of the province.

43. Section 101 follows the English Act in fixing the limit for small bankruptcies at Rs. 3,000. But the opinion has been expressed by some of the authorities who have advised on the draft of last year that the limit should be raised to Rs. 5,000 or even to Rs. 10,000. The Government of India itself inclines to that opinion, but deems it advisable to adhere to the limit prescribed in the English Act until the matter can be further considered in the light of the criticisms on the present Bill.

44. Part VIII of the Bill is taken from the English Debtors' Act, 1869, as amended by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. It embodies those full and strong powers for the arrest and punishment of fraudulent debtors and creditors which are the essential adjuncts of every proper law of bankruptcy. It is proposed, when a suitable occasion presents itself, to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure so as to give a Bankruptcy Court a power to commit offenders for trial similar to that which is conferred on the English Bankruptcy Courts by section 165 of the Act of 1883.

45. With respect to the suggestion that certain additional offences should be created by Part VIII of the Bill, it will be found that the Bill or the Indian Penal Code covers most, if not all, of the acts and omissions for which it has been proposed that further provision should be made.

46. Section 110 of the Bill provides that a married woman shall, in respect of her separate property (if any), be subject to the Act in the same way as if she were unmarried. The restriction in the corresponding provision, section 1 (5), of the English Married Women's Property Act, 1882, which confines it to the case of a woman carrying on a trade separately from her husband, has been omitted, because the vast majority of women to whom the Bill will be applicable stand either under sections 4 and 44 of the Indian Succession Act or under their personal laws on a footing altogether different from that of married women in England.

The phrase "separate property," it may be observed, is used in the wide sense in which it is used in the Indian Married Women's Property Act, 1874.

47. Section 130 provides, among other matters, for the payment into the Bankruptcy Courts of unclaimed dividends and other undistributed money remaining in the hands or under the control of assignees under the 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, after the passing of the proposed Act.

The unclaimed dividends are of two classes, namely, dividends belonging to creditors who have proved their debts, and dividends reserved for creditors who have not done so.

With respect to dividends of the first class, they are, as the late Chief Justice of Bengal has said, the property of the creditors for whom they have been set apart, or of their representatives, just as much as money appropriated to a person interested in an administration-suit belongs to him or his representative.

The case of dividends of the second class is different, and it is proposed to provide for them by section 133 of the Bill. With respect to this class of dividends, Mr. Turner, the Official Assignee at Bombay, has observed as follows :—

"The other class of unclaimed dividends, which amounts probably to some two or more lakhs of rupees, has arisen in Bombay partly from there being no provision in the Act 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, section 41 (similar to that in the present proposed Act, section 51), for the declaration of dividends only among creditors who "have proved their debts.*"

* No unclaimed dividends of this class can arise under the proposed new Act (see section 55).
A practice therefore grew up in the office of the Official Assignee of declaring dividends calculated on the total amount entered in respect of claims, whether partially secured or not, and only adjusting the claims when creditors came to receive payment of the dividend declared. And it must be noticed that this practice had one great practical advantage, inasmuch as such partially secured creditors generally held goods on the way to Europe, and it could not be ascertained, till such goods were actually put on the European market, what the loss (if any) would be. And as creditors in their own interest as well as that of the estate would frequently hold such goods for a considerable time, it would have caused great delay in declaring dividends to wait until such creditors were in a position to adjust and prove their claims. But in many cases the result was that such creditors, when the account-sales were received, did not find it worth their while to prove their claims at all, and in such cases the dividend calculated on the whole original debt, as entered in the schedule, still remains unclaimed.

"Formerly, in the older estates, proceedings were taken under the old Act, XXVII of 1841, to strike such claims off the schedules, but of late years it has been considered that that process could not now be legally carried out."

48. Section 134 is designed to meet the suggestion of the Acting Prothonotary and the Official Assignee of Bombay that the Act itself, and not the rules under it, should disallow claims to any lien on debtors' books, and the suggestion of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce that the Act should provide for the free access of creditors to those books.

49. Section 136 (3) of the Bill provides that notwithstanding the repeal of the existing law all proceedings pending under it at the time when the new Act comes into operation shall be disposed of as if that Act had not been passed. This is the course taken in respect of pending proceedings by the English Act, and, having regard to the extent of the change to be made in the law, it seems the only practicable course.

50. Rules 18 to 21 of the Second Schedule, regarding the taking of mortgagees' accounts and the sale of mortgaged property, have been inserted on the suggestion of Mr. Macgregor, the Official Assignee at Calcutta. These rules, which are frequently followed in this country, are substantially the same as those issued by Lord Loughborough in 1794, and the fact that they have been retained, with slight alterations, under the many Bankruptcy Acts passed in England since that date, is strong evidence of their utility.

51. It has been suggested that certain privileges should be accorded to the Official Assignee as a party to legal proceedings. But he will be a public officer within the meaning of section 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and, as such, entitled to the protection given to public officers by Chapter XXVII of that Code.

52. It has been objected that in certain circumstances the time limited by the draft of 1885 for doing some acts and things under the proposed Act would be found to be inconveniently short. In some cases the time has now been extended, and it is believed that section 89, sub-section (4), will enable the Courts to prevent hardship in the exceptional cases to which the time as now limited may prove inapplicable.

The 14th May, 1886.

Extract, paragraphs 1 to 10, of Despatch from the Government of India to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India,—(dated the 12th June, 1885).

WITH reference to Your Lordship's despatch No. 24 (Judicial), dated 14th of August last, we have the honour to submit herewith copies of a Bill (with the Objects and Reasons for the same) which has been prepared in our Legislative Department to adapt the English Bankruptcy Act, 1883, to Indian circumstances.

2. In exercise of the discretion left to us by paragraph 4 of Your Lordship's despatch, we have thought it well to make the measure applicable by its own vigour not only to the town of Rangoon but also to those of Bassein, Moulmein and Akyab, in which, as well as in Rangoon, the Presidency-town Insolvency Law has been for some years in force.

3. As regards the details of the measure, the material particulars in which it differs from the English Act are so fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that we deem it unnecessary to trouble Your Lordship with any further observations upon them.

4. As regards the form of the Parliamentary legislation required to give our Act operation in certain respects beyond the limits of British India, the proposal made in paragraph 27 of our despatch of the 5th May, 1884, was that we should pass our Act and that then an Act of Parliament should be passed extending such of its provisions as ought to apply beyond the limits of British India. On a further consideration of the point, however, we have come to the conclusion that the more convenient course—in fact, the only convenient course—would be that an Act of Parliament should be passed conferring upon the Governor General's Council the extended powers required for the object in view, and that our legislation should then proceed here in exercise of those powers. We are led to this conclusion chiefly by the consideration that, if the course we originally proposed were adopted, we should, on almost every occasion on which a necessity for amending our Act arose, find ourselves beset by difficulties of a nature similar to those which present themselves in connection with the amendment of the present Indian Insolvency Act,* and which are fully described in paragraph 25 of the despatch

5. Assuming that Your Lordship will agree with us on this point, we have, as requested by Your Lordship, had prepared and forward herewith (annexed to the Objects and Reasons of the Bill) two drafts of enabling Acts of Parliament, either of which, we believe, would put the Governor General's Council in a position to deal with the subject in an adequate manner.

Of these we give the preference to that marked No. I, which, following more closely the precedents presented by section 288 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854,† and the Indian Marine Act, 1885,‡ confers the requisite powers in wider terms, and has further the merit of being the shorter of the two; but if the generality of its provisions should be deemed an objection, we should be prepared to accept an Act framed on the lines of the draft No. II. This latter attempts to specify with some particularity the several matters in respect of which extended powers are conferred on the Indian legislature; and though we have every hope that it would accomplish its purpose, we need hardly observe that a draft in this form cannot be so confidently relied on as one conceived in more general terms.

6. On collating either of these drafts with the draft Bill which we propose to introduce here, Your Lordship will perceive that while the Indian Bankruptcy Courts would be empowered through the medium of their adjudications, discharges, judgments, &c., to affect matters beyond the limits of British India, their direct action will, as explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, be strictly confined to this country.

To supply what might thus appear to be a defect in the system we rely on section 118 of the English Bankruptcy Act, 1883, which we assume will enable the Indian Bankruptcy Courts to invoke the aid of the English Bankruptcy Courts, and that not only by specific requisitions directed to a particular stage of a particular matter, but also in a more general form, as, for example, by requesting them to entertain all applications of a certain class which may be made to them on behalf of an Indian official receiver or trustee.

7. The local extent clause of the Bill to be introduced here is, as Your Lordship will observe, drawn on the assumption that the Parliamentary legislation will take the form indicated in the draft No. I. It would be altered in the opposite event.

8. In paragraph 27 of our despatch already referred to we said that we thought that the Bill to be submitted to Parliament should contain provisions relating to concurrent bankruptcies somewhat similar to those contained in sections 77 et seq. of the present Act (11 & 12 Vic., c. 21), and we should have no great objection to such provisions being inserted if Your Lordship should be advised that they are essential; but it seems to us on further consideration that it would be desirable to dispense, if possible, with so serious a complication, and we are inclined to think that the rare cases (none have been brought to our notice) in which bankruptcy proceedings are instituted simultaneously in a Court in England and in a Court in this country might be met by one Court surrendering the case to the other. The provisions of section 13 of our local Bill, giving power to annul a receiving order, and those of section 30, giving power to annul an adjudication, will, we conceive, confer upon the Courts in this country the powers requisite for this; but perhaps some extension of the corresponding powers conferred by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, on the English Courts would be necessary.

9. The only further observation we have to make regarding the draft Acts of Parliament forwarded to Your Lordship is that both are restricted to what we consider necessary for our own purposes. If it is desired, for instance, that bankruptcy in this country should be a disqualification for offices in England, or if it is thought that the 13th and 30th sections of our local Bill, to which we have just referred, are not sufficient, but that it is necessary to confer on Courts of Bankruptcy in England a power of staying proceedings in the Bankruptcy

Courts of this country or removing a case pending here, the requisite provisions will doubtless be inserted in England.

10. We have circulated the draft Bill with a view to obtaining the opinion of the High Courts, commercial bodies and others, but we do not propose to take any step regarding it in the Legislative Council until we hear from Your Lordship in reply to this despatch. We desire to introduce the Bill at the opening of the next Calcutta session, and as we should before that time be in possession of the views of all those interested in, or qualified to form an opinion on, the measure, we might hope to pass it through all the stages at which discussion would be likely to arise before the return of the Government to Simla next year. If the requisite Parliamentary legislation should not be complete by that date, we should defer the final stage of our Bill.

Draft Bill referred to in paragraph 1 of Despatch to Her Majesty's Secretary of State, No 32, dated the 12th June, 1885.

DRAFT OF

TO

Amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and consolidate the law relating to bankruptcy and insolvency; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

1. (1) This Act may be cited as the Indian Bankruptcy Act, 1885.

(2) It shall, except as by this Act otherwise provided, come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the official Gazette, fix in this behalf, which date is in this Act referred to as the commencement of this Act.

2. Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Act, the provisions of this Act shall have the same local extent as those of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883:

Provided that the following shall not extend to England, namely:—

- Sections 39 and 40;
- Section 14, sub-section (2);
- Section 18;
- Section 19, sub-section (1), clause (e), and sub-section (2);
- Section 62, sub-section (2).

PROCEEDINGS FROM ACT OF BANKRUPTCY TO DISCHARGE.

Acts of Bankruptcy.

3. (1) A debtor commits an act of bankruptcy in each of the following cases:—

- (a) if in British India or elsewhere he makes a conveyance or assignment of his property to a trustee or trustees for the benefit of his creditors generally;
- (b) if in British India or elsewhere he makes a fraudulent conveyance, gift, delivery or transfer of his property, or of any part thereof;
- (c) if in British India or elsewhere he makes any conveyance or transfer of his property or any part thereof, or creates any charge thereon which would, under this or any other enactment for the time being in force, be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged bankrupt;
- (d) if with intent to defeat or delay his creditors he does any of the following things, namely, departs out of British India, or being out of British India remains out of British India or departs from his dwelling-house, or otherwise absents himself, or begins to keep house;
- (e) if execution issued against him has been levied by sale of his property in any civil proceeding in British India;
- (f) if he files in the Court a declaration of his inability to pay his debts or presents a bankruptcy petition against himself;
- (g) if a creditor has obtained in British India a decree against him for any amount, and, execution thereof not having been stayed, has served on him in British India, or, by leave of the Court, elsewhere, a bankruptcy notice under this Act, requiring him to pay the judgment-debt in accordance with the terms of the decree, or to secure or compound for it to the satisfaction of the creditor or the Court, and he does not, within fifteen days after service of the notice in case the service is effected in British India, and in case the service is effected elsewhere then within the time limited in that behalf by the order giving leave to effect the service, either comply with the requirements of the notice, or satisfy the Court that he has a counter-claim, set-off or cross demand which equals or exceeds the amount of the decree and which he could not set up in the suit in which the decree was obtained;

(h) if the debtor gives notice to any of his creditors that he has suspended, or that he is about to suspend, payment of his debts.

(2) A bankruptcy notice under this Act shall be in the prescribed form, and shall state the consequences of non-compliance therewith, and shall be served in the prescribed manner.

Receiving Order.

4. Subject to the conditions hereinafter specified, if a debtor commits an act of bankruptcy, the Court may, on a bankruptcy petition being presented either by a creditor or by the debtor, make an order, in this Act called a receiving order, for the protection of the estate.

5. (1) A creditor shall not be entitled to present a bankruptcy petition against a debtor unless—

- (a) the debt owing by the debtor to the petitioning creditor, or, if two or more creditors join in the petition, the aggregate amount of debts owing to the several petitioning creditors, amounts to five hundred rupees; and
- (b) the debt is a liquidated sum, payable either immediately or at some certain future time; and
- (c) the act of bankruptcy on which the petition is grounded has occurred within three months before the presentation of the petition; and
- (d) the debtor is in prison within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court under an order of a Civil Court for non-payment of money, or has within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business within those limits.

(2) If the petitioning creditor is a secured creditor, he must in his petition either state that he is willing to give up his security for the benefit of the creditors in the event of the debtor being adjudged bankrupt, or give an estimate of the value of his security. In the latter case he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him, after deducting the value so estimated in the same manner as if he were an unsecured creditor.

6. (1) A creditor's petition shall be verified by affidavit of the creditor, or of some person on his behalf having knowledge of the facts, and served in the prescribed manner.

(2) At the hearing the Court shall require proof of the debt of the petitioning creditor, of the service of the petition, and of the act of bankruptcy, or, if more than one act of bankruptcy is alleged in the petition, of some one of the alleged acts of bankruptcy, and if satisfied with the proof may make a receiving order in pursuance of the petition.

(3) If the Court is not satisfied with the proof of the petitioning creditor's debt, or of the act of bankruptcy, or of the service of the petition, or is satisfied by the debtor that he is able to pay his debts or that for other sufficient cause no order ought to be made, the Court may dismiss the petition.

(4) When the act of bankruptcy relied on is non-compliance with a bankruptcy notice to pay, secure or compound for a judgment-debt, the Court may, if it thinks fit, stay or dismiss the petition on the ground that an appeal is pending from the decree.

(5) Where the debtor appears on the petition, and denies that he is indebted to the petitioner, or that he is indebted to such an amount as would justify the petitioner in presenting a petition against him, the Court, on such security (if any) being given as the Court may require for payment to the petitioner of any debt which may be established against him in due course of law, and of the costs of establishing the debt, may, instead of dismissing the petition, stay all proceedings on the petition for such time as may be required for trial of the question relating to the debt.

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1885.(Part I—Proceedings from Act of Bankruptcy to Discharge.—Sections 7-17.)

(6) Where proceedings are stayed, the Court may, if by reason of the delay caused by the stay of proceedings or for any other cause it thinks just, make a receiving order on the petition of some other creditor, and shall thereupon dismiss, on such terms as it thinks just, the petition in which proceedings have been stayed as aforesaid.

(7) A creditor's petition shall not, after presentment, be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

7. (1) A debtor shall not be entitled to present a bankruptcy petition against himself unless he is in prison within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court and within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business within those limits.

(2) A debtor's petition shall allege that the debtor is unable to pay his debts, and the presentation thereof shall be deemed an act of bankruptcy without the previous filing by the debtor of any declaration of inability to pay his debts; and, if the debtor proves that he is entitled to present the petition, the Court shall thereupon make a receiving order.

(3) A debtor's petition shall not, after presentment, be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

8. (1) On the making of a receiving order the official receiver shall be thereby constituted receiver of the property of the debtor, and thereafter, except as directed by this Act, no creditor to whom the debtor is indebted in respect of any debt provable in bankruptcy shall have any remedy against the property or person of the debtor in respect of the debt, or shall commence any suit, action or other legal proceedings unless with the leave of the Court and on such terms as the Court may impose.

(2) But this section shall not affect the power of any secured creditor to realize or otherwise deal with his security in the same manner as he would have been entitled to realize or deal with it if this section had not been passed.

9. (1) The Court may, if it is shown to be necessary for the protection of the estate, at any time after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition and before a receiving order is made, appoint the official receiver to be interim receiver of the property of the debtor, or of any part thereof, and direct him to take immediate possession thereof or of any part thereof.

(2) The Court may at any time after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition stay any suit, action, execution or other legal process pending in any Court in British India against the property or person of the debtor, and any Court in which proceedings are pending against a debtor may, on proof that a bankruptcy petition has been presented by or against the debtor, either stay the proceedings or allow them to continue on such terms as it may think just.

10. When the Court makes an order staying any suit, action or proceeding or staying proceedings generally, the order may be served by sending a copy thereof, under the seal of the Court, by prepaid post letter to the Court before which the proceeding is pending.

11. (1) The official receiver of a debtor's estate may, on the application of any creditor or creditors, and if satisfied that the nature of the debtor's estate or business or the interests of the creditors generally require the appointment of a special manager of the estate or business other than the official receiver, appoint a manager thereof accordingly to act until a trustee is appointed, and with such powers (including any of the powers of a receiver) as may be entrusted to him by the official receiver.

(2) The special manager shall give security and account in such manner as the Court may direct.

(3) The special manager shall receive such remuneration as the creditors may by resolution at an ordinary meeting determine, or, in default of any such resolution, as may be prescribed.

12. Notice of every receiving order, stating the name, address and description of the debtor, the date of the order, the Court by which the order is made and the date of the petition, shall be published in the prescribed manner.

13. If in any case where a receiving order has been made on a bankruptcy petition it appears to the Court by which the order was made upon an application by the official receiver, or any creditor or other person interested, that a majority of the creditors in number and value are resident in the United Kingdom or in any other part of Her Majesty's dominions beyond the limits of British India, or that from the situation of the property of the debtor, or other cause, his estate and effects ought to be distributed among the creditors under the Bankrupt or Insolvent Laws of that part of Her Majesty's dominions, the said Court, after such enquiry as to it may seem fit, may rescind the receiving order and stay all proceedings on, or dismiss, the petition upon such terms, if any, as the Court may think fit.

Proceedings consequent on Order.

14. (1) As soon as may be after the making of a receiving order against a debtor, a general meeting of his creditors (in this Act referred to as the first meeting of creditors) shall be held for the purpose of considering whether a proposal for a composition or scheme of arrangement shall be entertained, or whether it is expedient that the debtor shall be adjudged bankrupt and generally as to the mode of dealing with the debtor's property.

(2) With respect to the summoning of and proceedings at the first and other meetings of creditors, the rules in the first schedule shall be observed.

15. (1) Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, he shall make out and submit to the official receiver a statement of and in relation to his affairs in the prescribed form, verified by affidavit, and showing the particulars of the debtor's assets, debts and liabilities, the names, residences and occupations of his creditors, the securities held by them respectively, the dates when the securities were respectively given, and such further or other information as may be prescribed or as the official receiver may require.

(2) The statement shall be so submitted within the following times, namely:—

- (i) if the order is made on the petition of the debtor, within three days from the date of the order;
- (ii) if the order is made on the petition of a creditor, within seven days from the date of the order.

But the Court may, in either case, for special reasons, extend the time.

(3) If the debtor fails without reasonable excuse to comply with the requirements of this section, the Court may, on the application of the official receiver, or of any creditor, adjudge him bankrupt.

(4) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor of the bankrupt may, personally or by agent, inspect this statement at all reasonable times, and take any copy thereof or extract therefrom; but any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor shall be punished, on the complaint of the trustee or official receiver, with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine, or with both.

Public Examination of Debtor.

16. (1) Where the Court makes a receiving order it shall hold a public sitting, on a day to be appointed by the Court for the examination of the debtor, and the debtor shall attend there, and shall be examined as to his conduct, dealings and property.

(2) The examination shall be held as soon as conveniently may be after the expiration of the time for the submission of the debtor's statement of affairs.

(3) The Court may adjourn the examination from time to time.

(4) Any creditor who has tendered a proof, or his representative authorised in writing, may question the debtor concerning his affairs and the causes of his failure.

(5) The official receiver, and a trustee if he is appointed before the conclusion of the examination, may take part therein.

(6) The Court may put such questions to the debtor as it may think expedient.

(7) The debtor shall be examined upon oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him.

(8) Such notes of the examination as the Court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to and signed by the debtor, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him; they shall also be open to the inspection of any creditor at all reasonable times.

(9) When the Court is of opinion that the affairs of the debtor have been sufficiently investigated, it shall, by order, declare that his examination is concluded, but such order shall not be made until after the day appointed for the first meeting of creditors.

Composition or Scheme of Arrangement.

17. (1) The creditors may at the first meeting or any adjournment thereof, by special resolution, resolve to entertain a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of the debts due to them from the debtor.

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1885.(Part I.—Proceedings from Act of Bankruptcy to Discharge.—Section 18-20.)

or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of the debtor's affairs.

(2) The composition or scheme shall not be binding on the creditors unless it is confirmed by a resolution passed (by a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of all the creditors who have proved) at a subsequent meeting of the creditors, and is approved by the Court.

Any creditor who has proved his debt may assent to or dissent from the composition or scheme by a letter addressed to the official receiver in the prescribed form, and attested by a witness, so as to be received by the official receiver not later than the day preceding the said subsequent meeting, and any such assent shall be taken as being present and voting at the meeting.

(3) The subsequent meeting shall be summoned by the official receiver by not less than seven days' notice, and shall not be held until after the public examination of the debtor is concluded. The notice shall state generally the terms of the proposal, and shall be accompanied by a report of the official receiver thereon.

(4) The debtor or the official receiver may, after the composition or scheme is accepted by the creditors, apply to the Court to approve it, and notice of the time appointed for hearing the application shall be given to each creditor who has proved.

(5) The Court shall, before approving a composition or scheme, hear a report of the official receiver as to the terms of the composition or scheme and as to the conduct of the debtor, and any objections which may be made by or on behalf of any creditor.

(6) If the Court is of opinion that the terms of the composition or scheme are not reasonable, or are not calculated to benefit the general body of creditors, or in any case in which the Court is required under this Act where the debtor is adjudged bankrupt to refuse his discharge, the Court shall, or if any such facts are proved as would under this Act justify the Court in refusing, qualifying or suspending the debtor's discharge, the Court may, in its discretion, refuse to approve the composition or scheme.

(7) If the Court approves the composition or scheme, the approval may be testified by the seal of the Court being attached to the instrument containing the terms of the composition or scheme, or by the terms being embodied in an order of the Court.

(8) A composition or scheme accepted and approved in pursuance of this section shall be binding on all the creditors so far as relates to any debts due to them from the debtor and provable in bankruptcy.

(9) A certificate of the official receiver that a composition or scheme has been duly accepted and approved shall, in the absence of fraud, be conclusive as to its validity.

(10) The provisions of a composition or scheme under this section may be enforced by the Court in British India on application by any person interested, and an order of the Court made on the application may be executed as if it were a decree.

(11) If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court, on satisfactory evidence, that the composition or scheme cannot in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, proceed without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or to the debtor, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on application by any creditor, adjudge the debtor bankrupt, and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made, or thing duly done under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt under this subsection, any debt provable in other respects, which has been contracted before the date of the adjudication, shall be provable in the bankruptcy.

(12) If, under or in pursuance of a composition or scheme, a trustee is appointed to administer the debtor's property or manage his business, Part V of this Act shall apply to the trustee as if he were a trustee in a bankruptcy, and as if the terms "bankruptcy," "bankrupt" and "order of adjudication" included respectively a composition or scheme of arrangement, a compounding or arranging debtor and order approving the composition or scheme.

(13) Part III of this Act shall, so far as the nature of the case and the terms of the composition or scheme admit, apply thereto, the same interpretation being giving to the words "trustee," "bankruptcy," "bankrupt" and "order of adjudication" as in the last preceding subsection.

(14) No composition or scheme shall be approved by the Court which does not provide for the payment in priority to other debts of all debts directed to be so paid in the distribution of the property of a bankrupt.

(15) The acceptance by a creditor of a composition or scheme shall not release any person who under this Act would not be released by an order of discharge if the debtor had been adjudged bankrupt.

18. Notwithstanding the acceptance and approval of a composition or scheme, such composition or scheme shall not be binding on any creditor so far as regards a debt or liability from which, under the provisions of this Act, the debtor would not be discharged by an order of discharge in bankruptcy, unless the creditor assents to the composition or scheme.

Adjudication of Bankruptcy.

19. (1) At the time of making a receiving order or at any time thereafter, the Court may, on the application of the debtor himself, adjudge him bankrupt. The application may be made orally and without notice.

(2) Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, then, if the creditors at the first meeting or any adjournment thereof by ordinary resolution resolve that the debtor be adjudged bankrupt, or pass no resolution, or if the creditors do not meet, or if a composition or scheme is not accepted or approved in pursuance of this Act within fourteen days after the conclusion of the examination of the debtor or such further time as the Court may allow, the Court shall adjudge the debtor bankrupt.

(3) When a receiving order is made and no creditors attend at the time and place appointed for the first meeting or one adjournment thereof, or if sufficient creditors do not attend then to pass a special resolution, or when the official receiver satisfies the Court that the debtor has absconded or that the debtor does not intend to propose a composition or scheme, the Court may, either on the application of a creditor or of the official receiver, forthwith adjudge the debtor bankrupt.

(4) When a debtor is adjudged bankrupt his property shall become divisible among his creditors and shall vest in a trustee.

(5) Notices of every order adjudging a debtor bankrupt, stating the name, address and description of the bankrupt, the date of the adjudication and the Court by which the adjudication is made, shall be published in the prescribed manner, and the date of the order shall, for the purposes of this Act, be the date of the adjudication.

20. (1) The official receiver shall be the trustee of the property of the bankrupt unless some other person is appointed trustee under the provisions next hereinafter contained.

(2) Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt, or the creditors have resolved that he be adjudged bankrupt, and the Court having regard to the value of the property or for any other reason declares that the appointment of a person other than the official receiver as trustee is desirable, the creditors may, by ordinary resolution, appoint some fit person, whether a creditor or not, to fill the office of trustee of the property of the bankrupt; or they may resolve to leave his appointment to the committee of inspection hereinafter mentioned.

(3) The person so appointed shall give security in manner prescribed to the satisfaction of the Court, and the Court, if satisfied with the security, shall certify that his appointment has been duly made, unless it disapproves of the appointment on the ground that it has not been made in good faith by a majority in value of the creditors voting, or that the person appointed is not fit to act as trustee, or that his connection with or relation to the bankrupt or his estate or any particular creditor makes it difficult for him to act with impartiality in the interests of the creditors generally.

(4) The appointment of a trustee shall take effect as from the date of the certificate.

(5) If a declaration is made by the Court under subsection (2) and a trustee is not appointed by the creditors within four weeks from the date of the declaration, or if the declaration precedes the adjudication, from the date of the adjudication, or, in the event of negotiations for a composition or scheme being pending at the expiration of those four weeks, then within seven days from the date of those negotiations by the refusal of the creditors to assent, or of the Court to approve, the composition or scheme, the official receiver shall report the matter to the Court, and thereupon the Court may, if it thinks fit, appoint some fit person to be trustee of the bankrupt's property, and shall certify the appointment if made.

(6) Provided that the creditors or the committee of inspection (if so authorised by resolution of the creditors) may, at any subsequent time, if they think fit, appoint a trustee, and on the appointment being made and certified the person appointed shall become trustee in the place of the person appointed by the Court.

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1885.(Part I.—Proceedings from Act of Bankruptcy to Discharge.—Sections 21-26.)

(7) When a debtor is adjudged bankrupt after the first meeting of creditors has been held, and a trustee has not been appointed prior to the adjudication, the official receiver shall, if a declaration has been made by the Court under sub-section (2), forthwith summon a meeting of creditors for the purpose of appointing a trustee.

21. (1) In any case in which a declaration is made under section 20, sub-section (2), and with the permission of the Court in any other case, the creditors qualified to vote may at their first or any subsequent meeting, by resolution, appoint from among the creditors qualified to vote, or the holders of general proxies or general powers-of-attorney from such creditors, a committee of inspection for the purpose of superintending the administration of the bankrupt's property by the trustee. The committee of inspection shall consist of not more than five nor less than three persons.

(2) The committee of inspection shall meet at such times as they from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the trustee or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary.

(3) The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present at the meeting.

(4) Any member of the committee may resign his office by notice in writing signed by him, and delivered to the trustee.

(5) If a member of the committee becomes bankrupt, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee, his office shall thereupon become vacant.

(6) Any member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at any meeting of creditors, of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting.

(7) On a vacancy occurring in the office of a member of the committee, the trustee shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors for the purpose of filling the vacancy, and the meeting may, by resolution, appoint another creditor or other person eligible as above to fill the vacancy.

(8) The continuing members of the committee, provided there be not less than two such continuing members, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body; and where the number of members of the committee of inspection is for the time being less than five, the creditors may increase that number so that it do not exceed five.

(9) If there is no committee of inspection, any act or thing or any direction or permission by this Act authorized or required to be done or given by the committee may be done or given by the Court on the application of the trustee.

22. (1) Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt the creditors may, if they think fit, at any time after the adjudication, by special resolution, resolve to entertain a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of the debts due to them under the bankruptcy, or for a scheme of arrangement of the bankrupt's affairs; and thereupon the same proceedings shall be taken and the same consequences shall ensue as in the case of a composition or scheme accepted before adjudication.

(2) If the Court approves the composition or scheme, it may make an order annulling the bankruptcy and vesting the property of the bankrupt in him or in such other person as the Court may appoint, on such terms, and subject to such conditions, if any, as the Court may declare.

(3) If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court that the composition or scheme cannot proceed without injustice or undue delay, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on application by any person interested, adjudge the debtor bankrupt, and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made or thing duly done, under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt under this sub-section, all debts, provable in other respects, which have been contracted before the date of such adjudication shall be provable in the bankruptcy.

(3) The Court may examine on oath, either by word of mouth or by written interrogatories, any person so brought before it concerning the debtor, his dealings or property.

27. (1) A bankrupt may, at any time after being adjudged bankrupt, apply to the Court for an order of discharge, and the Court shall appoint a day for hearing the application, but the application shall not be heard until the public examination of the bankrupt is concluded. The application shall be heard in open Court.

(2) On the hearing of the application the Court shall take into consideration a report of the official receiver as to the bankrupt's conduct and affairs, and may either grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge, or suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the bankrupt, or with respect to his after-acquired property: Provided that the Court shall refuse the discharge in all cases where the bankrupt has committed any offence under this Act, or under section 421, 422, 423 or 424 of the Indian Penal Code or any amendment thereof, and shall, on proof of any of the facts hereinafter mentioned, either refuse the order, or suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or grant an order of discharge, subject to such conditions as aforesaid.

(3) The facts hereinbefore referred to are—

(a) that the bankrupt has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his bankruptcy;

(b) that the bankrupt has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent;

(c) that the bankrupt has contracted any debt provable in the bankruptcy without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (proof whereof shall lie on him) of being able to pay it;

(d) that the bankrupt has brought on his bankruptcy by rash and hazardous speculations or unjustifiable extravagance in living;

(e) that the bankrupt has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any action or suit properly brought against him;

(f) that the bankrupt has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order, when unable to pay his debts as they become due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors;

(g) that the bankrupt has on any previous occasion been adjudged bankrupt, or made under any enactment in force in any part of Her Majesty's dominions a composition or arrangement with his creditors; in the prescribed manner and sent fourteen days at least before the day so appointed to each creditor who has proved, and the Court may hear the official receiver and the trustee, and may also hear any creditor. if the settlor is a judged bankrupt or compounds or arranges with his creditors, and it appears to the Court that such settlement, covenant or contract was made in order to defeat or delay creditors, or was unjustifiable having regard to the state of the settlor's affairs at the time when it was made, the Court may refuse or suspend an order of discharge or grant an order subject to conditions or refuse to approve a composition or arrangement, as the case may be, in like manner as in cases where the debtor has been guilty of fraud.

29. (1) An order of discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any debt on a recognizance, or from any debt with which the bankrupt may be chargeable at the suit of the Crown or of any person for any offence against an enactment relating to any branch of the public revenue, or at the suit of the sheriff or other public officer on a bail bond entered into for the appearance of any person prosecuted for any such offence; and he shall not be discharged from such excepted debts unless the Government certifies in writing its consent to his being discharged therefrom.

(2) An order of discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any debt or liability incurred by means of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which he was a party, nor from any debt or liability whereof he has obtained forbearance by any fraud to which he was a party.

(3) An order of discharge shall release the bankrupt from all other debts provable in bankruptcy.

(4) An order of discharge shall be conclusive evidence of the bankruptcy, and of the validity of the proceedings therein; and in any proceedings that may be instituted against a bankrupt who has obtained an order of discharge in respect of any debt from which he is released by the order, the bankrupt may plead that the cause of action occurred before his discharge, and may give this Act and the special matter in evidence.

(5) An order of discharge shall not release any person who at the date of the receiving order was a partner or co-trustee with the bankrupt or was jointly bound or had made any joint contract with him, or any person who was surety or in the nature of a surety for him.

(4) An estimate shall be made by the trustee of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid which by reason of its being subject to any contingency or contingencies, or for any other reason, does not bear a certain value.

(5) Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by the trustee as aforesaid may appeal to the Court.

(6) If, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt or liability shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a debt not provable in bankruptcy.

(7) If, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated, the Court may direct the value to be assessed before the Court itself, and may give all necessary directions for this purpose, and the amount of the value when assessed shall be deemed to be a debt provable in bankruptcy.

(8) "Liability" shall for the purposes of this Act include any compensation for work or labour done, any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied contract, contract, agreement or undertaking, whether the breach does or does not occur, or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring before the discharge of the debtor, and generally it shall include any express or implied engagement, agreement or undertaking to pay, or capable of resulting in the payment of, money, or money's worth, whether the payment is as respects amount fixed or unliquidated; as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any one contingency or on two or more contingencies; as to mode of valuation, capable of being ascertained by fixed rules or as matter of option.

Effect of Bankruptcy on antecedent Transactions.

39. (1) Where execution of a decree has issued against the property of a debtor, no person shall be entitled to the benefit of the execution against the trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor, except in respect of assets realized in the course of the execution by sale or otherwise before the date of the receiving order, and before notice of the presentation of any bankruptcy petition by or against the debtor, or of the commission of any available act of bankruptcy by the debtor, has been given to the Court executing the decree.

can prove that the settlor was at the time of making the settlement able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in the settlement, and that the interest of the settlor in such property had passed to the trustee of such settlement on the execution thereof.

(2) Any covenant or contract made in consideration of marriage for the future settlement on or for the settlor's wife or children of any money or property wherein he had not at the date of his marriage any estate or interest, whether vested or contingent, in possession or remainder, and not being money or property or of in right of his wife, shall, on his becoming bankrupt before the property or money has been actually transferred or paid pursuant to the contract or covenant, be void against the trustee in the bankruptcy.

(1) Every conveyance or transfer of property or charge thereon made, every payment made, every obligation incurred and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor, or any person in trust for any creditor, with a view of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors, shall, if the person making, taking, paying or suffering the same is a judged bankrupt on a bankruptcy petition presented within three months after the date of making, taking, paying or suffering the same, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the trustee in the bankruptcy.

(2) This section shall not affect the rights of any person making title in good faith and for valuable consideration through or under a creditor of the bankrupt.

43. Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Act with respect to the effect of bankruptcy on an execution or attachment, and with respect to the avoidance of certain settlements and preferences, nothing in this Act shall invalidate in this case of a bankruptcy:—

- (2) the person (other than the debtor) to, by or with whom the payment, delivery, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing or transaction was made, executed or entered into, has not at the time of the payment, delivery, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing or transaction notice of any available act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt before that time.

44. (1) The trustee shall, as soon as may be, take possession of the deeds, books and documents of the bankrupt, and all other parts of his property capable of manual delivery.

(2) The trustee shall, in relation to and for the purpose of acquiring or retaining possession of the property of the bankrupt, be in the same position as if he were a receiver of the property appointed under section 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and shall have such of the powers conferred on a receiver under that section as may be specified in general rules, and the Court may on his application enforce such acquisition or retention accordingly.

(3) Where any part of the property of the bankrupt consists of stock, shares in ships, shares or any other property transferable in the books of any company, office or person the trustee may exercise the right to transfer the property to the same extent as the bankrupt might have exercised it if he had not become bankrupt.

(5) Any treasurer or other officer, or any banker, attorney or agent of a bankrupt, shall pay and deliver to the trustee all money and securities in his possession or power, as such officer, banker, attorney or agent, which he is not by law entitled to retain as against the bankrupt or the trustee. The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1885.(Part III.—Administration of Property.—Sections 45-49.)

[46 & 17 Vic., c. 52, s. 51.] 45. Any person acting under warrant of the Court may seize any part of the property of a bankrupt in the custody or possession of the bankrupt, or of any other person in British India, and with a view to such seizure may break open any house, building or room of the bankrupt where the bankrupt is supposed to be, or any building or receptacle of the bankrupt where any of his property is supposed to be; and where the Court is satisfied that there is reason to believe that property of the bankrupt is concealed in a house or place in British India not belonging to him, the Court may, if it thinks fit, grant a search-warrant to any Police-officer or officer of the Court, who may execute it according to its tenor.

46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 53.] 46. (1) Where a bankrupt is an officer of the army or navy or of Her Majesty's Indian marine service, or an officer or clerk or otherwise employed or engaged in the civil service of the Crown, the trustee shall receive for distribution amongst the creditors so much of the bankrupt's pay or salary as the Court, on the application of the trustee, with the consent of the chief officer of the department under which the pay or salary is enjoyed, may direct. Before making any order under this sub-section the Court shall communicate with the chief officer of the department as to the amount, time and manner of the payment to the trustee, and shall obtain the written consent of the chief officer to the terms of such payment.

(2) Where a bankrupt is in the receipt of a salary or income other than as aforesaid, or is entitled to any half pay, or pension, or to any compensation granted by the Government, the Court, on the application of the trustee, shall, from time to time, make such order as it thinks just for the payment of the salary, income, half pay, pension or compensation, or of any part thereof, to the trustee to be applied by him in such manner as the Court may direct.

(3) Nothing in this section shall take away or abridge any power of the chief officer of any public department to dismiss a bankrupt, or to declare the pension, half pay or compensation of any bankrupt to be forfeited.

46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 51.] 47. (1) Until a trustee is appointed the official receiver shall be the trustee for the purposes of this Act, and, immediately on a debtor being adjudged bankrupt, the property of the bankrupt shall vest in the trustee.

(2) On the appointment of a trustee the property shall forthwith pass to and vest in the trustee appointed.

[11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 20.] (3) The property of the bankrupt shall pass from trustee to trustee, including under that term the official receiver when he fills the office of trustee, and shall vest in the trustee for the time being during his continuance in office, without any conveyance, assignment or transfer whatever.

[46 & 17 Vic., c. 52, s. 53.] 48. (1) Where any part of the property of the bankrupt consists of any tenancy burdened with onerous covenants, of shares or stock in companies, of unprofitable contracts, or of any other property that is unsaleable or not readily saleable, by reason of its binding the possessor thereof to the performance of any onerous act, or to the payment of any sum of money, the trustee, notwithstanding that he has endeavoured to sell or has taken possession of the property, or exercised any act of ownership in relation thereto but subject to the provisions of this section, may, by writing signed by him, at any time within three months after the adjudication of bankruptcy, or, where a person other than the official receiver is appointed trustee, after the first appointment of a trustee, disclaim the property:

Provided that where any such property shall not have come to the knowledge of the trustee within one month after the adjudication or appointment (as the case may be), he may disclaim such property at any time within two months after he first became aware thereof.

(2) The disclaimer shall operate to determine, as from the date of disclaimer, the rights, interests and liabilities of the bankrupt and his property in or in respect of the property disclaimed, and shall also discharge the trustee from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed as from the date when the property vested in him, but shall not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the bankrupt and his property and the trustee from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person.

(3) A trustee shall not be entitled to disclaim a tenancy without the leave of the Court, except in any cases which may be prescribed by general rules; and the Court may, before or on granting such leave, require such notices to be given to persons interested, and impose such terms as a condition of granting leave and make such orders with respect to fixtures, tenant's improvements and other matters arising out of the tenancy as the Court thinks just.

(4) The trustee shall not be entitled to disclaim any property in pursuance of this section in any case where an application in writing has been made to the trustee by any person interested in the property requiring him to decide whether he will disclaim or not, and the trustee has for a period of twenty-eight days after the receipt of the application, or such extended period as may be allowed by the Court, declined or neglected to give notice whether he disclaims the property or not; and, in the case of a contract, if the trustee, after such application as aforesaid, does not within the said period or extended period disclaim the contract, he shall be deemed to have adopted it.

(5) The Court may, on the application of any person who is, as against the trustee, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract made with the bankrupt, make an order rescinding the contract on such terms as to payment by or to either party of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise, as to the Court may seem equitable, and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt under the bankruptcy.

(6) The Court may, on application by any person either claiming any interest in any disclaimed property, or under any liability not discharged by this Act in respect of any disclaimed property, and on hearing such persons as it thinks fit, make an order for the vesting of the property in or delivery thereof to any person entitled thereto, or to whom it may seem just that the same should be delivered by way of compensation for such liability as aforesaid, or a trustee for him, and on such terms as the Court thinks just; and, on any such vesting order being made, the property comprised therein shall vest accordingly in the person therein named in that behalf without any conveyance or assignment for the purpose:

Provided always that, where the property disclaimed is a tenancy, the Court shall not make a vesting order in favour of any person claiming under the bankrupt, whether as under-tenant or as mortgagee by demise, except upon the terms of making such person subject to the same liabilities and obligations as the bankrupt was subject to under the tenancy in respect of the property at the date when the bankruptcy petition was filed, and any mortgagee or under-tenant declining to accept a vesting order upon such terms shall be excluded from all interest in and security upon the property; and if there shall be no person claiming under the bankrupt who is willing to accept an order upon such terms, the Court shall have power to vest the bankrupt's estate and interest in the property in any person bound either personally or in a representative character, and either alone or jointly with the bankrupt, to discharge the tenant's liabilities and obligations, freed and discharged from all estates, incumbrances and interests created therein by the bankrupt.

(7) Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under this section shall be deemed to be a creditor of the bankrupt to the extent of the injury, and may accordingly prove the same as a debt under the bankruptcy.

49. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the trustee [11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 30.] Powers of trustee to may do or any of the following things:—

(a) sell all or any part of the property of the bankrupt [11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 31.] (including the goodwill of the business, if any, and the book debts due or growing due to the bankrupt) by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels;

(b) give receipts for any money received by him, which receipts shall effectually discharge the person paying the money from all responsibility in respect of the application thereof;

(c) prove, rank, claim and draw a dividend in respect of any debt due to the bankrupt;

(d) exercise any powers the capacity to exercise which is vested in the trustee under this Act, and execute [11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 30.] any powers-of-attorney, deeds and other instruments for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act;

(e) deal with property to which the bankrupt is beneficially [11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 30.] entitled as tenant in tail or other owner of an estate of inheritance less than an estate in fee-simple in the same manner as the bankrupt might have dealt with it.

(2) Any dealing by a trustee under clause (e) with any [11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 30.] property to which the bankrupt is before his discharge entitled as in that clause mentioned shall, although the bankrupt be dead at the time of that dealing, be as valid and have the same operation as if the bankrupt were then alive.

The Indian Bankruptcy Bill, 1885.(Part IV.—Official Receivers.—Sections 50-60.)[40 & 47 Vic., c.

50. The trustee may, with the permission of the committee of inspection, do all or any of the following things:—

Powers exercisable by trustee with permission of committee of inspection.

[11 & 12 Vic.,

(2) bring, institute or defend any action, suit or other legal proceeding relating to the property of the bankrupt;

(3) employ a solicitor or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which may be sanctioned by the committee of inspection;

(4) accept as the consideration for the sale of any property of the bankrupt a sum of money payable at a future time subject to such stipulations as to security and otherwise as the committee think fit;

(5) mortgage or pledge any part of the property of the bankrupt for the purpose of raising money for the payment of his debts;

(6) refer any dispute to arbitration, compromise all debts, claims and liabilities, whether present or future, certain or contingent, liquidated or unliquidated, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the bankrupt and any person who may have incurred any liability to the bankrupt, on the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally on such terms as may be agreed on;

(7) make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with creditors, or persons claiming to be creditors, in respect of any debts provable under the bankruptcy;

(8) make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with respect to any claim arising out of or incidental to the property of the bankrupt, made or capable of being made on the trustee by any person or by the trustee on any person;

(9) divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which from its peculiar nature or other special circumstances cannot be readily or advantageously sold.

The permission given for the purposes of this section shall not be a general permission to do all or any of the above-mentioned things, but shall only be a permission to do the particular thing or things for which permission is sought in the specified case or cases.

Distribution of Property.[11 & 12 Vic., c.
21, s. 41.
40 & 47 Vic., c.

51. (1) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs of administration, or otherwise, the trustee shall, with all convenient speed, declare and distribute dividends amongst the creditors who have proved their debts.

(2) The first dividend, if any, shall be declared and distributed within four months after the conclusion of the first meeting of creditors, unless the trustee satisfies the committee of inspection that there is sufficient reason for postponing the declaration to a later date.

(3) Subsequent dividends shall, in the absence of sufficient reason to the contrary, be declared and distributed at intervals of not more than six months.

(4) Before declaring a dividend the trustee shall cause notice of his intention to do so to be published in the prescribed manner, and shall also send reasonable notice thereof to each creditor mentioned in the bankrupt's statement who has not proved his debts.

(5) When the trustee has declared a dividend he shall send to each creditor who has proved a notice showing the amount of the dividend and when and how it is payable, and a statement in the prescribed form as to the particulars of the estate.

52. (1) Where one partner of a firm is adjudged bankrupt, a creditor to whom the bankrupt is indebted jointly with the other partners of the firm, or any of them, shall not receive any dividend out of the separate property of the bankrupt until all the separate creditors have received the full amount of their respective debts.

(2) Where joint and separate properties are being administered, dividends of the joint and separate properties shall, subject to any order to the contrary that may be made by the Court on the application of any person interested, be declared together; and the expenses of and incident to such dividends shall be fairly apportioned by the trustee between the joint and separate properties, regard being had to the work done for and the benefit received by each property.

53. In the calculation and distribution of a dividend the trustee shall make provision for debts provable in bankruptcy, appearing from the bankrupt's statement, or otherwise, to be due to persons resident in places so distant from the place where the trustee is acting that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs, or to establish them if disputed, and also for debts provable in bankruptcy the subject of claims not yet determined. He shall also make provision for any disputed proofs or claims, and for the expenses necessary for the administration of the estate or otherwise, and, subject to the foregoing provisions, he shall distribute as dividend all money in hand.

54. Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends shall be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being in the hands of the trustee any dividend or dividends he may have failed to receive before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein.

55. When the trustee has realized all the property of the bankrupt, or so much thereof as can, in the joint opinion of himself and of the committee of inspection, be realized without needlessly protracting the trusteeship, he shall declare a final dividend, but before so doing he shall give notice in manner prescribed to the persons whose claims to be creditors have been notified to him, but not established to his satisfaction, that if they do not establish their claims to the satisfaction of the Court within a time limited by the notice he will proceed to make a final dividend without regard to their claims. After the expiration of the time so limited, or, if the Court on application by any such claimant grant him further time for establishing his claims, then on the expiration of such further time the property of the bankrupt shall be divided among the creditors who have proved their debts, without regard to the claims of any other persons.

56. No suit or action for a dividend shall lie against the trustee, but if the trustee refuses to pay any dividend the Court may, if it thinks fit, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application.

57. (1) The trustee, with the permission of the committee of inspection, may appoint the bankrupt himself to superintend the management of the property of the bankrupt or of any part thereof, or to carry on the trade (if any) of the bankrupt for the benefit of his creditors, and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the trustee may direct.

(2) The trustee may, from time to time, with the permission of the committee of inspection, make such allowance as he may think just to the bankrupt out of his property for the support of the bankrupt and his family, or in consideration of his services if he is engaged in winding up his estate, but any such allowance may be reduced by the Court.

58. The bankrupt shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors, with interest, as by this Act provided, and of the costs, charges and expenses of the proceedings under the bankruptcy petition.

59. (1) The Chief Justice of each High Court may, at any time after the passing of this Act, and, from time to time, appoint such person as he thinks fit to be official receiver of debtors' estates for that Court, and may remove any person so appointed from that office.

(2) The Local Government may in like manner appoint any such person as it thinks fit to be official receiver of debtors' estates for any other Court having bankruptcy jurisdiction under this Act, and remove any person so appointed from such office.

60. (1) The duties of the official receiver shall have relation both to the conduct of the debtor and to the administration of the estate.

(4) The trustee shall supply the official receiver with such information and give him such access to, and facilities for inspecting, the bankrupt's books and documents, and generally shall give him such aid, as may be requisite for enabling the official receiver to perform his duties under this Act.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 62, s. 60.]

61. As regards the debtor, it shall be the duty of the official receiver—

- (1) to investigate the conduct of the debtor and to report to the Court, stating whether there is reason to believe that the debtor has committed any act which constitutes an offence under this Act or under section 421, 422, 423 or 424 of the Indian Penal Code or any amendment thereof, or which would justify the Court in refusing, suspending or qualifying an order for his discharge;
- (2) to make such other reports concerning the conduct of the debtor as the Court may direct;

Provided that, when the debtor cannot himself prepare a proper statement of affairs, the official receiver may, subject to any prescribed conditions, and at the expense of the estate, employ some person or persons to assist in the preparation of the statement of affairs.

(3) Every official receiver shall account to the Court and pay over all moneys and deal with all securities in such manner as the Court, from time to time, directs.

PART V.

46 & 47 Vic., c. 62, s. 72.]

63. (1) Where the creditors appoint any person to be trustee of a debtor's estate, his remuneration (if any) shall be fixed by an ordinary resolution of the creditors, or, if the creditors so resolve, by the committee of inspection, and shall be in the nature of a commission on percentage, of which one part shall be payable on the amount realized, after deducting any sums paid to secured creditors out of the proceeds of their securities, and the other part on the amount distributed in dividend.

(2) If one-fourth in number or value of the creditors dissent from the resolution, or the bankrupt satisfies the Court that the remuneration is unnecessarily large, the Court shall fix the amount of the remuneration.

(3) The resolution shall express what expenses the remuneration is to cover, and no liability shall attach to the bankrupt's estate, or to the creditors, in respect of any expenses which the remuneration is expressed to cover.

(4) Where no remuneration has been voted to a trustee, he shall be allowed out of the bankrupt's estate such proper costs and expenses incurred by him in or about the proceedings of the bankruptcy as the prescribed officer may allow.

(5) A trustee shall not, under any circumstances whatever, make any arrangement for or accept from the bankrupt, or any solicitor, auctioneer or any other person that may be employed about a bankruptcy, any gift, remuneration or pecuniary or other consideration or benefit whatever beyond the remuneration fixed by the creditors and payable out of the estate, nor shall he make any arrangement for giving up, or give up, any part of his remuneration, either as receiver, manager or trustee, to the bankrupt, or any solicitor or other person that may be employed about a bankruptcy.

Costs.

64. (1) Where a trustee or manager receives remuneration for his services as such, no payment shall be allowed in his accounts in respect of the performance by any other person of the ordinary duties which are required by this Act or the rules made under this Act to be performed by himself.

(4) Every such person shall, on request by the trustee (which request the trustee shall make a sufficient time before declaring a dividend), deliver his bill of costs or charges to the prescribed officer, and if he fails to do so within seven days after receipt of the request, or such further time as the Court, on application, may grant, the trustee shall declare and distribute the dividend without regard to any claim by him, and thereupon any such claim shall be forfeited as well against the trustee personally as against the estate.

Receipts, Payments, Accounts, Audit.

65. (1) An account called the bankruptcy estates account shall be kept by the Court with such Government treasury or bank as the Governor General in Council may direct, and all moneys realized on account of a bankrupt's estate by the Court or any officer thereof under this Act shall, unless it is otherwise prescribed, be paid to that account.

(2) Every trustee in bankruptcy shall, in such manner and at such times as the Court, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, directs, pay the money received by him to the bankruptcy estates account, and the treasury or bank shall furnish him with a certificate of receipt of the money so paid.

(3) Subject to any general rules relating to small bankruptcies under Part VII of this Act, where the debtor at the date of the receiving order has an account at a bank, such account shall not be withdrawn until the expiration of seven days from the day appointed for the first meeting of creditors, unless the Court, for the safety of the account, or other sufficient cause, orders the withdrawal of the account.

(4) If a trustee at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding five hundred rupees, or such other amount as the Court in any particular case authorizes him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Court, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty per centum per annum, and shall have no claim for remuneration, and may be removed from his office by the Court, and shall be liable to pay any expenses occasioned by reason of his default.

same, or any part thereof, as the officer may direct, to the officer, and the officer may invest the said sums or any part thereof in Government securities to be placed to the credit of the said account.

(2) Whenever any part of the money so invested is, in the opinion of the Court, required to answer any demands in respect of bankrupts' estates, the Court shall notify to the officer the amount so required, and the officer shall thereupon repay to the Court such sum as may be required to the credit of the bankruptcy estates account, and for that purpose may direct the sale of such part of the said securities as may be necessary.

(3) The dividends on the investments under this section shall be paid to such account as the Governor General in Council may direct, and regard shall be had to the amount thus derived in fixing the fees payable in respect of bankruptcy proceedings.

68. (1) Every trustee shall, at such times as may be prescribed, but not less than twice in each year during his tenure of office, send to the Court, or as it directs, an account of his receipts and payments as such trustee.

(2) The account shall be in a prescribed form, shall be made in duplicate, and shall be verified by a declaration in the prescribed form.

(3) The Court shall cause the accounts so sent to be audited, and for the purposes of the audit the trustee shall furnish the Court with such vouchers and information as the Court may require, and the Court may at any time require the production of and inspect any books or accounts kept by the trustee.

(4) When any such account has been audited, a copy thereof shall be filed in the Court, and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of the bankrupt, or of any person interested,

69. The trustee shall, whenever required by any creditor so to do, and on payment by such creditor of the prescribed fee, furnish and transmit to such creditor by post a list of the creditors, showing in such list the amount of the debt due to each of such creditors.

70. The trustee shall keep, in manner prescribed, proper books to be kept by books, in which he shall from time to time cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed; and any creditor of the bankrupt may, subject to the control of the Court, personally or by his agent inspect any such books.

71. (4) in any other place, before a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace or other person qualified to administer oaths in that place (he being certified to be a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, or qualified as aforesaid by a British Minister or British Consul or Political Agent or by a notary public).

121. In case of the death of the debtor or his wife, or of a witness whose evidence has been received by any Court in any proceeding under this Act, the deposition of the person so deceased, purporting to be sealed with the seal of the Court, or a copy thereof purporting to be so sealed, shall be admitted as evidence of the matters therein deposed to.

122. Every Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy under this Act shall have a seal describing the Court in such manner as may be directed by order of the High Court of the Province, and judicial notice shall be taken in all legal proceedings of the seal, and of the signature of the Judge or Registrar of any such Court having such jurisdiction.

Formal Defects.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 143.] 126. (1) No proceeding in bankruptcy shall be invalidated by any formal defect or by any irregularity, unless the Court before which an objection is made to the proceeding is of opinion that substantial injustice has been caused by the defect or irregularity, and that the injustice cannot be remedied by any order of that Court.

(2) No defect or irregularity in the appointment or election of a receiver, trustee or member of a committee of inspection shall vitiate any act done by him in good faith.

Bankrupt Trustee.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 147.] 127. Where a bankrupt is a trustee within the Indian Trustee Act, 1866, section 35 of that Act shall have effect so as to authorize the appointment of a new trustee in substitution for the bankrupt (whether voluntarily resigning or not), if it appears expedient to do so, and all provisions of that Act, and of any other Act relative thereto, shall have effect accordingly.

Corporations, &c.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 148.] 128. For all or any of the purposes of this Act, a corporation may act by any of its officers, partners, &c. authorised in that behalf under the seal of the corporation; a firm may act by any of its members; and a lunatic may act by his committee, curator bonis or manager, or, when the matter is one in respect of which he has been placed under the care of a Court of Wards, by that Court or such person as it may appoint in this behalf.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 150.] 130. The provisions of this Act relating to the remedies against the property of a debtor, the priorities of debts, the effect of a composition or scheme of arrangement, and the effect of a discharge shall bind the Crown.

[12 & 13 Vic., c. 51, s. 3.] 131. Nothing in this Act, or in any transfer of jurisdiction effected thereby, shall take away or affect any right of audience that any person may have had at the commencement of this Act, and all solicitors or other persons who had the right of audience before the Courts for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors shall have the like right of audience in bankruptcy matters in the High Courts of Judicature aforesaid.

Unclaimed Funds or Dividends.

[46 & 47 Vic., c. 52, s. 152.] 132. (1) Where the trustee, under any bankruptcy, composition or scheme pursuant to this Act, shall have under his control any unclaimed dividend which has remained unclaimed for more than six months, or where, after making a final dividend, such trustee shall have in his hands or under his control any unclaimed or undistributed moneys arising from the property of the debtor, he shall forthwith pay the same to the bankruptcy estates account of the Court. The treasury or bank at which the account is kept shall furnish him with a certificate of receipt of the money so paid, which shall be an effectual discharge to him in respect thereof.

(2) The Court, with the concurrence of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time, appoint a person to collect and get in all such unclaimed or undistributed funds or dividends, and for the purposes of this section the Court shall have, and at the instance of the person so appointed or of its own motion may exercise, all the powers conferred by this Act with respect to the discovery and realization of the property of a debtor, and the provisions of Part I of this Act with respect thereto shall, with any necessary modifications, apply to proceedings under this section.

(3) The provisions of this section shall not, except as expressly declared herein, deprive any person of any larger or other right or remedy to which he may be entitled against such trustee.

(4) Any person claiming to be entitled to any moneys paid in to the bankruptcy estates account pursuant to this section may apply to the Court for an order for payment to him of the same; and the Court, if satisfied that the person claiming is entitled, shall make an order for the payment to such person of the sum due.

(5) The Court may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, at any time after the passing of this Act pen the account referred to in this Act as the bankruptcy estates account.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

(See section 14.)

MEETINGS OF CREDITORS.

1. The first meeting of creditors shall be summoned for a day not later than fourteen days after the date of the receiving order, unless the Court for any special reason deems it expedient that the meeting be summoned for a later day.

2. The official receiver shall summon the meeting by giving not less than seven days' notice of the time and place thereof in the prescribed manner.

3. The official receiver shall also, as soon as practicable, send to each creditor mentioned in the debtor's statement of affairs a notice of the time and place of the first meeting of creditors, accompanied by a summary of the debtor's statement of affairs, including the causes of his failure, and any observations thereon which the official receiver may think fit to make; but the proceedings at the first meeting shall not be invalidated by reason of any such notice or summary not having been sent or received before the meeting.

4. The meeting shall be held at such place as is in the opinion of the official receiver most convenient for the majority of the creditors.

5. The official receiver or the trustee may at any time summon a meeting of creditors, and shall do so whenever so directed by the Court, or so requested in writing by one-fourth in value of the creditors.

6. Meetings subsequent to the first meeting shall be summoned by sending notice of the time and place thereof to each creditor at the address given in his proof, or if he has not proved at the address given in the debtor's statement of affairs, or at such other address as may be known to the person summoning the meeting.

7. The official receiver, or some person nominated by him, shall be the chairman at every meeting: Provided that, if the Court so directs, the chairman at any meetings subsequent to the first shall be such person as the meeting by resolution appoint.

8. A person shall not be entitled to vote as a creditor at the first or any other meeting of creditors unless he has duly proved a debt provable in bankruptcy to be due to him from the debtor, and the proof has been duly lodged before the time appointed for the meeting.

9. A creditor shall not vote at any such meeting in respect of any unliquidated or contingent debt, or any debt the value of which is not ascertained.

10. For the purpose of voting a secured creditor shall, unless he surrenders his security, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to vote only in respect of the balance (if any) due to him, after deducting the value of his security. If he votes in respect of his whole debt, he shall be deemed to have surrendered his security, unless the Court on application is satisfied that the omission to value the security has arisen from inadvertence.

11. A creditor shall not vote in respect of any debt on or secured by a current bill of exchange or promissory note held by him, unless he is willing to treat the liability to him thereon of every person who is liable thereon antecedently to the debtor, and against whom a receiving order has not been made, as a security in his hands, and to estimate the value thereof and for the purposes of voting, but not for the purposes of dividend, to deduct it from his proof.

12. It shall be competent to the trustee or to the official receiver, within twenty-eight days after a proof estimating the value of a security as aforesaid has been made use of in voting at any meeting, to require the creditor to give up the security for the benefit of the creditors generally on payment of the value so estimated, with an addition thereto of twenty per centum: Provided that, where a creditor has put a value on such security, he may at any time before he has been required to give up such security as aforesaid correct such valuation by a new proof, and deduct such new value from his debt, but in that case such addition of twenty per centum shall not be made if the trustee requires the security to be given up.

13. If a receiving order is made against one partner of a firm, any creditor to whom that partner is indebted jointly with the other partners of the firm, or any of them, may prove his debt for the purpose of voting at any meeting of creditors, and shall be entitled to vote thereat.

14. The chairman of a meeting shall have power to admit or reject a proof for the purpose of voting, but his decision shall be subject to appeal to the Court. If he is in doubt whether the proof of a creditor should be admitted or rejected, he shall mark the proof as objected to and shall allow the creditor to vote, subject to the vote being declared invalid in the event of the objection being sustained.

15. A creditor may vote either in person or by proxy.

16. Every instrument of proxy shall be in the prescribed form, and shall be issued by the official receiver, or, after the appointment of a trustee, by the trustee, and every insertion therein shall be in the handwriting of the person giving the proxy.

17. A creditor may give a general proxy to his manager or clerk, or any other person in his regular employment. In such case the instrument of proxy shall state the relation in which the person to act thereunder stands to the creditor.

18. A creditor may give a special proxy to any person to vote at any specified meeting or adjournment thereof, for or against any specific resolution, or for or against any specified person as trustee, or member of a committee of inspection.

19. A proxy shall not be used unless it is deposited with the official receiver or trustee before the meeting at which it is to be used.

20. Where it appears to the satisfaction of the Court that any solicitation has been used by or on behalf of a trustee or receiver in obtaining proxies, or in procuring the trusteeship or receivership, except by the direction of a meeting of creditors, the Court shall have power, if it think fit, to order that no remuneration shall be allowed to the person by whom or on whose behalf such solicitation may have been exercised, notwithstanding any resolution of the committee of inspection or of the creditors to the contrary.

21. A creditor may appoint the official receiver of the debtor's estate to act in manner prescribed as his general or special proxy.

22. The chairman of a meeting may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn the meeting from time to time, and from place to place.

23. A meeting shall not be competent to act for any purpose, except the election of a chairman, the proving of debts and the adjournment of the meeting, unless there are present, or represented thereat, at least three creditors, or all the creditors if their number does not exceed three.

24. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of creditors is not present or represented, the meeting shall be adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place, or to such other day as the chairman may appoint, not being less than seven or more than twenty-one days.

25. The chairman of every meeting shall cause minutes of the proceedings at the meeting to be drawn up, and fairly entered in a book kept for that purpose, and the minutes shall be signed by him or by the chairman of the next ensuing meeting.

26. No person acting either under a general or special proxy shall vote in favour of any resolution which would directly or indirectly place himself, his partner or employer in a position to receive any remuneration out of the estate of the debtor otherwise than as a creditor rateably with the other creditors of the debtor: Provided that, where any person holds special proxies to vote for the appointment of himself as trustee, he may use the said proxies and vote accordingly.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

(See section 33.)

PROOF OF DEBTS.Proof in ordinary cases.

1. Every creditor shall prove his debt as soon as may be after the making of a receiving order.

2. A debt may be proved by delivering or sending through the post in a prepaid letter to the official receiver,

From the Right Hon'ble Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council,—(No. 4), dated 19th November, 1885).

I HAVE considered in Council the letter of Your Excellency in Council, No. 32, dated 12th of June last, forwarding, with connected papers, a copy of the proposed Indian Bankruptcy Bill and of two alternative drafts prepared with a view to obtaining the Act of Parliament necessary for carrying out your proposals with respect to that Bill.

2. I have thought it right to consult the Board of Trade on the subject, and I now forward, for the information of your Lordship in Council, a copy of the correspondence noted in the margin which has taken place with that office.

India Office, to Board of Trade, 6th August, 1885.
Board of Trade, to India Office, 19th October, 1885.

3. As regards the necessary Parliamentary legislation, I think there may possibly be some difficulty in obtaining, in the first instance, an Act of Parliament such as the Draft No. 1 conferring upon the Governor General's Council the large powers required. That difficulty, however, would probably be much diminished if the scope of the Act of Parliament were extended so as to include the Colonial Governments in the manner suggested by the Board of Trade. The precise shape, however, which legislation in this country should assume cannot be finally determined pending the decision on the proposal of the Board of Trade, respecting which it will be seen that the Board is in communication with the Colonial Office.

4. Your Lordship in Council is desirous of proceeding with the Bill during the coming sittings in Calcutta and passing it through the stages at which discussion is likely to arise before the return of the Government to Simla next year, the final stages of the Bill being deferred until the requisite Parliamentary legislation is completed. To this course I see no objection. The Bill seems well calculated to effect the reforms which experience has shown to be necessary, and I have no doubt that in passing it through the Council you will derive much assistance from the criticisms which you have invited upon it from the judicial authorities and commercial bodies who are especially familiar with the subject.

From J. A. GODLEY, Esq., Permanent Under-Secretary of State for India, to Secretary, Board of Trade,—(No. 1234—85, dated 6th August, 1885).

I AM directed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to transmit, for the information of the Board of Trade, a copy of a despatch received from the Government of India, dated the 12th of June last, with enclosures, namely, (1) a copy of a Bill which it is proposed to introduce in the Legislative Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of adapting the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883 to Indian circumstances; (2) a copy of the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to that Bill; and (3) copies of two Draft Bills, one of which (preferably the Draft marked No. 1), it is suggested, should be passed as an Act of Parliament, entitled the "Indian Bankruptcy (Extension of Powers) Act, 1885."

The present law relating to insolvents in India, as it is to be found in the Statute 11 & 12 Vic., cap. 21, is very defective, and frequent proposals for its amendment have been made from time to time. The subject has recently been again very carefully considered, with the result that the Governor General in Council now proposes that an Act of the Indian legislature should be passed adapting the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883 to India with the necessary modifications, and that in order to give full effect to the provisions of that measure an Act of Parliament should, in the first instance, be obtained (in the terms of Draft No. 1) conferring upon the Council of the Governor General the extended powers which are necessary to give effect beyond the limits of British India to such of the provisions of the proposed Indian Bankruptcy Act as ought to have operation beyond those limits.

I am to say that in requesting the attention of the Board of Trade to these proposed measures, and to paragraphs 4 to 9 of the despatch from the Governor General in Council Lord Randolph Churchill does not suggest that the Board should undertake the labour of considering the details of the Bill to be introduced in the Council in India, except so far as may be necessary with reference to the question of the provisions of that Bill having effect beyond the limits of British India, his Lordship's object being to obtain the opinion of the Board as to the proposal (which, as at present advised, he is inclined to approve) that an Act of Parliament based upon Draft No. 1 should be applied for.

From R. GIFFEN, Esq., Secretary, Board of Trade, to Under-Secretary of State for India,—(No. J. & P. 1933—85, dated 19th October, 1885).

I AM directed by the Board of Trade to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 6th August last, transmitting, by direction of the Secretary of State for India in Council, copy of a despatch, with its enclosures, from the Government of India, with reference to a proposal to introduce a Bill in the Legislative Council of the Governor General for the purpose of adapting the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883 to Indian circumstances.

The Board observe that Lord Randolph Churchill desires to be informed of their opinion as to the suggestion that an Act of Parliament should be obtained conferring upon the Governor General in Council the extended powers which appear to be necessary in order to give effect in other portions of Her Majesty's dominions to such of the provisions of the proposed Indian Bankruptcy Act as ought to have operation beyond the limits of British India. With reference to this point I am to request that you will be good enough to inform His Lordship that the Board of Trade see no objection to the proposed draft Bill No. 1 which accompanied your letter and which has been framed with this object.

The consideration of this matter has, however, given rise to a further question as to the desirability of obtaining a general enactment which should enable the Courts of the United Kingdom or any of the colonies or possessions to give effect to the provisions of the bankruptcy laws of any other part of the British Empire, as is now the case under the provisions of sections 117-119 of the English Act with regard to the different portions of the United Kingdom. Another point which appears also to call for attention in putting forward any suggestion for a general enactment such as that referred to is the advisability of obtaining power to extend, if necessary, the provisions of section 14 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 with a view to enabling the Courts having bankruptcy jurisdiction in this country to suspend proceedings in cases occurring where, in the opinion of such Courts, India or any other portion of the British Empire would more properly be the place for such proceedings, and also to confer upon Indian and Colonial Courts the exercise of similar power where it is obvious that the proceedings should be held in any other portion of Her Majesty's dominions.

These, however, are points upon which the Board of Trade are unable to express any decided opinion without a reference to, and consultation with, the Colonial Office, more especially as a manifest difficulty arises in connection with the self-governing colonies. The Board have, therefore, caused a copy of your letter and its enclosures, and also a copy of this communication, to be forwarded to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in order to ascertain whether it would be considered expedient by the Colonial Office that a Bill should be brought before Parliament with a view to obtaining uniformity of procedure in all the Crown colonies in the matter of proceedings similar in nature to those which the draft Bill No. I which accompanied your letter is designed to cover as regards Indian cases, or to concur in a more general Bill with that object which would include India as well as the colonies. The Board have also suggested to the Secretary of State the desirability of recommending the subject to the authorities of the self-governing colonies in the event of the course proposed being found practicable.

As soon as a reply is received from the Colonial Office the Board will cause a further communication to be addressed to you upon the matter.

It may of course prove undesirable to delay the Bill relating to India in order to include the colonies, but it appears desirable in the first instance to obtain the opinion of the Colonial Office on the question and to ascertain whether the proposal to include them will involve delay.

Extract from a Demi-official letter from S. DIGNAM, Esq., to the Hon'ble MR. C. P. ILBERT,
—(dated Calcutta, the 23rd July, 1885.)

Bankruptcy Bill.

I HAVE been acting as attorney for the Official Assignee of the Court for Relief of Insolvent debtors at Calcutta for a period of nearly twenty years, and have necessarily had considerable experience on the working of the existing Act. I have lately seen in the Times of India a copy of the draft Objects and Reasons accompanying the draft Bill now under consideration, and observe that it runs closely on the lines of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, with which I am to great extent familiar, and some of the provisions of which, namely, as to proof of debts, I consider, already apply to India, under section 40 of the existing Insolvency Act, 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21—

Re T. Agabeg , 12 Cal. Rep. 165.

And it appears to me that an Act framed on the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, will be a great improvement on the existing Act, and will relieve the Court of a great deal of detail business which can as well be done (if not better) by the Official Receiver.

Some of the provisions of the Act of 1883 are, however, in my opinion, not suited to this country, such as the meeting of creditors under section 15, and the appointment of a private trustee under section 21, of the Act of 1883.

I should much like to peruse the draft Bill, and, if you see no objection thereto, to be furnished with a copy thereof and of the draft Objects and Reasons.

It has always been a matter of surprise to me that no Act analogous to the Bills of Sale Acts, 1854 and 1866 (re-enacted with alterations by the Bills of Sale Act, 1878—41 & 42 Vic., cap. 31), has been passed in India. It is a matter of every day experience to find the whole of the stock-in-trade of an insolvent assigned to some bank, or other individual creditor, who, if he gets wind of the insolvency-proceedings, takes possession before a vesting order can be made by the Court, and so sweeps off the whole of the assets.

Registration is at present voluntary only, but even if the parties to the bill of sale agreed to register, the public would be none the wiser, as Book 1 of the register, which is confined to transfers of immoveable property, is the only register which the public are entitled to search.

I drew the attention of my friend Mr. Pitt-Kennedy, when he was in the Legislative Council, and also of Mr. Whitley Stokes, to this, but nothing has ever been done to remove this evil.

I venture to bring this matter to your notice now, as such a Bill as is required would be a valuable adjunct to the proposed new Bankruptcy Law.

From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 2554, dated 22nd September, 1885).

WITH reference to your letter of the 17th June last, No. 1039, I am directed to forward copy of the opinions of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Handley, the Advocate General, the Chamber of Commerce and of certain selected officers on the draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and to state that His Excellency the Governor in Council approves generally of the provisions of the Bill.

2. With reference to the remarks contained in the minute of Mr. Justice Handley, the views of the other Hon'ble Judges will be requested upon the point raised by him, and any remarks which they may offer will be communicated in due course.

From the Government Solicitor, Madras, to Chief Secretary to Government, Madras,—(No. 261, dated 27th July, 1885).

ABSTRACT.—Forwarding the following opinion of the Advocate General, dated 27th July 1885:—

Opinion.

With reference to the order of Government, Judicial department, dated the 30th June, 1885, No. 1722, have the honour to make the following observations upon the Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. From sections 5 and 7 read in conjunction with section 82, it appears that the provisions of the Bill are not applicable to up-country traders not having a place of business in one of the towns named in section 82. Now, as there must be many instances of traders, European and Native, so circumstanced for whom in the event of their failure the machinery of this Bill would be more fitted than that of the Procedure Code. I would suggest that an exceptional jurisdiction should be given to the High Court in such cases. The jurisdiction might be limited by reference to the amount of the debts and to the proportion of the creditors not residing within the jurisdiction of the Court to which the debtor would ordinarily be subject.

3. With a view to the common case of the wealthy member of a firm keeping in the back-ground and allowing a comparative pauper, in whose name the business has been carried on, to file his petition and schedule. I would suggest that the debtor be expressly required to disclose the name of his partners, and that concealment of the existence of partners should be made penal. This disclosure is required in the case which section 102 is designed to serve. Where proceedings are taken in the name of a firm under that section, I apprehend that only the persons named as members of the firm could obtain their discharge. All who desire to obtain their discharge as members of a firm would thus, in their own interest, take care that their names were disclosed. It is not clear, therefore, why, for the case to which section 102 applies, provision for the disclosure of partners' names should be made, and why it should not be extended to all cases indifferently.

4. Unless I have misunderstood the Bill, it seems that the secured creditor may, notwithstanding that the property was vested in a trustee under the Act, still proceed to realize his security. If this is so, I would ask why he is not protected against the operation of section 40.

5. I would suggest, too, that the phrase "secured creditor," which is used in section 8 (2), in section 33 and in the rules should also be used in section 39.

(Signed) H. H. SHEPHARD,
Acting Advocate-General.

From R. S. BENSON, Esq., Acting Registrar, High Court, Madras, to Chief Secretary to Government, Madras,—(No. 2136, dated 31st July, 1885).

WITH reference to G. O., dated the 30th June, 1885, No. 1722, Judicial, forwarding, for the opinion of the Hon'ble the Judges, copies of the draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India with draft statement of Objects and Reasons, I am directed to state that Messrs. Hutchins and Parker, J.J., have no observations to offer on the Bill.

2. Any minutes that may be recorded by the Hon'ble the Officiating Chief Justice and the other Judges will be forwarded hereafter.

From the HON'BLE T. RAMA ROW, to Chief Secretary to Government, Madras,—(dated 1st August, 1885).

WITH reference to the order of Government, dated 30th June 1885, No. 1722, Judicial, I have the honour to submit the following memorandum containing my opinion on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Law of Indian Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

2. It is an admitted fact that the present insolvency law of the Presidency-towns, namely, 11 & 12 Vic., cap. 21, is very cumbrous and defective, and I am glad to find that the bill in question has been very properly prepared in conformity with the latest English Statute, 46 & 47 Vic., cap. 52, inasmuch as the various decisions of the English Courts on that Statute can serve as a safe guide to the construction of doubtful and difficult parts of the Bill.

3. In section 88 of the Bill provision is made for the delegation to a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court by the High Court of its insolvency jurisdiction within certain limits. This, I think, was very much needed, and will enable the High Court to transfer to the Court of Small Causes all petty business in the matters of insolvency. Further, the Small Cause Court at Madras did formerly possess this insolvency jurisdiction, and the present Bill simply restores this power, of which it has been recently deprived by legislation.

4. Having made these general observations, I now proceed to make a few remarks on certain sections of the Bill having in view the peculiar circumstances and status of the people in India.

5. Section 5 (1) a.—A creditor under this clause cannot present a bankruptcy petition against a debtor, unless the debt due to him amounts to Rs. 500. It is true that the English Statute, 46 & 47 Vic., cap. 52, section 6, contains similar provision, and fixes the amount to £ 50; but considering the nature and extent of dealings among Hindus and the provisions in the Bill restoring the insolvency jurisdiction to the Presidency Small Cause Courts, I think the amount may be reduced to Rs. 250.

Section 15, sub-section (1).—All the penal clauses in the Bill appear in Part VIII. I therefore suggest that the penal clauses in the latter part of the sub-section may conveniently be inserted in Part VIII.

Section 27, sub-section (3), clause (a).—I believe that the present Bill is intended to include within its scope the cases of insolvents who are not traders. If so, I think it is very desirable that some distinction should be made between these two classes of people in the matter of production of books of account, &c.

As a general rule, very few people who are not traders keep any account of their income and expenditure, and it will be a very great hardship to refuse an order of discharge to such people, simply because they failed to keep proper books of account showing their financial position within three years preceding their bankruptcy.

Section 34, sub-section (1), clauses (b) & (c).—The phraseology in these clauses is almost the same as in the corresponding section of the English statute, only altering £ 50 to Rs. 500. Considering the comparative cheapness of labour and wages of servants in India, I think that, in the distribution of the property of a bankrupt, priority under this head should be limited to Rs. 200 and not more.

Section 38, sub-section (2).—No doubt the tools (if any) of a bankrupt's trade and the necessary wearing-apparel and bedding of himself, his wife and children, should be exempted from the division of his property amongst his creditors; but the only question here is to what extent the exemption should be limited. I think the sum of Rs. 200 is too much, and it may be reduced to Rs. 50.

Section 65, sub-section (4). I do not think that a trustee should be allowed to retain any sum exceeding Rs. 250, without special authority from the Court. This sub-section, as it now stands, fixes once for all the rate of interest payable by the trustee as penalty on the excess amount retained by him. I think it would be better to leave to the discretion of the Court to settle the rate of interest in each case, but fixing the maximum rate only in the Bill.

Section 112.—This section renders a married woman subject to this Act in respect of her separate property. I do not find any definition of "separate property" in the Bill. The words "separate property," when applied to an English woman, are well understood, but serious difficulties will arise the moment we begin to apply the same to Hindu women. No doubt, section 2 of Act III of 1874 contains a definition of the words "separate property," but that enactment has no application whatever to the cases of married women professing Hindu or Muhammadan faith, &c. Further, the said definition does not include all kinds of sridhanam property of a Hindu married woman. There are several kinds of sridhanam property under Hindu law, and a Hindu woman does not possess the same powers of disposal, alienation and enjoyment over all of them. Again, the Hindu law, as administered in Bengal and Bombay on this subject, most materially differs on some very essential points from the law of this Presidency. I therefore think this section must be altered to meet all these difficulties.

Section 131.—This section does not allow vakils to appear for bankrupts before the High Courts in the exercise of their insolvency jurisdiction. In Madras, vakils have been allowed to appear and act on behalf of all suitors in the High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction, and this concession appears to have been made owing to the comparatively indigent state of circumstances of suitors, and their inability to employ the double agency of a solicitor and barrister. It, therefore, appears to me nothing but just and charitable to permit bankrupts to employ vakils on their behalf, instead of compelling them to resort to the very expensive process of employing a double agency to defend their cause. I therefore propose that this section may be altered as follows:—"Nothing in this Act, or in any transfer of this jurisdiction effected thereby, shall take away or affect any right of audience that any person may have had at the commencement of this Act, and all solicitors or other persons, who have the right of audience before the High Courts of Judicature in the exercise of their ordinary original civil jurisdiction, shall have the like right of audience in bankruptcy matters in the High Courts of Judicature aforesaid."

In Part VIII no provision is made for the punishment of a debtor who does not disclose the names of all his partners under section 102. I think that the concealment by a debtor of the existence of partners must be rendered penal, inasmuch as it is a very common case for an affluent member of a firm to remain in the background and allow a pauper, in whose name the trade is carried on, to apply for the benefit of the Act.

From F. ROWLANDSON, Esq., Attorney-at-Law, Madras, to Chief Secretary to Government, —(dated 3rd August, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to forward, herewith, a memorandum on the draft Bill to amend, &c., the Law of Bankruptcy, and Insolvency in British India.

Memorandum.

Preliminary remarks.—As only opinions on the provisions of the Bill submitted are asked for, it is probably not intended at this stage to open for discussion the necessity or expediency of passing an Insolvent Law in India which shall apply alike to the English speculator and the Hindu Chetti. Commercial tradition in Southern India asserts that the large and wealthy body of traders known as Nattucotti Chetties had not known the sin of insolvency but for the Insolvent Act.

The past history of the relations between commercial creditors and debtors amongst them differs toto celo from the cruel story of the causes which led English legislators to force upon English commerce an Act for the relief of insolvent debtors. Nor does the Native merchant recognise that necessity for the "whitewashing" of Basinghall Street which arises out of the Englishman's practical idolatry of the fetish "CREDIT."

No native, unless denaturalised by a business connection with Europeans, gives chance the place in his transaction which every European firm accords to it.

Where he gives credit against goods he sees them, when to an individual he goes into his circumstances in a way which is impossible to Englishmen.

The result is that no great crash amongst natives takes place. The wealthy man of one day has "bad luck," and his wealth goes to other, but no irrevocable ruin to either him or his creditors is worked: there is simply a change in relations. If a large trader fails in a Presidency-town, it will be found that the suffering creditors are Europeans, and this more especially where the bankrupt is himself a European. It is therefore no certain benefit that we give the native commerce of India in offering it a Bankruptcy Law of general application, and it would perhaps be better to let the similarity of procedure which Mr. Ilbert alludes to in paragraph 9 of his "Statement of Objects and Reasons" be confined to a law which shall affect only those who trade in both the places he refers to on the same lines. It is, however, to be assumed that it is settled that a Bankruptcy Act is to be passed.

As far as I can form an opinion, the Bill now submitted will work well, but I offer the following remarks upon it.

Section 4.—Is it intended that this "receiving order" should have the same force as the "vesting order" under the old Insolvent Act? It would seem so, for it stays action on the part of creditors (section 8), and renders the debtor's alienation of property invalid (section 43 (1)). It is possible under section 19 for a receiving order to be made, a debtor to be adjudged bankrupt, and his property to be vested in the (receiver or other) trustee, all in one day, but such prompt action cannot be often expected.

It is possible for a receiver to be appointed, and whilst no property of the debtor is vested in such receiver, because no adjudication order has been made, the debtor is practically powerless to deal with his assets. In some cases, as, for example, where the debtor is a hotel-keeper doing a business which should be carried on for the benefit of the creditors, this position of affairs might seriously prejudice the value of the bankrupt's assets.

The old "vesting order" which (section 7 of Indian Insolvent Act) "by virtue of this Act" related back to and took effect from the filing of the petition by a debtor or creditor, prevented any possible hiatus in the title to the assets, such as it would seem may arise under the provisions of the Bill.

I note contents of section 37, section 47 and of section 9 (1), but until orders by the Court are made the provisions of these sections have no effect; whereas the old "vesting order" related back by virtue of the Act.

Section 5 (1) (d) and section 7 (1).—The use of the words "local limits" in these sections will be confusing, if not actually obstructive, where the High Court is concerned. A creditor who gets his debtor imprisoned in some small place will prevent his obtaining relief in bankruptcy by means of a debtor's petition; and a debtor who gets himself incarcerated in such a place by a colluding creditor will prevent his being adjudicated a bankrupt. For example, in the recent case of the insolvency of Stephenson, Nixon & Co., a firm trading at Cocanada and Gopalpur, but the bulk of whose unsecured creditors were in the Presidency-town of Madras, the case of no partner complied with the conditions as to "local limits" of the High Court of Madras. The words may have a special meaning attached to them in the Bill, but they already have an accepted meaning in connection with the High Courts. The confusion has been successfully avoided in the Probate and Administration Act of 1881, whereas in this Bill a possible clashing of jurisdictions had to be guarded against. The Bankruptcy Act, 1883, section 6 (1) (d), has "England," where this Bill has "local limits."

Section 27 (2).—Under this provision the Court will make allocations from income similar to those made under the Insolvent Act. The following difficulties have been experienced by the Official Assignee in working such orders. In one case an insolvent drawing between Rs. 300 and 400 a month was ordered to pay Rs. 84. He did so for a few months, and then wrote to say that the moiety of his salary had been attached by creditors subsequent to his insolvency, and that he could not make any more payments. In the majority of cases the Assignee every few months has had to enforce the order by the cumbrous process of obtaining first a rule nisi and then a rule absolute against the defaulter—a process which cost the estate Rs. 12 each time. To meet these contingencies I would suggest (1) that in the case of Government and quasi-Government employees the allocator do have the force of an attachment for a specified amount—probably one-third of the scheduled debts would be a proper sum to name; (2) that where the employers are private firms or individuals the creditors be compelled to name one of themselves as the trustee for the receipt and disbursement of the allocated amount and the enforcement of the order on default.

Section 39.—This provision is likely to give the trustee much trouble as it stands. The receiving or vesting order ought to override every other order of any Court which has not been given full effect to. For example, if assets have been sold under an execution order in pursuance of a decree, but the sale-proceeds have not passed out of the control of the Court ordering the execution, such sale-proceeds, subject to payment of expenses, should pass to the trustee. The throwing on the trustee the onus of proving "notice" is objectionable, and a knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings may safely be assumed.

Section 42 (1).—This section will be found to work mischievously in practice I fear, and I would omit the words from "if the person making" down to "or suffering the same" altogether. If the intention is to give an unfair preference, such intention should be absolutely defeated without reference to any question of time. I would illustrate my meaning by the following imaginary case:—

X, Y & Co. carry on business in London, and have the reputation of wealth, X being on the board of W, an Exchange Bank having a branch in Madras. Y & Co. are a smaller firm carrying on business in the Madras Presidency and enjoying considerable credit because of their known connection with X, Y and Co. and because they are known to have large credit with the W bank. X, Y & Co. stop payment in London, but for fifteen weeks Y & Co. in India struggle on and apparently have the W bank as much at their backs as ever. The 16th week after X, Y & Co. stopped, Y & Co. do the same, and then it proves that the W bank is more than sufficiently secured to the prejudice of the general body of creditors.

Section 88.—In Madras it will certainly prove a great benefit to delegate to a Small Cause Court Judge the disposal of a large percentage of bankruptcies.

It appears from the administration report of the High Court (now in the press) that out of 199 applications in the year 1884-85 only 28 were from traders and over seventy returned assets "nil."

Section 116.—If the services of an efficient officer are to be secured for the post of Official Receiver it will be necessary—at all events in Madras—to make large estates that go into liquidation contribute. Liquidation should not be allowed except with permission of the Court, for the presence of bankruptcy proceedings to hold in terrorem over a debtor is an advantage to his creditors for which they are to pay, even if they wish to come to some private arrangement.

A clique of influential creditors will often secure the manipulation of a bankrupt estate for themselves, to the prejudice of the bankrupt himself and of the creditors outside the clique.

From R. S. BENSON, Esq., Acting Registrar, High Court, of Madras, to Chief Secretary to Government, Madras,—(No. 2266, dated 12th August, 1885).

IN continuation of my letter, dated 31st ultimo, No. 2136, I have the honour to forward a transcript of the minute recorded by Mr. Justice Handley on the draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

Minute.

I HAVE not had time to consider the details of the Bill, but there is one point on which I should wish to express an opinion, and that is on the powers proposed to be given under section 88 to the Judges of the Presidency Small Cause Court. I consider that the power of dealing with small insolvencies would be much better delegated to the Registrar or some other official of the High Court who will be constantly in the way of seeing the working of the Act by the High Court.

2. The Small Cause Court has not the machinery for discharging the duties of a Bankruptcy or Insolvency Court, and such duties would seriously interfere with the ordinary work of the Court, whereas the Registrar or other officer of the High Court would be always conversant with the practice of the High Court under the Act, and would have no difficulty in dealing with such cases himself.

3. My experience as a Judge of the Small Cause Court of the Insolvent Jurisdiction under the Act with which that Court was for a time entrusted is against again giving it a jurisdiction in bankruptcy or insolvency.

From J. A. BOYSON, Esq., Chairman, Chamber of Commerce, Madras, to Chief Secretary to Government, Madras,—(dated 9th September, 1885).

I HAVE now the honour to acknowledge receipt of the Proceedings of Government, Judicial Department, 30th June, No. 1722, and the accompanying copies of the draft Bill of the Government of India to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. The Chamber observes that this Bill is not designed to be of general application throughout British India, but it will for the present affect only the Presidency-towns and a few commercial centres in India and Burma, the number of which the Government reserves the right to increase.

3. It has been ascertained by the Chamber that the present Insolvency Law in India (11 & 12 Vic., cap. 21) came into operation on the 1st August 1848. Since that time there have been no alterations in the law in India, whilst in England the following five Acts have been passed:—

- (1) "The Bankrupt Law Consolidation Act, 1849" (12 & 13 Vic., cap. 106);
- (2) "The Bankruptcy Act, 1854" (17 & 18 Vic., cap. 119);
- (3) The Bankruptcy Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vic., cap. 134);
- (4) The Bankruptcy Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vic., cap. 71); and
- (5) The Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vic., cap. 52).

4. The present Indian Bankruptcy Bill has been prepared on the lines of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883, which, as mentioned in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, embodies the accumulated experience of the thirty-five years which have elapsed since the passing of the Indian Insolvency Act. As the Chamber cannot claim to have any practical experience of the working of the English Act, it would be presumptuous on its part to criticise the details of the present Bill. It may suffice, therefore, to point out one or two matters which might be provided for in an Indian Insolvency Act, but of which no notice is taken in the Bill.

5. There should, the Chamber considers, be only one insolvency law administered in the three Presidency-towns and in Rangoon, Moulmein, Akyab, Bassein and such towns as the Act may be eventually extended to, and it is suggested that Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code should not apply to any Courts in those towns which have jurisdiction to administer the proposed new law.

6. It seems to the Chamber desirable that the High Court should have jurisdiction in insolvency matters over European British subjects within the presidency of such High Court. Hitherto the Madras High Court has held that European British subjects residing in the Madras Presidency were entitled to petition the Court for the benefit of the Act. It is contemplated by the proposed Act to give jurisdiction only in cases where the debtor is in prison within the local limits of the High Court, or has, within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition, ordinarily resided or had a place of business within those limits. A European merchant up-country would, therefore, have to be arrested, and put into the civil goal before he could obtain the benefit of the Act.

7. The omission of section 116 (2) of the English Act, 1883, from the present Bill, is deprecated by the Chamber. The section is as follows:—"No Registrar, or Official Receiver, or other officer attached to any Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy, shall, during his continuance in office, either directly or indirectly, by himself, his clerk, or partner, act as solicitor in any proceedings in bankruptcy, or in any prosecution of a debtor by order of the Court, and if he does so act he shall be liable to be dismissed from office." The Chamber is assured that experience has proved in England that this is a desirable clause.

8. I am further to suggest for consideration that some provision should be made to prevent proceedings in bankruptcy against a debtor continuing in two Courts at the same time. For instance, last year, in the High Court at Madras, a debtor was adjudicated an insolvent on the petition of a creditor; on the following day the debtor filed his petition in the High Court at Bombay, and insolvency proceedings have been going on ever since in both Courts. This must be an additional expense to all parties, and prove most inconvenient, for both Courts have concurrent jurisdiction, and claim the right to wind up the affairs of the insolvent. Section 85 of the proposed Act does not meet a case of this sort, for it only deals with the transfer of proceedings from the High Court of a province to itself, or to any other Court appointed in the province under section 82.

9. It has been objected to the Bill that it is unsuitable to Madras, because the cases of a large majority of insolvents in this city are of a petty nature, involving no intricate points of law, or any points that the existing law, with a few amendments, would not amply meet. But as the Chamber could not reasonably ask for special legislation for this Presidency, and as it approves of the great advance that it is proposed to take in the direction of a clearly defined bankruptcy law for the trading centres of the whole country, it trusts that the Bill may become law, since it seems to the Chamber to be a very complete measure.

From W. MORGAN, Esq., Deputy Registrar, High Court of Judicature, Madras, to Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Madras,—(No. 2827, dated 24th October, 1885).

In continuation of this Court's letters, dated the 31st July and 12th August, 1885, Nos. 2136 and 2266, respectively, I am directed to forward a transcript of the minute recorded by the Officiating Chief Justice on the draft Bill to amend the law of bankruptcy and insolvency in British India, with draft Statement of Objects and Reasons.

2. I am to state that Mr. Justice Muthusami Aiyar has no remarks to make.

Minute by Officiating Chief Justice, Madras.

The proposed Bill, being drafted on the lines of the last English Bankruptcy Bill, is a satisfactory and convenient guide and rule of law and practice, no doubt.

The following list will show the class of cases and of persons that are brought before the Insolvent Court in Madras:—

Year.	Merchants and amount of debts.	Petty merchants.	Government servants.	Private employes.	Pensioners.	Unemployed
1880	6 Rs. 21,221 15 8 78,340 15 10 9,081 12 8 1,25,280 0 0 2,03,016 9 10 73,101 0 0	19	17	73	11	30

1883	16 Rs. 24,504 8 10 1,919 9 4 4,194 6 9 5,312 10 9 7,55,677 13 4 9,721 0 5 5,154 14 10 3,060 3 1 9,876 13 0 53,600 0 0 10,504 4 8 2,80,316 10 3	4	30	90	11	60

1st.—It will be seen that the number of cases of traders owing large debts is small—about between 15 and 20 per cent. of the whole. In many of those trading cases there are no assets available. Some 70 or 80 per cent. of the rest of the cases are Government and other clerks, who have no means except their salaries.

2nd.—During the last 14 or 15 years I have been the Judge who principally presided on the Insolvent Court, and I have found that the present Insolvent Act was capable of being worked satisfactorily in the class of cases brought before the Court.

3rd.—Section 108 of the proposed Act will apply to most cases in Madras, as much of the procedure suitable for cases where the debts are large and assets considerable will be unsuitable.

4th.—In the proposed Bill power is given to a creditor to put the Court in motion and to force an act of bankruptcy (but only after decree).

5th.—However, to enable the creditor to prevent concealment by the debtor of property, I think the procedure formerly in use in England and Ireland of "trader debtor summons" would be very useful. The proposed Bill, however, does not contemplate such procedure, and that procedure has been designedly abandoned.

English Act. A debtor, in many cases, indeed in most cases, when sued, defends, and in the meantime, or perhaps before suit, puts out of the reach of creditor his property. It is very difficult, however, to prove the fact so as to establish as an act of bankruptcy, and when a decree is obtained there is no property to seize.

6th.—There are occasionally failures in the Mufassal of European and Native traders who possess considerable property, and it may be worth while considering whether, at the instance of creditors or in particular circumstances at the instance of the debtor, the parties might not be allowed to avail themselves of the new Act in the Court at Madras.

7th.—It has happened several times that the Official Assignee has recovered large assets, and that the debtor then effects a settlement out of Court and annuls the insolvency by consent. I think it advisable to make provision that such cases should bear a portion of commission of the Official Assignee.

8th.—I have read the proposed draft of the Act repealing the present Statute, and think it requires no observations.

From W. WILSON, Esq., Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 3033, dated 16th November, 1885).

I AM directed, in continuation of my letter of the 22nd September, 1885, No. 2554, to forward copy of a letter from the Registrar, High Court, containing the remarks of the other Judges on the opinion expressed by Mr. Justice Handley with reference to section 88 of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Bill.

From H. T. ROSS, Esq., Acting Registrar, High Court of Judicature, Madras, to Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Madras,—(No. 2900, dated 4th November, 1885).

ADVERTISING to V. O., dated 22nd September 1885, No. 2553, Judicial, I am directed to state that the Officiating Chief Justice and the other Hon'ble Judges of the High Court find themselves unable to agree with Mr. Justice Handley in his suggestion that the powers proposed to be given under section 88 of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Bill would be better delegated to the Registrar or some other official of the High Court than to a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court.

2. It is certainly necessary that the Judge who presides in Bankruptcy and Insolvency should be familiar with the principles and practice of this branch of the law; but it does not appear to the Hon'ble Judges that the acquisition of this peculiar knowledge by one or other of the Small Cause Court Judges is likely to be a matter of difficulty.

3. It is possible that the measures now under consideration, for transferring a portion of the original work of the High Court to the Court of Small Causes, and for creating an additional Judgeship in the latter Court, may result in the appointment to the Small Cause Court of a Judge with precisely that experience which Mr. Justice Handley thinks wanting.

From H. BARRY, Esq., Under Secretary to Government, Bombay, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 8625, dated 17th December, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1050 of the 17th June last, forwarding a draft of a Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and requesting to be favoured with an expression of the opinion of this Government, and also of the Hon'ble the Judges of the High Court and of such selected officers, commercial bodies and other persons as His Excellency the Governor in Council may think fit to consult on the subject.

2. In reply, I am desired to enclose copies of the opinions already received by Government in this matter, and to state that no reply has been received from the Hon'ble the Judges of the High Court, though it has been twice expedited.

1. Letter, &c., from the Chief Judge, Court of Small Causes, Bombay, No. 41 of 7th August, 1885.

2. Letter from the Hon'ble the Advocate General, Bombay, No. 59 of 14th September, 1885.

3. Letter from the Secretary, Chamber of Commerce, Bombay, of 25th November, 1885.

3. His Excellency the Governor in Council, I am to observe, approves generally of the provisions of the draft Bill, and considers that the clause which it is proposed to insert in the enabling Act of Parliament, legalising retrospectively the rules made by the High Court of Bombay on the 31st July, 1878, is sufficient for the purpose.

4. His Excellency in Council is disposed to agree with the Hon'ble the Advocate General, Bombay, that the large powers given to creditors (sections 17, 20, 21 and 22) to control the administration of a bankrupt's estate are likely to be dangerous in this country and to reproduce the abuses which were prevalent under Bombay Act XXVIII of 1865. It will be seen that the Chamber of Commerce express the same apprehension.

5. His Excellency the Governor in Council is not, as at present advised, in favour of the delegation of an insolvency-jurisdiction to the Court of Small Causes in Bombay. In England such powers may be delegated to the Registrar, but this officer has the staff of the Bankruptcy Court at his command, while neither the Judges of the Small Cause Court nor its establishment have any knowledge of such business. Moreover, the Judges are already overworked, and the new duties would involve the expense of adding to their number. On the other hand, the Clerk and Sealer of the Insolvent Debtors Court in Bombay is a barrister of standing, with large emoluments and very little to do. It would, in the opinion of His Excellency in Council, be better to relieve the High Court by delegating to this officer jurisdiction in small bankruptcies (Part VII).

6. If the power of delegating jurisdiction to Judges of the Small Cause Courts be retained, there does not seem, in the opinion of His Excellency in Council, to be sufficient reason for withholding from them the power of committing for contempt of Court (section 88, clause (3), of the draft Bill).

7. In conclusion, I am to state that, in the opinion of His Excellency the Governor in Council, it is worthy of consideration whether in this country it is necessary to arm the creditor with all the weapons which are placed at his disposal by the English Bankruptcy Act, seeing that he already has the power of imprisoning his debtor, which the English creditor has not. On this point the observations of the Chief Judge of the Court of Small Causes at Bombay appear to deserve attention.

From W. E. HART, Esq., Chief Judge, Bombay Court of Small Causes, to Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay,—(No. 41, dated 7th August, 1885).

In compliance with paragraph 2 of Government Resolution in the Judicial Department, No. 4604, dated 1st ultimo, I have the honor to forward the accompanying memorandum embodying my opinion on the draft Indian Bankruptcy Bill.

I may add that my colleagues, to whom my memorandum has been circulated, concur in the opinion I have expressed that the jurisdiction proposed to be given to this Court should be conferred on an officer of the existing Insolvent Court.

Memorandum by W. E. HART, Esq., Chief Judge, Bombay Court of Small Causes,—(dated 16th July, 1885).

I HAVE not sufficient leisure to be able within any reasonable time to offer anything like an exhaustive opinion on all the provisions of an enactment of the scope and length of this Bill. This is, however, the less to be regretted, as Government will doubtless have the advantage of the opinions of the Commissioner in Insolvency and the Official Assignee, whose knowledge and experience of the working of the present law will enable them to offer remarks more likely to be valuable in matters of detail than any I can make; for mine would, for the most part, be based on hearsay and conjecture, since no portion of the present insolvency law has ever been administered in the Small Cause Court of this Presidency as it has in that of Madras. I shall, therefore, enlarge only on those particular provisions which seem most likely to affect the Small Cause Court.

2. Part VI is that which deals with the constitution, procedure and powers of the Bankruptcy Courts. Section 88 provides for the delegation by the High Court of certain of its powers in bankruptcy to a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court.

3. In commenting on a proposal in 1870 to give the Presidency Small Cause Courts an insolvency-jurisdiction I expressed a strong opinion against the advisability of such a course. To that opinion, and for the reasons there given, in which I pointed out various objections and difficulties, I still adhere, and, for the sake of brevity, beg to refer Government to the annexed extract for an expression of my opinion on the general question of conferring an insolvency-jurisdiction on a Court constituted in the manner and for the purposes of the Small Cause Court.

4. As regards the particular provision of the present Bill, I would point out that with our present staff it is quite impossible for us to undertake any more work than we have at present. Of course this objection could be obviated by additions to the Court and office-establishment; but this would entail an additional expense which I think would not be compensated by the value of the work done in insolvency. On the other hand, it seems to me that all the work which the Bill proposes should be done by a Judge of the Small Cause Court could be equally well done by the Clerk and Sealer of the Insolvent Court. This is an appointment which, so far as I know, has always been held by a barrister-at-law; but to ensure the selection of a person of position, capacity and character for the post, some provision might be inserted in the Act. I once held the acting appointment myself for a short time, and am therefore speaking from experience when I say that the duties are extremely light while the emoluments are considerable. If to the present duties of the Clerk and Sealer, which (except on Wednesdays, when he is engaged in Court before the Commissioner for the whole day) occupy about half an hour a day or less, were added those which section 88 proposes to confer on a Judge of the Small Cause Court, the object which that section has in view (namely, the relieving of the High Court of a portion of its less responsible work) would be attained without incurring any additional expense, and the Clerk and Sealer would be usefully employed to an extent more commensurate than at present with the income he enjoys.

5. If the jurisdiction in bankruptcy is conferred on a Judge of the Small Cause Court, I do not think the power to commit for contempt should be taken from him, as in section 88 (3), at least for a contempt committed in his presence. It is advisable that every Court should have this power for its own protection; and in the discharge of its ordinary functions the Small Cause Court enjoys it under the provisions of the Small Cause Courts Act. I do not therefore see why it should be taken away simply by reason of the Small Cause Court acting as a Bankruptcy Court, and only while it is so doing.

6. It also seems to me open to objection that while the appointment with limited powers contemplated by section 88 is one in the hands of the High Court, it should be possible for the Local Government to appoint the same person not only without such limitation but even with a jurisdiction more extensive than the High Court itself. This lets in a possibility of conflict, or at least of confusion, which ought in all matters of jurisdiction to be most scrupulously avoided. Section 82 (c) confers bankruptcy-jurisdiction on any Civil Court in the Presidency appointed by the Local Government, with the sanction of the Supreme Government. Section 83 (a) limits the bankruptcy-jurisdiction of the High Court to the local limits of its original civil jurisdiction. But section 83 (c) leaves it to the Local Government, with the sanction of the Supreme Government, to fix the limits of the jurisdiction of a Court appointed under section 82 (c). There is nothing apparently to prevent the Local Government appointing the Presidency Small Cause Court under section 82 (c), in which case its powers would be equal to those of the High Court. But if its jurisdiction under section 83 (c) were defined to include, say, the township of Coorla, the Small Cause Court would enjoy a jurisdiction more extensive than the High Court. Such provisions seem liable somewhat to conflict with the authority to delegate limited powers reserved to the High Court by section 88. If it is considered necessary that such authority should be exercised rather by the High Court than by the Local Government, I should advise the insertion of words in section 82 (c) restricting the power of the Local Government to the appointment of Courts situate without the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court.

7. In section 91 (a) I should prefer the insertion of words making it clear that an appeal from the order of a Small Cause Court Judge appointed under section 88 (if that section be enacted) lies to the High Court.

8. These are all the sections that seem to me specially to affect the Small Cause Court. I will now offer a few remarks, as shortly as possible, suggested by a cursory perusal of the general provisions of the Bill as they now stand.

9. Section 3 (1) (b).—It would be advisable to define carefully what conveyance is fraudulent in a country like this, where bandmi transactions are rather the rule than the exception, and in an Act which, to judge from section 82 (c), is intended to be capable of application by Native Judges in the Mufassal, who for the most part have not the opportunity of acquainting themselves with the English decisions.

10. Section 3 (1) (d), (e), & (g).—These provisions put into the hands of creditors a very powerful weapon, capable of being used for purposes of intimidation, oppression and extortion. In England, a rich commercial country, such provisions may have been found necessary for the protection of creditors after the power of imprisoning their debtors in execution of their decrees had been taken from them. But in this country, where the system of imprisonment for debt still exists, and where the majority of the population are non-traders, but little removed above the degree of paupers, and of whom the greater number are insolvent in fact, if not in name, I think such provisions are not only unnecessary but unwise, as they are sure to be used by the foreign money-lenders, who constitute the bulk of the creditors, for purposes of extortion, with the result of further depauperising their already sufficiently impoverished victims, on whom they already have a sufficient hold in the facilities afforded by the law administered by our Civil Courts for attachment of person and goods both before and after judgment, attachment of wages, debts due, property in hands of third parties, &c., &c.

11. Section 7 (1).—Is it intended that a judgment-debtor under a decree, say, of the Calcutta Small Cause Court, who, after partial satisfaction of the decree by attachment of his goods at Calcutta, absconds to Bombay, and is there arrested under the Calcutta decree sent for execution to the Bombay Small Cause Court, shall be able to invoke the assistance of the Bankruptcy Court at Bombay, where he has no creditors? This would cause great inconvenience to the creditors at Calcutta, where the original act of bankruptcy was committed (section 3 (1) (e)), and where all the proofs are, and would give a good deal of unnecessary trouble to the Bombay Bankruptcy Court. I think, too, the limit of the period for which, as well as of the period within which, a debtor has "ordinarily resided" should be defined, so as to prevent a person changing his residence merely for the purpose of getting his discharge from a Court in the jurisdiction of which he has no creditors.

12. Much of the procedure laid down in Part I of the Act seems to me to be unsuitable for universal application in this country. In this Presidency, at least, the majority of insolvencies are for comparatively small amounts, and a large proportion of them are of persons not engaged in trade. In such cases I am inclined to think a procedure copied from Statute 46 & 47 Vic., cap. 52, which was framed for general application in a great commercial country, will here in many cases be found unnecessarily cumbersome and expensive. If the assimilation of the bankruptcy law in two countries so differently circumstanced as England and India be really considered necessary or advisable, I should recommend the assimilation, at least at first, to be confined to persons occupying somewhat similar positions; and to this end I would preserve the distinction between traders and non-traders which this Act abolishes, applying only to the former those provisions which are specially adapted to and useful in the case of a commercial bankruptcy, but which in the case of a non-trader will impede rather than expedite the distribution of his assets among his creditors.

13. Section 31 (2).—I think this provision will be found to work very harshly against the debtor, and not to benefit the general body of creditors. In this country the very great majority of the population are entirely dependent, even for the necessities of life, on the money-lenders. These men at present often obtain a decree on a promissory note merely to save the statutory bar of limitation, and then proceed, perhaps, to partial execution against the goods, but still continue the debtor's credit in making him further petty loans. This, of course, they will not do if they are to be debarred from proving these, in case of the debtor's ultimate bankruptcy, no matter at how long a period after, by reason of the act of bankruptcy committed by execution of the first decree. I would recommend the bar to be, not notice of the first act of bankruptcy, but notice of the presentation of a bankruptcy-petition either by a creditor or the debtor.

14. Section 39 (1).—For the same reason I would omit "or of the commission of any available act of bankruptcy by the debtor."

15. Section 40 (2).—This exemption apparently only protects the purchaser at a Court's sale from the consequence of the act of bankruptcy committed in that sale. But it often happens that several sales take place at different times in partial execution of the same decree. Apparently the purchaser at a subsequent sale would be protected from the consequences of the act of bankruptcy committed in that sale, but not from those of one committed in a prior sale in respect of the same decree.

16. Section 43 (2).—So, again, it would appear that if a debtor, against whom his creditor had obtained a decree which was partially satisfied by execution, afterwards paid to the creditor a portion of the balance due on his decree, such payment might be avoided in case of the debtor's subsequent bankruptcy, because at that date there was "available" the "act of bankruptcy" in the partial execution which, of course, was known to the execution creditor at the time of the further part-payment.

17. I think the objection already noticed in respect of the general application of Part I also applies in a great measure to that of Parts V and VI.

18. Sections 105 to 110.—I think these provisions, so far as they relate to debtors, are open to much the same objection as that pointed out in regard to section 3 (1) (d), (e), (g). They are taken from an English Act framed when imprisonment for debt had been abolished, which it has not yet been in India, where the creditors consequently do not require so much protection as in England, and where they are more likely to use such provisions for purposes of intimidation, oppression and extortion. Section 105 (m) I consider especially objectionable both on these grounds and on those pointed out in regard to section 31 (2).

19. Section 115 (3) and (4) and section 116.—I think it would be advisable to make some provision for the validity of rules and levy of fees ad interim.

20. In regard to the general scope of the proposed Act, as disclosed by the Statement of Objects and Reasons, the draftsman would appear to have formed the enactment mainly on the lines of the present bankruptcy law of England as last amended by the Statute 46 & 47 Vic., cap. 52, because, as he says (paragraph 9 and 10), "it is eminently desirable that the circumstances under which a debtor may be declared insolvent, and under which he may obtain his discharge, should be, as far as possible the same in London and Calcutta;" and while the new Act should be "adapted in details to Indian circumstances," it "should follow the English Act as closely as possible, except where there is some substantial reason for taking a different course."

21. I for one do not see this "eminent desirability" in the case of two countries so differently circumstanced as India and England. No doubt it may be a convenience to English merchants in Calcutta and England that they should all be subject to the same law; but in legislating for India generally we have to consult something more than the convenience or wishes or wants of a handful of foreigners. From the mere fact that a certain enactment is found to work well in England (assuming that the English Act does work well there, as to which there would appear to be some difference of opinion among experts), it is not a safe, nor even probable, inference that it would in any way be suitable to a country so differently circumstanced as India. England is a rich commercial and manufacturing country; India is a poor agricultural one. The ordinary Englishman is substantial and independent; the ordinary Indian is an insolvent pauper, hopelessly indebted to his Marwari money-lender. The money-lender's profits in England are, as a rule, spent in the country; in India they are, as a rule, sent abroad, thus acting as an incessant drain on the resources of the most impoverished classes. A large proportion of the English bankrupts are traders; in India a large proportion are non-traders. England has been for centuries in the van of European progress, profiting by the slow growth of a civilization born of native Western ideas, self-acquired and assimilated into her very being; India has barely emerged from oriental semi-barbarism, and such civilization as she has is, for the most part, of foreign origin, which had already attained maturity abroad before its importation, and has as yet been only very partially adopted here. The lowest ranks of workers in English society form, compared with Indian, a small proportion of the population, and non-workers among the poorer classes are an insignificant item; in India the lowest ranks of workers form a very large majority (about $\frac{2}{3}$ the) of the entire community, while the non-workers form a considerable proportion of the poorest classes. In England the judgment-debtor has for years been relieved from the depressing and disabling effects of the system of imprisonment for debt, which in India is still a powerful engine of extortion in the hands of the money-lender, and freely used for the further depauperisation of the most impoverished class.

22. The poorest classes in England, as compared with those in India, are infinitely superior in material wealth, in resources of employment, in education and intellectual activity, and they are in a far smaller numerical proportion to the general community. When we find the two countries circumstanced so differently in regard to the bulk of their population, it seems to me that any law regulating the relations between debtor and creditor must of necessity differ, not in "details" only, but in "general principles;" at least, I submit, the onus of producing a "substantial reason" is rather on those who advocate assimilation, than on those who argue, from the difference of circumstances, the necessity for a difference in the law to be applied to them.

Extract, paragraphs 13 to 19, from letter from Chief Judge, Bombay Court of Small Causes, to Secretary to Government, Bombay,—(No. 9, dated 7th April, 1879).

"13. Against the advantages so to be gained by the proposed change (namely, the saving of a few hours for the trial of long causes on the original side and the saving of a few rupees in professional costs) must be set off what appear to me to be far more than compensating inconveniences which will result to the general public, to the insolvents and their creditors and to the officials of the Insolvent Court.

"14. In the first place, supposing only those unimportant or unopposed cases which at present take up about three hours in a fortnight of the Commissioner's time were transferred to the Small Cause Court; to this extent at least the Judges of the Small Cause Court must divert to insolvency-matters the time which would otherwise be spent in the interests of the general body of litigants. During the three hours so spent from 30 to 40 of those small causes might have been heard and decided the speedy adjudication of which is the raison d'être of the Court.

" 15. In the next place, if the insolvency-work be divided between the High Court and the Small Cause Court, it will be necessary either to have two separate offices establishments, or to be constantly transporting the Insolvent Court officials, with their books, papers, &c., from their present head-quarters in the High Court building to the Small Cause Court, a distance of about a mile, and back.

" 16. The former of these two courses would probably be both the more expensive and the more inconvenient to the public. It would involve the appointing of a new Clerk of the Court and a new Official Assignee, which appointments, having regard to the provisions of the Statute 11 Vic., cap. 21, I am inclined to think it is not within the competence of the Indian Legislature to make. It would also involve the employment of several additional inferior officials, such as clerks, cashiers, and the like. It would further occasion considerable inconvenience to creditors seeking inspection of books, &c., and sometimes necessitate the payment of searching-fees in both offices, especially after the lapse of some years, when it would become necessary to make inspection of old cases. Again, much difficulty and loss to the estate would be occasioned if different members of a Hindu family, or different partners in a firm, became insolvent separately, and went some to the one Official Assignee and some to the other; the difficulty would be doubled of giving titles to purchasers, and consequently of getting fair prices for the properties sold.

" 17. On the other hand, if the present establishment were required to work in two places at such a distance from each other as the High Court and Small Cause Court, there would be a great increase of expense and waste of time and almost infinite inconvenience to the officials of the Insolvent Court. About six additional clerks would have to be employed; and considerable expense would be incurred in the carriage of books, papers and proceedings, while more than the time gained to the Court by the despatch of cases would be lost to the office cum morando et revertendo between the two Courts.

" 18. I believe that in Malras the sections of the Civil Procedure Code relating to insolvency have been applied by Resolution of the Local Government to the Small Cause Court. This has not been done here, and I do not think, if it were done, any material advantage would result, or that many applications would be made by persons seeking the benefit of these sections. The provisions of the Civil Procedure Code cannot avail until after judgment has passed and the judgment-debtor has actually been arrested. On the other hand, any person may avail himself of the provisions of the Statute 11 Vic., cap. 21, at any time, and thus avoid arrest, or obtain his discharge. Almost all debtors would, therefore, I presume, naturally prefer to take advantage of the last-mentioned enactment.

" 19. For all these reasons, and because I am unable to suggest any other method than those already discussed, which will not be open to the same objections, whereby an insolvency-jurisdiction could be conferred upon the Presidency Small Cause Courts, I am of opinion that no such jurisdiction should be conferred. I will only add that if the real object of the proposed extension be merely to relieve the High Court of a portion of its labour, by removing from its cognizance the bulk of unimportant and unopposed insolvency-cases, precisely this result could be attained without incurring any expense and without adding to the work of any other Court by the abolition of the present system of imprisonment for debt; for it is simply to avoid arrest, or to escape from imprisonment, that the great majority, if not all, of the unopposed insolvents apply for the benefit of the Act."

From the HON'BLE F. L. LATHAM, Advocate General, Bombay, to Under-Secretary to Government, Bombay,—(No. 59, dated 14th September, 1885).

WITH reference to the proposed Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, I have the honour to offer the following remarks.

The Bill is avowedly an adoption, almost a transcript, of the last English Bankruptcy Act—that of 1883. So many systems of bankruptcy have been tried and found defective in England that I cannot help thinking that it would be well to see how this latest system bears the test of experience before transplanting it to India. A short time will show whether the Act of 1883 is fitted to become the permanent law of bankruptcy, and which of its provisions require repeal or alteration; and the present insolvency law of India, which, though imperfect, does not on the whole work badly, may without any serious inconvenience be allowed to remain in operation for that short time.

2. The most striking difference between the proposed Bill and the present law is the large power given to creditors to control the administration of the bankrupt's estate. Section 17 allows the creditors before adjudication by a majority of three-fourths, and subject to the approval of the Court, to resolve on a composition or on a scheme of assignment of the debtor's affairs; section 20 (2) allows the creditors, if the Court declare such an appointment desirable, to appoint a person other than the Official Receiver to be trustee of the property of the bankrupt; section 21 allows the creditors to appoint a committee of inspection; section 22 allows the creditors, after the adjudication, to approve of a composition or scheme of assignment subject to the approval of the Court. I confess that I dread lest the effect of these sections should be to facilitate fraud and to lead to a manipulation of the provisions of the Act in favour of the bankrupt. Even now the schedules of insolvents are often filled with fictitious debts in favour of his relatives and friends, and when under Act XXVII of 1865 the temptation to this form of fraud was greater it was notoriously prevalent—I might say universal. I observe that the approval of the Court is made a condition to the exercise of these powers by the creditors. But such an approval is apt to become a mere formality when the responsibility of the initiative is not with the Court itself. I should prefer to have the Official Receiver trustee in every case, and to insist that any composition or scheme of assignment should be directed by the Court, either on the motion and after hearing the Official Receiver.

3. I think that section 2 will not in its present form have the effect desired by the framers of the Bill. Comparing it with section 2 of the English Act, I think it would be construed to refer to the extent of the Bill as regards its effect as a form of procedure against a debtor and would nullify the whole Bill—vide Williams' Bankruptcy Law and Practice (3rd edition), page 1.

4. Section 8, which gives the debtor immediate protection from process against his person as soon as a receiving order is made, is a most important change in the present law. At present the great struggle in insolvency-proceedings is as to the granting or refusing an interim order of protection; there is, comparatively speaking, no contest as to the grant of final orders. It seems to me that the section in its present form is adapted to a state of the law in which imprisonment for debt has almost ceased to exist, whereas in India it is still one of the main remedies by which the execution of decrees is enforced.

5. Section 10 is, in my opinion, a most wholesome provision, though, unless the Court has power to dispense with it in small and unopposed bankruptcies, an increase of the number of Judges will be required. I would make it plain that the Official Receiver and also any creditor may examine the debtor by counsel or solicitor. The requisition of signature by the debtor in (8) should be struck out, as it will tend to nullify the effects of the section. The official record of the evidence is sufficient security for accuracy.

6. In section 59 I do not think that the Chief Justice should have power to remove the Official Receiver at his discretion without good cause.

7. Sections 65 and 67 do not make it clear what is to be done with the interest accruing on the estates of bankrupts. It ought in justice to belong to the estate.

8. I doubt section 88, allowing the delegation of certain powers to the Judges of the Presidency Small Cause Courts, being of any practical use. It is adapted from the provisions of the English Act allowing the delegation of powers from the Judge to the Registrar. But the Registrar has the command of the staff of the Bankruptcy Court, which would not be the case with the Small Cause Court Judge. If anything be done in this direction, I think it should rather be to transfer bankruptcies of small estates to the Small Cause Courts. But I doubt any saving of judicial time or expense being so effected.

9. Part VII, as to small bankruptcies, is a wholesome provision as the Act now stands. But I am inclined to think that in India all bankruptcies should be dealt with in the manner prescribed by that Part.

From J. MARSHALL, Esq., Secretary, Bombay Chamber of Commerce, to Acting Under-Secretary to Government, Bombay,—(dated 25th November, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 4006, dated 1st July last, forwarding copy of a draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and requesting that Government may be favoured with the opinion of the Chamber of Commerce thereon.

The Bill was referred to a special Committee, consisting of the Hon'ble F. Forbes Adam, of Messrs. W. & A. Graham & Co., Chairman of the Chamber, Mr. A. F. Beaufort, of Messrs. Lyon & Co., Deputy Chairman, Mr. W. A. Baker, Manager, National Bank of India, Limited, Mr. E. Miller, of Messrs. C. Macdonald & Co., Mr. J. H. Slight, Deputy Secretary and Treasurer, Bank of Bombay, and Mr. Vizbacandas Amaram, of Messrs. Narandas Lajaram & Co.; and their report having been approved the Chamber has now the honour to submit its opinion on the provisions of the Bill.

Some little delay has taken place in forwarding the report to Government, as the Chamber was anxious to obtain the views of business people at home on the actual working of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883. These, however, not having come to hand, the Chamber will take the liberty of embodying in a supplementary report any additional information which may hereafter be received in response to the inquiries instituted.

The Bill has been read through and discussed clause by clause, and subjoined will be found in detail the additions and emendations which the Chamber considers desirable. Before proceeding to the discussion of the provisions of the Bill, however, the Chamber had to consider two broad questions—first, whether in the existing state of things a new Insolvency Act was called for; and, second, whether in that event the general principles of the proposed Bill were thoroughly adapted to the requirements of the trading community and to the conditions attending insolvency in India.

To the first question the answer was unanimously in the affirmative. The necessity of a radical reform in the bankruptcy law for India has long been keenly felt by the mercantile public, and has on numerous occasions been the subject of anxious consideration. In the address with which the Chamber had the honour to welcome the arrival in India of His Excellency the Viceroy the matter was prominently mentioned as one of pressing importance; and had it not become known that the Bill now under report was in preparation it was the intention of the Chamber to memorialise Government begging that action might be taken at the earliest possible opportunity.

The second question did not admit of so ready an answer. The conditions under which trade here and at home is conducted are so widely divergent, and the nature and cause of the majority of insolvencies so entirely different, that at first sight the mere fact that the Bill is drawn on the same lines as the English Act carries with it a presumption of possible unfitness. A closer examination of its provisions, however, shows that in its leading principle of official control over bankrupt estates it is in a great measure a return to what has long been recognised as one of the best features of the present Indian insolvency law. The signal failure in operation and the gross malpractices perpetrated under the Bombay Act for speedy liquidation,—XXVIII of 1865,—which was a distinct departure from this principle, is still well within the memory of several members of the Chamber; and there can be no question that efficient control by responsible, qualified officials must be a fundamental principle of insolvency legislation in India. The absence of the separate supervision exercised in England by the Board of Trade need not, in the opinion of the Chamber, interfere with the effectual working of the Act so long as careful provision is made in the rules that only thoroughly competent officials are appointed to responsible posts, and that they are placed under the guidance and direction of the Court.

A very marked difference between the law of insolvency here and in England exists in imprisonment for debt being still maintained in India. In the opinion of the Chamber it would be unadvisable as yet to deprive creditors in this country of that power. There are no doubt weighty arguments in favour of following English legislation. Amongst the poorer classes their personal liberty in reality constitutes the security on which they are able to obtain advances; and were the power of utilizing that security once removed the ability of contracting debts beyond their means of repayment would be done away with also, and much unnecessary extravagance in the shape of expenditure on marriage and other festivities—which accounts for a considerable proportion of the insolvencies amongst the lower classes—would thus be avoided. In other words, by removing the power of getting into debt, people would be compelled to live within their means. While admitting this as regards the poorer classes, the general opinion amongst merchants and bankers is decidedly adverse to the abolition of liability to imprisonment for debt from a mercantile point of view. The change would be too radical, and, by altering the basis on which business has been conducted in this country from time immemorial, might seriously interfere with the ordinary course of trade. As to whether or not the Bill in its present form fully contemplates the existence of imprisonment for debt is more a question for skilled lawyers than a body of laymen, and the Chamber therefore would content itself as regards this point by merely expressing the opinion that it cannot be too carefully considered.

So far as Bombay is concerned—and the same probably holds good in the other Presidency-towns—and of the greatest disadvantages which creditors have to contend with is the facilities which fraudulent debtors have for escaping from the jurisdiction of the Court by absconding into Native territory. Amongst a certain class of Native traders—and that by no means the lowest—this is a very common means of evading punishment, and owing to the ease with which it can be accomplished it tends greatly to encourage fraudulent bankruptcy. The Chamber quite appreciates the serious difficulties there are in the way of bringing about a remedy, but it would earnestly solicit the attention of Government to this point. Once made it possible for the writ of the Bankruptcy Court to take effect in Native States, and reckless trading amongst Native dealers will have received a deathblow which no other form of legislative enactment could administer.

The Chamber observes that the draft Bill omits the disqualification of a bankrupt to hold certain offices, as provided under Part II of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883. The advisability of this omission the Chamber is very much inclined to question, as there is no doubt that, especially amongst Natives, the holding of certain appointments carries considerable dignity, and the deprivation of these as the direct result of bankruptcy might have a wholesome deterrent effect. In the opinion of the Chamber the Bill should provide for the disqualification of a bankrupt for holding the following positions where not already settled by existing Acts, namely:—

Member of the Legislative Council.
Justice of the Peace.
Member of the Town Council or Municipal Corporation.
Member of a Port Trust or Harbour Board.
Director of a Joint Stock Company.

The eligibility of bankrupts for these offices after obtaining their discharge might be made dependent on the nature of the bankruptcy as certified by the Court.

• Taking each section in order the Chamber begs to submit the subjoined remarks:—

Section 5 (1) (d).—In addition to this clause the Chamber considers it important for the due protection of creditors that in the case of a firm which has carried on business at a place where a Bankruptcy Court exists, and has partners where there is no such Court, the estate should be wound up at the place where the Bankruptcy Court is, and the partners elsewhere should be liable to have their assets at once taken possession of by the Official Receiver. Further that, if a firm so constituted becomes insolvent, the act of insolvency of any one partner should render all other partners, wherever situated, insolvent also, and liable to have their property attached by the Court.

Section 8.—The Chamber is of opinion that this section should provide that in the case of a debtor with no available assets the Court should not be able to give a complete discharge, but should have power to compel him to proceed with his insolvency. An interim order might be granted in the first instance, but revoked unless the debtor proceeded with the insolvency when called upon to do so.

Section 12.—The advertisement giving notice of the receiving order should, the Chamber thinks, be published in at least one of the leading local newspapers in addition to the Government Gazette, and this suggestion should be made applicable in every instance where notice by advertisement is provided for, notably in section 19, (5), section 27 (5), section 30 (3).

Section 15.—As the time fixed for submitting a statement of a debtor's affairs seems very limited, it is suggested that under sub-section (2) (i), where an order is made on the petition of the debtor, ten instead of three days should be allowed, and where the order is made on the petition of a creditor (ii) the time be increased from seven to twenty days.

Section 16.—The Chamber is of opinion that there is no necessity for making the public examination of a debtor compulsory where a compromise has been agreed upon, and it would therefore ask that the following be added to sub-section (2):—

"Except that in cases where the majority of creditors in number and three-fourths in value are prepared to accept a compromise, the public examination of the debtor may be dispensed with."

Section 17.—In all cases of compromise or composition the Chamber deems it most important that the creditors should have the fullest possible information before them as to the true state of the debtor's affairs; and it seems desirable, therefore, that the following words should be appended to sub-section (3):—

"with a full statement of the debtor's affairs."

• Section 21. the Chamber recommends, should be entirely omitted from the Bill. It may be that in England, where the books of an insolvent are in English and information as to an estate can be obtained without much difficulty, a committee of creditors may prove of considerable assistance in securing a favourable liquidation; but the experience of those who have been concerned with bankrupt estates here is of a contrary character. In all probability it might lead to the appointment on committees of creditors favourable to the debtors, as was found to be the case in working Bombay Act XXVIII of 1865, which was admittedly a complete failure as a means of advantageous liquidation.

The omission of this section and the abolition of committees of inspection would necessitate some alterations in the wording of subsequent provisions of the Bill. For instance, the Chamber suggests that section 50 should read:—

"The trustee may, with the permission of the Court, and after such notice to creditors as the Court may prescribe, do all or any of the following things"; and in sub-sections (3) and (4) of the same section, (2) of section 51, (1) of section 57, and (1) of section 63, the word "Court" should be substituted for "committee" or "committee of inspection."

Section 24.—The desirability of arranging to secure the arrest of an insolvent who has taken refuge in a Native State has already been alluded to, and, if that be practicable, provision would have to be made for it under this section as also under (2) of section 26.

Section 25.—The same provision as for the redirection and delivery of letters should be made for telegrams.

• Section 27 (5) allows 14 days' notice only to creditors of the day fixed by the Court for hearing a debtor's application for discharge. This would be insufficient for creditors out of India, and the Chamber would recommend one month's notice being allowed.

Section 27 (6).—The Chamber suggests that a decree passed by the Court against a debtor when making an order of discharge should be in favour of the Official Receiver only, his office being continuous, while a trustee might have to leave the country at times under very short notice.

Section 34 (5).—Considering that the current rate of interest in India is 9 per cent. as compared with 5 per cent. in England, the rate of interest payable out of surplus funds, as provided for in this clause, might fairly be increased from 4 per cent. as proposed to 6 per cent. per annum.

• Section 36 (1).—The Chamber is of opinion that the preference extended to a landlord's claim for rent under this section is unduly large. It thinks that no power of distraint should be granted after bankruptcy, and that he should not be entitled to a preferential claim for more than four months' rent, subject, moreover, to assets of that amount belonging to the insolvent's estate being on the premises.

• Section 52 (2).—After the words "application of" the Chamber suggests the insertion of the words "the trustee or."

Section 64 (3).—It would be well to have the "prescribed officer" mentioned in this clause defined, as it is important to know in whose hands the very responsible power of regulating the charges may be placed. It is also suggested that "Leave of the Court" be substituted for "proof of such taxation having been made," before payment.

• Section 67.—Having regard to the constant fluctuations in the value of Government securities, it seems to the Chamber that if it could be so arranged it would be preferable, instead of investing surplus funds in Government paper, to hand them over to the Accountant-General, who on behalf of Government should pay 4 per cent. interest on the amount. Such interest, moreover, should go to the separate estates, or, in other words, be for the benefit of the creditors, who are frequently kept out of their dividends for long periods pending the decision of suits and disputes. The system adopted under the English Act, and sought to be introduced into this Bill, of utilizing the interest obtained on funds held during liquidation towards minimising the fees payable in bankruptcy, has rather a tendency to favour debtors to the disadvantage of creditors.

Section 70.—In addition to rendering it incumbent on a trustee to grant a creditor inspection of the books kept in connection with the liquidation of an estate, it should also be provided that creditors should have free access to the books of the insolvent. It should be further arranged that an experienced and trustworthy staff of Native mektas or accountants should be maintained on the staff of the Court (either attached to the Official Receiver or Trustee), through whom reliable translations and extracts from books kept in any of the Native languages could be obtained. Great difficulty is experienced in obtaining information of this character under the existing law, and a creditor employing an outside mekhta for the purpose of searching a debtor's accounts always runs the risk of the man being bought over by the other side.

Section 88 (3).—It appears to the Chamber somewhat anomalous that a Judge of the Small Cause Court should not have the same power to commit for contempt as is granted to the Court under section 23, clause (4). The omission of clause (3) is accordingly suggested.

Section 103.—The Chamber would be in favour of raising the limit for small bankruptcies from Rs. 3,000 Rs. 5,000. In estates within the latter sum it is very unlikely that cases of fraudulent books, &c., will occur requiring the more complicated machinery of the previous portions of the Act; nor does it seem necessary that the examination of the debtor be insisted upon, as provided under clause (c).

From H. BATTY, Esq., Under-Secretary to Government, Bombay, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 784, dated 5th February, 1886).

WITH reference to your letter No. 113, dated the 18th ultimo, I am directed to forward, for submission to the Government of India, copy of a letter from the Acting Prothonotary and Registrar of Her Majesty's High Court, Bombay, No. 21, dated the 28th idem, and its accompaniments, regarding the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

From G. H. FARRAN, Esq., Acting Prothonotary and Registrar, High Court, Bombay, to Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay,—(No. 21, dated 28th January, 1886).

WITH reference to your letter No. 4605, dated the 1st July, 1885, I am directed by the Hon'ble the Chief Justice to forward the accompanying report on the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, prepared in accordance with his Lordship's directions, and to state that the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Bayley, who has been for some years presiding over the Insolvent Court, approves generally of the same.

From G. H. FARRAN, Esq., Acting Prothonotary and Registrar, High Court, Bombay, and C. A. TURNER, Esq., Official Assignee, Bombay, to the Hon'ble the Chief Justice, Bombay.

IN accordance with your Lordship's directions we beg to submit the accompanying remarks on the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

Remarks.

Protection from arrest.—The proposed Act, which is principally taken from the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 now in force in England, where imprisonment for debt has been abolished, provides that the receiving order shall have the effect of protecting the debtor from arrest in respect of any debt provable in bankruptcy. It does not contemplate any opposition on the part of creditors at this stage, but deals only with the granting or withholding of a final discharge. In Bombay, where imprisonment for debt is still permitted and no protection is afforded by the vesting order under the present Act, the chief object of the majority of insolvents is to obtain immunity from arrest at first by means of interim protection-orders, and afterwards by obtaining their personal discharge under section 47, after which they but rarely trouble themselves about applying for their final discharge; while the principal object of the opposing creditor is to prevent an insolvent from obtaining such immunity, in order that he may be able to secure better terms by making use of his power of arrest. A practical result would be that the large proportion of petitioning debtors, who come to the Court for the purpose solely of obtaining protection from arrest, would have no object in proceeding with their petitions, and would probably neglect to take any further steps after the receiving order was made. To remedy this it is suggested that the Court should have power both (1), to dismiss petitions for want of prosecution, and (2) to cancel so much of the receiving order under section 8 (1) as gives protection from arrest. It would also seem necessary that the Court should have power to direct the discharge from jail of a debtor imprisoned before the making of the receiving order: there does not appear to be any provision to this effect in the proposed Act.

Adjudication of bankruptcy.—The change made by the proposed Act with respect to the adjudication of bankruptcy is highly advantageous. Under the provisions of the Act in respect to that subject it will be possible to have debtors adjudged insolvent before they have had time to dispose of all their property, and creditors will in all probability make use of those provisions more and more if the Act is found to work well. It is very important that adjudicated insolvents should (1) make the statement required by section 15 and (2) come up for the public examination directed by section 16. Debtors who have been adjudged insolvent almost invariably abscond from Bombay into Native States, and there is no power under the present Act to compel their return. Such a power extending throughout British India is given by section 24 of the proposed Act; but as absconding debtors almost invariably abscond to Native States it would largely increase the efficacy of the Act if it were found possible to extend that power to Native States also.

Composition with creditors.—The change made by the proposed Act with respect to composition with creditors is also beneficial. The present Act is silent on the subject, and the result is that documents purporting to be assignments in favour of creditors hastily executed just before the date of the vesting order are often set up with the effect of either entailing troublesome and expensive litigation, or of keeping from the Court all power of investigating the insolvent's affairs, even though a majority of creditors may desire such investigation. Considering, however, that the public examination of debtors will in many cases involve the disclosure of affairs of creditors which they may naturally object to be made public, power might be given to the Court in cases of composition with creditors to dispense with the public examination of debtors when a sufficient majority of creditors desire or consent to it.

Property of bankrupt.—The words of section 38 (1), which deals with the property of the bankrupt, are not so wide as those of section 7 of the present Act, and it is important, especially when dealing with property in the Mufassal or outside British India, where the law is imperfectly understood, that the words of the Act should clearly and distinctly cover the property of the bankrupt, whether within British India or without.

Discharge of bankrupt.—Under the present Act there are two sorts of discharge that can be granted to an insolvent by the Court—(1) freedom from personal imprisonment for debt, and (2) freedom from liability of after-acquired property. It is one of the greatest faults of the present Act that a separate application has to be made for each, and the Court at the hearing of the matters of an insolvent's petition under section 35, where all the facts regarding his conduct are before it, makes no order as to the latter but only as to the former sort of discharge. In Bombay the principal object of the debtor in coming to the Court is to obtain his personal discharge, and the object of an opposing creditor is either to force the insolvent to buy off his opposition or to induce the Court to dismiss his petition. The reason is that a creditor in Bombay in opposing an insolvent is invariably working in his own interest and not in that of the general body; and he considers that if the petition is dismissed he will succeed in obtaining a greater portion of the insolvent's property than if it were distributed by the Official Assignee. The power of dismissing petitions given by section 47, and used as a penalty for misconduct, encourages this system. The proposed Act will effect a great improvement in this respect, as under it the Court will consider the whole question of the insolvent's course of dealing and conduct, and will either grant him his discharge (conditional or otherwise), or punish him under the Act itself.

Penalties.—The provisions of sections 27, 105 and 107, which deal with penalties and punishments, are much more severe than in the present Act. It may be noted that a bankrupt cannot under them obtain an unconditional discharge more than once, and, if undischarged, he is liable to be punished by imprisonment if he obtains credit to the extent of Rs. 200 without informing his creditor. There is a class of penalties under the English Act which has been omitted from the proposed Act, namely, disqualification of a bankrupt to hold certain offices. It, however, seems desirable that no penalty should be omitted which may have the effect of causing the mercantile community to regard bankruptcy as a disgrace, which in Bombay, since the share mania, they have to a great extent ceased to do. And for this reason it would appear advisable to make the disability to hold certain positions which may be regarded as honourable the direct result of bankruptcy.

Decrees against bankrupt.—Passing a decree in favour of the trustees against the bankrupt is a punishment often enforced in England in cases where no assets are forthcoming in the bankruptcy. The practice in Bombay has been to pass such a decree in every case, and, considering the great facilities bankrupts have in this country for concealing their property from the Court, that practice seems a good one, as affording a ready way of recovering from the bankrupt after his discharge property that he may be shown to be possessed of without having to prove that it was concealed at the time of the discharge. It would probably be found more convenient if such decrees were passed in all cases in favour of the Official Receiver, as a trustee might not be forthcoming some years after the bankruptcy when required to act. Such decrees should also, if possible, be exempted from the operation of the law of limitation as provided in the present Act, as it would be manifestly impossible, as well as useless, for the Official Receiver to take the necessary steps for keeping all such decrees alive, and equally impossible to foresee in what cases it would be desirable to do so.

Procedure.—The procedure under the proposed Act will largely increase the work of the Court—an essential feature of the Act in the public examination of the bankrupt in every case. During the last three years there have been on an average over forty petitions presented each month, which under the proposed Act would entail an equal number of public examinations, for the taking of which the time at present allotted for sittings in insolvency would be wholly inadequate. The provisions of section 99 of the English Act, or such modification of them as may be considered proper, might with advantage be inserted in this Act, and work of a formal nature, such as taking such examinations in unopposed cases, granting receiving orders and other work of a similar nature, relegated to an officer of the Court. In any case, whether the public examination be taken by the Court or by an officer, the provision in section 16, by which the notes of examination are to be signed by the debtor, might, with advantage, be omitted, as it would involve not only the loss of time occasioned by reading over and interpreting his deposition to a Native witness, but, especially in the case of a debtor subjected to a searching examination, may result in a refusal to sign the notes as taken down or an endeavour to retract previous admissions or statements.

Unclaimed dividends.—The proposed Act provides (section 132) for the payment of any unclaimed dividends under it to the bankruptcy estates account, but omits the provision contained in the corresponding section of the English Act as to the disposal of the unclaimed dividends under the present Act. These unclaimed dividends in Bombay amount to upwards of eight lakhs, of which between two and three lakhs are in respect of proved claims in estates in which redistribution has been already made under Act XXVII of 1841, and which cannot be further distributed under any Act now in force. The remainder is to a large extent made up of dividends in respect of debts admitted by insolvents in their schedules as due, but which have not been proved, and are for the most part unprovable; and it is doubtful whether these dividends can be distributed under the Act of 1841. Section 7 of Bill No. 3 of 1881, which was intended to remedy this state of circumstances, has never become law, and it therefore seems necessary that some means of dealing with those funds should be provided by the proposed Act. The interest upon the first class of those funds at least might be applied towards the general purposes of the Act; otherwise there may be a difficulty at first in working the proposed Act, unless a very high scale of fees is adopted.

Appointment of Official Receiver.—Under the present Insolvent Act the Official Assignee can only be removed from office in the cases specified in section 18. By the proposed Act the removal of the Official Receiver will depend solely on the pleasure of the Chief Justice. There does not appear to be any reason why the position of the Official Receiver should be less independent than that of the Official Assignee, or his tenure of office less secure.

A few remarks dealing with some of the sections more in detail are annexed.

Appendix.

Section 2. Regarding application of section 48 to England.—Section 48 could hardly be made applicable to England, but nevertheless cases may arise in which onerous property in England may become vested in the trustee in India. Is not some provision necessary to provide for disclaimer by the trustee in such cases?

Section 21 (2).—The committee of inspection might very well be dispensed with, or at all events confined to cases in which an order is made under section 20, sub-section (2).

In cases in which the Official Receiver is acting, reference to the Court for necessary powers and authority will be more satisfactory and cause for less delay than to committees of creditors.

See 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 28.

In that event some such words as the following might be added to section 21 (2):—

“by and with such notice to such creditors as the Court may think fit to direct.”

Section 24.—As has been already pointed out, the value of this section would be very greatly increased if it enabled debtors absconding to Native States to be also arrested.

In any case, however, the section would seem to be incomplete, as it does not distinctly provide for the case of a debtor who may have actually absconded from the local jurisdiction of the Court to some other part of British India, but only deals with the case of a debtor who is “about to abscond with a view,” &c.

Section 24 (1). Municipal rates.—Port-trust dues, &c., are at present only entitled to dividends.

Sub-section (5). Interest after payment of principal in full.—As decrees in India carry interest at 6 per cent., in the same way interest after the receiving order should be allowed in India at 6 per cent. also.

Section 36.—Section 36 of the proposed Act gives a landlord the power to exercise, with certain restrictions his right of distraint upon the property of the bankrupt for rent due. This right was taken away by the present Act, and the change will considerably hamper the Official Receiver when an estate first comes to his hands. Landlords, on the insolvency of their tenants, often put padlocks on the godowns or premises let to them, and claim a lien for rent, and as rent in Bombay is heavy, and the value of the goods so locked up uncertain, such claims, even under the present law, are not easily disposed of. The proposed change is, we think, to be deprecated; but if it is considered that the landlords should have any preferential claim, it would be more convenient to allow a preferential claim for two months' rent (not exceeding the value of the goods on the premises let by them) under section 34, and leave the law otherwise unchanged.

Section 38, clause (2).—The words "wearing-apparel and bedding" are hardly sufficiently wide. In India cooking-pots, &c., are more necessary even than bedding. The words of the Act 11 & 12 Vic., cap 21, section 7, are "wearing apparel, bedding, and other such necessaries."

Section 51 (2).—The distribution of a dividend depends almost entirely on the creditors and not on the trustee.

The words "shall be declared and be payable" might be substituted for the words "shall be declared and distributed."

As to the period of four months prescribed by this section for the declaration of the first dividend, see note for section 99.

Section 57 (2). Allowance to bankrupt.—We think the allowance to a bankrupt should be limited both as to amount and as to duration. The limit we would propose is Rs. 100 per month extending over not more than ten months.

It must be remembered that in all bankruptcies the bankrupt himself has always influence in the liquidation of his estate.

A considerable body of the creditors, either through friendship or relationship, or because they have received, or expect to receive, special preference, are always ready to support the bankrupt.

In large estates there will always be danger of candidates for trusteeship making a bid for the bankrupt's influence by promise of a good allowance if they are appointed.

Some limit of time is necessary, or an insolvent in receipt of a good allowance will be tempted to protract the liquidation of his estate.

Section 61. Official Receiver's report.—Before the discharge of any bankrupt under section 27 of the new proposed Act, the Official Receiver has in every case to prepare a report, which has to be taken into consideration by the Court at the hearing of the bankrupt's application under that section. In order to make such reports of any value, the Official Receiver must (in cases of insolvency of traders) have the assistance of experienced Native accountants capable of themselves reading and understanding Native account-books.

Account-books in Bombay are kept not only in different languages and character, but even on different principles, varying according to the particular trade or business carried on by the bankrupt or to the skill or ignorance of the mehtas employed by him.

The accountants would have to be high class men, well paid, and in the regular employ of the office (not engaged for any particular estate), to ensure trustworthy performance of their work.

The examinations of account-books so made would be of the greatest value both to creditors who might wish to oppose and also to the Court itself at the hearing.

This would, however, seem to be a matter to be dealt with by rules under the Act, and not in the Act itself.

Section 65 (5).—We do not consider that this provision can be of any value in India.

Section 67. Investment of moneys.—Under this section investment is made out of the "bankruptcy estates account" generally, and not out of the moneys belonging to any particular estates, and the whole interest so realized is appropriated for the general purposes of the Act (section 67 (3)).

Were it possible to distribute the moneys to creditors as quickly as is contemplated in the Act, there would be no great hardship in the present provision. In Bombay, however, considerable sums have always to be reserved to meet the possible costs of the litigation that invariably ensues on any large insolvency proving unsuccessful, and (as has already been pointed out) claims of creditors cannot be quickly adjusted.

It would be hard on creditors that money so locked up should not be invested for their benefit.

Perhaps the simplest way would be to leave the provisions of the Act as they are, and out of the interest accruing under the provisions of this section (67) to allow interest at 4 per cent. on all sums paid into the "bankruptcy estates account" until dividend is declared.

Section 68.—It appears from paragraph 29 of the draft "Objects and Reasons" that this section has been put in at the request of the Government of Madras. We do not think that the section can be of any value in Bombay while the High Court and the Small Cause Court are so far apart. It would be necessary to have a special Official Receiver and Registrar, with proper office establishments, to carry on the insolvency business of two separate Courts.

We believe that in 1880 both the High Court and the Small Cause Court of Bombay were opposed to the introduction of this provision.

Sections 92 (4); 124. Times.—All "times" allowed for the act are far too short; and though full power of extension is given by section 92 (4), yet the times mentioned in the different sections for each Act should, as far as possible, approximate the average time within which such act ought to be done.

There are several reasons why longer times will be required in Bombay than in England—

- (1) the Courts sit weekly only;
- (2) books of account are always in arrears, especially during the busy season, and take a long time to make up, and only a very limited number of mehtas can be employed on them at once;
- (3) traders of any importance always have goods on their way to England or elsewhere, the accounts of which are not received for a considerable time;
- (4) no estate of any size can be realized without litigation owing to the invariable attempts made by bankrupts to conceal property or favour particular creditors; and litigation in Bombay is both tedious and expensive.

Section 99. Petitions of partners in different Courts.—Under this section we suppose petitions by partners of firms carrying on business in the different Presidency towns would be transferred to the Court in which the first petition was filed; otherwise some provision is required on this point. See also section 13.

Section 103 (3).—Small bankruptcies under Part VII, section 103, might, with advantage, be extended to Rs. 6,000.

Where the gross assets of an estate are not more than Rs. 6,000, it would rarely be worth the creditor's while to attend meetings and take any direct interest in the winding up of the estate, nor will the estate itself stand the expenses of proceedings prescribed by the Act and by the first schedule.

Creditors may of course in such cases wish to have the bankrupt's affairs more expensively investigated and the bankrupt himself punished; but provision is made for this by clause (c) of this section (103).

Section 116 (2).—If the suggestions contained above regarding business to be done before the Registrar be adopted, it might be convenient to provide for the remuneration of that officer also under this section.

Section 120, clause (4).—We doubt if this provision is sufficient in the case of Native States. Would it not be simpler to allow affidavits to be also made before the British Resident or Consul or Political Agent?

Lien on bankrupt's books of account by solicitors and others.—There have been several cases lately in Bombay of solicitors claiming a lien on insolvent's books of account and so making it extremely difficult for creditors to get full and free inspection of them. Such claims might, moreover, be set up in collusion with an insolvent.

Section 121 of the English Act of 1861 abolished claims for lien of an insolvent's books of account, and the same provision was made by a rule under the Act of 1869, there being power under that Act to make the rule.

—See Kale Lee on Bankruptcy, page 676.

A similar rule has been made under the present English Act of 1883, but it is of doubtful validity under section 127 (4) of that Act.

It would therefore seem advisable to put the provision into the Act itself.

From F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 799J., dated 15th February, 1886).

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1041, dated the 17th June, 1885, forwarding copies of the Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, with Statement of Objects and Reasons, and asking for an expression of the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion and of the opinions of such persons as His Honour might think fit to consult on the provisions of the Bill.

2. In reply, I am desired to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the accompanying

The Solicitor to the Government of India, No. 1096, dated the 3rd September, 1885, and enclosure.

The Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 901, dated the 9th November, 1885.

replies received from the officers and gentlemen named in the margin and the Secretary to the Calcutta Trades' Association, who were consulted by this Government, and to say that, with the exception of section 88 (1), the Lieutenant-Governor approves generally the provisions of the Bill. This section provides that the High Court may, from time to time, direct that a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court shall have all or any of the powers therein mentioned. In this connection I am to ask the attention of the Government of India to the letter from the Chief Judge of the Calcutta Court of Small Causes, and to say that, even with the assistance that this Government is about to ask should be given it, the Court of Small Causes, Calcutta, has more work on its hands than it can satisfactorily get through; and the Lieutenant-Governor is therefore averse to throwing additional burdens on the Judges of that Court.

From R. L. UPTON, Esq., Solicitor to Government of India, to Officiating Under Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(No. 1096, dated 3rd September, 1885).

REFERRING to your No. 1336 $\frac{1}{2}$ J.D. of the 8th ultimo, I have the honour to forward you herewith a copy of the Hon'ble the Advocate General's opinion on the subject therein referred to.

OPINION.

THERE can be no doubt that the present Insolvent Act is antiquated and requires to be replaced by fresh legislation.

The Statement of Objects and Reasons very clearly and fully explains the grounds on which the proposed change in the present Insolvent Laws are rested, and deals in an exhaustive manner with the principles which are to be followed in framing a new Bankruptcy Act. I agree in the main with the Objects and Reasons, and I think it advisable that legislation here should be supported by an Act of Parliament.

The provisions of the Draft Bill are principally taken from the English Bankruptcy Act, 1883, with certain necessary modifications.

The English Bankruptcy Act is the outcome of an extended experience of years, and has, I think, been properly adopted as a model for the proposed legislation. I have doubts whether the provisions in the English Statute in relation to composition or scheme arrangement, which have been embodied in the present draft Act, will be found useful or of any practical benefit in this country.

With regard to jurisdiction, I think that up-country traders, who have had large commercial transactions, and whose estate would be more satisfactorily administered in a Bankruptcy Court, should be allowed to petition the Bankruptcy Court of the Presidency in which they have carried on business, and such Court should be vested with powers to adjudicate such persons bankrupt on their own petition if it thinks fit, the powers to adjudicate being discretionary, to be exercised according to the circumstances of the case. The objection to such a procedure would naturally be that it would be a hardship upon creditors living at a distance to follow the proceedings in a Bankruptcy Court; but such a hardship must often occur where a debtor carrying on business in Calcutta is adjudicated by the High Court of Calcutta, and has creditors up-country as well as in the different Presidencies.

The 29th August 1885.

(Signed) G. C. PAUL,
Advocate General.

From G. C. SCONCE, Esq., Officiating Chief Judge, Court of Small Causes, Calcutta, to Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(No. 68, dated 2nd October, 1885).

WITH reference to letter No. 2946, dated 9th September, 1885, from the Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, calling my attention to No. 1342 J.D., dated 8th July, 1885, I have the honour, after consultation with my colleagues, to say that we believe that the provisions of the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India are calculated to be of great benefit to the country.

We also approve of section 88, which empowers the High Court, from time to time, to direct that a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court shall deal with the matters therein mentioned; but we do not consider it would be beneficial to deprive a Judge of the Small Cause Court of the power to exercise in matters relating to bankruptcy and insolvency such authority as he has in the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction under section 83 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts, Act, 1882, to punish for contempt.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor is already aware that the Judges of this Court are unable, in the existing state of the files, to cope with the mass of business that comes before them. Any addition to the ordinary business will necessarily occasion further arrears.

From T. T. ALLEN, Esq., Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, Bengal, to Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(No. 901, dated 9th November, 1885).

IN reply to your office No. 1337 J.D., dated 8th July last, I have the honour to say that the draft Indian Bankruptcy Bill is applicable to the presidency-towns, where at present a similar law is administered by the High Court in its original jurisdiction. As I have no knowledge or experience of the working of the existing law, I am unable to form an opinion as to the necessity for, or improvements effected by, this Bill.

2. As to the proposal, I consider the present Bill utterly and entirely unquitable; but as there appears to be no intention to make it current there, this is no detracting from its merits.

From MAHÁRÁJÁ the HON'BLE SIR JOTENDRO MOHUN TAGORE, K.C.S.I., to Officiating Under-Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(dated 31st August, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your No. 1340 J.D., dated the 8th ultimo, forwarding, for the expression of my opinion on it, copy of a draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and in reply to submit the following remarks for the consideration of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

2. The primary object of the project is consolidation. The law of bankruptcy and insolvency, as now current in India, is scattered in different Acts, which are in some respects defective, and in others discordant or not convenient; and the Bill under notice proposes to reconcile differences, to supply omissions, to remove defects, and generally so to amend and alter the present law as to make it fully suited for the requirements of the day. In so far the project is worthy of commendation. The opportunity has also been taken to make it accord with the latest English law on the subject, and provision has been made so to transfer cases from Indian to English Courts as to cause no inconvenience.

3. It is not necessary for me, however, to notice all the alterations, particularly as the hon'ble and learned gentleman who has drafted the Bill has fully and clearly treated the subject in great detail in his Statement of Objects and Reasons. I desire, therefore, to confine myself here to only those points which appear to me to require further consideration.

4. In the Civil Procedure Code Act (XIV of 1882, sections 336 and 344), relief for bankruptcy is made dependent on a preliminary arrest or imprisonment; no debtor can obtain the benefit of the law until he is taken up under an execution warrant. This mode of making relief accessible only through the gates of a prison to honest but unfortunate debtors is highly objectionable, and clause (1) of section 7 of the Bill does well in doing away with it in the case of persons residing or carrying on business within the jurisdiction of the Presidency Courts for at least a year. The limit of time fixed, however, appears to me to be too long. There are many causes which may, and not unoften do, bring on insolvency within a much shorter time, and that without any dishonest or fraudulent motive on the part of a debtor; and in such cases it is not at all desirable to insist upon a preliminary punishment. The law provides ample safeguards against fraud, and the punishment should come when the fraud is laid bare in the course of enquiry, and at the time of granting the discharge, and not precede enquiry. The provision, moreover, appears to me to be totally ineffectual as a salutary measure. A debtor who becomes insolvent in six months' time can easily avoid going to jail by getting up a creditor to petition against him, and the law is at once defeated. This applies likewise to the first part of the section, which insists upon lodgment in prison as a sine quâ non in the case of an ordinary debtor. It makes a provision which can always be circumvented, except in the improbable contingency of a debtor being so unfortunate as not to be able to get a creditor to petition against him. Under these circumstances, I am respectfully of opinion that the clause in question should be divested of the conditions attached.

5. Clause (4) of section 26 gives power to the Court to compound with the debtors to an insolvent estate; and this is as it should be, inasmuch as, however, such compositions must, as a matter of course, be effected by the Receiver or the Trustee of the estate, and more frequently by his subordinates. It would be an advantage if provision were made to give an opportunity to the creditors, or the Committee appointed by them, to appear in Court and show cause why particular compositions should not be made in the way proposed. Instances are well known of such compositions in connection with large insolvent estates having been made in a manner injurious to the interests of creditors.

6. Clause (5) of section 26 appears imperfect as it stands. There should be some provision made with reference to any counter-claim that the person concerned may have against the debtor.

7. Among the facts which would disqualify a bankrupt from getting immediate discharge, mention is made of absence of books of account for three years immediately preceding his bankruptcy (clause (a) of section 273). This would suggest the idea that the discharge would be withheld or delayed if the books of account are not forthcoming, or should extend only to one or two years. Such cannot, however, be the intention of the law in cases in which insolvency supervenes after one or two years' trading. In regard to merchants and traders, the law should be so worded as to imply a period of not less than three years in the case of persons carrying on business from a long time, and for the whole period in the case of persons who have carried on business for less than three years; as regards persons other than merchants and traders, it may be a grave hardship to demand regular books of accounts. Such people do not ordinarily keep any account of their income and expenditure; they live upon what they get, and are satisfied. They may, however, be overtaken by a sudden misfortune, such as a decree of a Civil Court calling upon a person of this class to pay heavy damages, for which he might be forced to seek the benefit of the Insolvent Court, and in such a case it would be cruel to call upon him to produce regular books of accounts, and on default subjecting him to punishment. The Court should be left perfectly free to exercise its discretion as to whether the omission is due to unavoidable or accidental circumstances, or to improper motive. The word "shall" in line six of the clause, page 16, leaves no room for such discretion.

8. I look upon clause (g) of the same section as calculated to operate harshly. There are many merchants and traders now in Calcutta who have been under the necessity through their misfortune, without any fraudulent or dishonest action, of taking the benefit of the Insolvent Act two, three, or more times, and there is no valid reason why men of that class should not readily obtain their discharge under the proposed Bankruptcy Act. The broad line of distinction between honest misfortune and fraud should never be lost sight of.

9. Clause (2) of section 46 appears to contravene to a certain extent the provisions of the current law of the country on the subject of pensions. Section 11 of Act XXIII of 1871 says: "No money due or becoming due on account of any such political considerations or past services pension or allowance shall be liable to seizure, attachment or sequestration by process of any Court in British India at the instance of a creditor for any demand against the pensioner, or in satisfaction of a decree or order of any such Court." This provision is repeated in several subsequent Acts, and appears last in section 266 of Act XIV of 1882, and no circumstances have since transpired to suggest a departure from it. Pensions are in theory benevolences, and to render them liable to seizure by a decree of a Court is to convert charity into civil right. They are granted by Government to provide for the support of persons who have rendered good service for extended periods, and are liable to stoppage at any time at the will of the donors, and should not on any account be treated as a fixed asset.

10. When the Bill regarding the amendment of the Courts of Small Causes in Presidency-towns was under consideration a few years ago, the public feeling was strongly expressed against a section in the Bill which proposed to vest those Courts with insolvency jurisdiction to a limit of Rs. 1,000, and in compliance with the wishes then expressed the section was withdrawn. Section 88 of the Bill now under notice renews the project in a modified form, that is, by delegation of powers by the High Court, but removes the money limit. There are cases in which such delegation would prove useful, but I would respectfully urge that the limit of value should be fixed by law and not exceed Rs. 1,000.

FROM BABU DOORGA CHURN LAW, to Officiating Under-Secretary to Government, Bengal,

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your No. 1341J.-D., dated the 8th July last, forwarding copy of a draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and requesting an expression of my opinion on it.

2. In reply, I beg to submit the following remarks on the Bill for the consideration of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

3. Time was when a bankrupt or trader (who secreted himself, or did certain act with intent to defeat or delay his creditors, was looked upon as a criminal or offender, but that time has long since passed away, and the aim of legislation has of late been to afford every protection to honest but unfortunate debtors. All the insolvency and bankruptcy laws now current have been formed with this object, and the present attempt is to effect a general amendment of the law alike in the interests of general trade, and the principles of humanity and justice. The opportunity has also been taken for a consolidation of the law so as to make it most conveniently workable. The occasion has moreover been utilised to make the Indian Act accord with the latest English law on the subject, and provision has been made so as to transfer cases from India to English Courts as to cause no inconvenience. The necessity for these amendments and improvements, it is stated in the "Draft Statement of Objects and Reasons," has been frequently of late years pressed upon the attention of Government, and in my humble opinion Government does well in taking up the measure.

4. The bulk of the Bill is made up of the law now in force, with such alterations and improvements as the experience of the last four and thirty years during which the Statute 11 & 12 of Victoria, 21, has been in operation in the Presidency Courts has suggested; and as the honourable and learned gentleman who has drafted the Bill has fully and clearly explained the nature and drift of the alterations in his Statement of Objects and Reasons, there is no need for my noticing them. I shall, therefore, confine myself here to only those points which appear to me to be susceptible of further improvement.

5. For expeditious and satisfactory liquidation of an insolvent estate, it is necessary that power would be given to the Court to compound with the debtors to it, and this is done in clause (4), section 26. Inasmuch, however, as such compositions must, as a matter of course, be effected by the Receiver or the Trustee of the estate, and more frequently by his subordinates, it would be an advantage if provision were made to give an opportunity to the creditors, or the committee appointed by them, to appear in Court and show cause why a particular composition should not be made in the way proposed. Instances are well known of such compositions in connection with large insolvent estates having been made in a manner injurious to the interests of creditors.

6. The provision made in clause (5) of section 26 is necessary and proper, but as it stands it appears imperfect. There should be some provision made with reference to any counter-claim that the person concerned may have against the debtor. In all such cases the counter-claim should be fully satisfied before any demand is made. In other words, the demand should be limited to the difference between the claim and the counter-claim.

7. I am respectfully of opinion that clause (a) of section 27 (3) is likely to act with hardship. In it mention is made of absence of books of account for three years immediately preceding a bankruptcy as a ground for withholding immediate discharge. This would suggest the idea that the discharge would be withheld or delayed if the books of account forthcoming should extend to one or two years only. Such cannot, however, be the intention of the law in cases in which insolvency supervenes after one or two years' trading. In regard to merchants and traders, the law should insist on a period of not less than three years in the cases of persons carrying on business from a long time, and for the whole period in the case of those who have carried on business for less than three years. This should, however, not apply to debtors other than merchants or traders. Such people do not keep any account of their income and expenditure: they live upon what they get, and are satisfied. They may, however, be overtaken by a sudden misfortune. A decree of a Civil Court may call upon a person of this class to pay heavy damages for which he may be forced to seek the benefit of the Insolvent Court, and in such a case it would be cruel to call upon him to produce regular books of account, and, on default, subjecting him to punishment. The Court should be left perfectly free to exercise its discretion as to whether the omission is due to unavoidable or accidental circumstances, or to dishonest intention. The word "shall" in line 6 of the clause, p. (16), leaves no room for such discretion.

8. The provision made in clause (g) of the same section also appears to me as calculated to operate harshly. There are, I believe, many cases of merchants and traders in the Presidency towns in which men have been under the necessity, through sheer misfortune, without any vicious or dishonest action, of taking the benefit of the Insolvent Act more than once, and there is no valid reason why men of that class should not readily obtain their discharge under the proposed Bankruptcy Act. The broad line of distinction between honest misfortune and fraud should be very rigidly fixed in all such cases.

9. Clause (1) of section 46 provides for the stoppage for the benefit of creditors of the pay and allowances of persons in the service of Government who may happen to become insolvents, but the next clause appears to contravene to a certain extent the provisions of the current law of the country on the subject of pensions. Section 11 of Act XXIII of 1871 says: "No money due or becoming due on account of any such (political considerations or past services) pension or allowance shall be liable to seizure, attachment, or sequestration by process of any Court in British India at the instance of a creditor for any demand against the pensioner, or in satisfaction of a decree or order of any such Court. This provision has been upheld in several subsequent Acts, and appears last in section 266 of Act XIV of 1882, and no circumstances have since arisen to suggest a departure from it. Pensions are in theory benevolences, and to render them liable to seizure by a decree of a Court is to convert charity into a civil right. They are granted by Government to provide for the support of persons who have become unfit for further work after rendering good service for extended periods—as provisions for old age—and are liable to stoppage at any time at the will of the donors, and should not, on any account, be treated as a fixed asset.

10. Section 88 of the Bill invests the High Courts with the power of delegating their powers for certain purposes to Presidency Small Cause Courts. This is indirectly a revival of the clause in the Bill for the Presidency Court of Small Causes which proposed to invest those Courts with insolvency jurisdiction. The public feeling against the project was then strong, and it was therefore withdrawn. The modified form in which it is now proposed appears to me to be not only unobjectionable, but likely to prove very useful. I would respectfully urge, however, that the money limit of the jurisdiction should be fixed by law, and not left to the discretion of the High Courts. In matters of jurisdiction the law can never be too precise.

FROM E. HICKIN, Esq., Secretary, Calcutta Trades Association, to Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(dated 14th December, 1885).

I HAVE now the honour to place before you, for submission to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, the views of the Committee of the Trades Association on the Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. It would be impossible, the Committee feel, to overrate the importance of the proposed Act to the trading community throughout India; they have consequently given to its provisions the most careful consideration, and are unanimously of opinion that the measure, as a whole, will afford assistance and protection to both debtor and creditor.

3. In order, however, that the protection to be given by the Act may be adequate and complete, the Committee would beg to suggest that the Government of India might be moved to amend the Bill in so far as it deals with the following important points, which appear to be deserving of further consideration.

4. In regard to this section, the Committee are of opinion that the jurisdiction clause should be extended to all cases in which the High Court has jurisdiction. For example, a person ordinarily resident in the Mufasssalais liable to be used in the High Court in respect of contracts made by him in Calcutta, but a Calcutta firm holding a decree of the High Court against such a person could not, under the Bill as drawn, avail itself of the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act. This seems to the Committee to be a serious anomaly, and one which will materially lessen the usefulness of the Act.

Conditions on which creditor may petition.

5. (1) A creditor shall not be entitled to present a bankruptcy petition against a debtor unless—

(2) the debtor is in prison within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court under an order of a Civil Court for non-payment of money, or has within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business within those limits.

5. The Committee are of opinion that the

34. (1) In the distribution of the property of a bankrupt there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

(b) all wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of services rendered to the bankrupt during four months before the date of the receiving order, not exceeding five hundred rupees;

mittee that due regard should be given to this fact on a further consideration of this portion of the Bill. They would strongly recommend that not less than three months' salary should be granted.

6. The Committee would beg to suggest that in this section "three months" should be substituted for

36. (1) The landlord or other person to whom any rent is due from the bankrupt may at any time, either before or after the commencement of the bankruptcy, exercise his right of distraint (if any) upon the property of the bankrupt for the rent due to him from the bankrupt, with this limitation, that if such distress for rent be levied after the commencement of the bankruptcy it shall be available only for one year's rent accrued due prior to the date of the order of adjudication, but the landlord or other person to whom the rent may be due from the bankrupt may prove under the bankruptcy for the surplus due for which the distress may not have been available.

38. The property of the bankrupt divisible amongst his creditors, and in this Act referred to as the property of the bankrupt, shall not comprise the following particulars:—

But it shall comprise the following particulars:—
(iii) All moveable property being, at the commencement of the bankruptcy, in the possession, order or disposition of the bankrupt, in his trade or business, by the consent and permission of the true owner, under such circumstances that he is the reputed owner thereof. Provided that things in action, other than debts due or growing due to the bankrupt in the course of his trade or business, shall not be deemed moveable property within the meaning of this section.

46. (1) Where a bankrupt is an officer of the army or navy or of Her Majesty's Indian Marine Service, or an officer or clerk or other portion of pay or otherwise employed or engaged in the Civil Service of the Crown, the trustee shall receive for distribution amongst the creditors so much of the bankrupt's pay or salary as the Court, on the application of the trustee, with the consent of the chief officer of the department under which the pay or salary is enjoyed, may direct. Before making any order under this sub-section the Court shall communicate with the chief officer of the department as to the amount, time and manner of the payment to the trustee, and shall obtain the written consent of the chief officer to the terms of such payment.

9. Finally, the Bill makes no provision for the registration of mortgages of moveable property, or bills of sale as they are termed in England; such a provision would, it is believed, be a very material protection to creditors, and I have accordingly to express the hope of the Committee that it will be conceded by the proposed Act.

The Committee trust that the suggestions contained in this letter will meet with the approval and support of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor.

From J. O. MILLER, Esq., Under-Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 998—VII-78-7, dated 14th November, 1885).

WITH reference to your letter No. 1040, dated the 17th June, 1885, asking for opinions on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in

Note by Legal Remembrancer to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, dated 8th October, 1885.
Letter No. 2701, dated 3rd November, 1885, from the Registrar, High Court of Judicature, North-Western Provinces.

2. As the Act is not to be extended to these Provinces at present, the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner thinks it unnecessary to add any remarks on the provisions of the Bill.

Note by Legal Remembrancer to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh,—(dated 8th October, 1885).

I HAVE gone through the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, together with the draft Statement of Objects and Reasons for the same.

I note that in the draft Statement it is proposed to apply the Bill, if it becomes law, in the first instance only to the Presidency-towns and to certain commercial centres in Burma.

As regards the North-Western Provinces and Oudh we shall have ample opportunity of seeing how the law works before we extend it to any commercial centre. My experience as a Judge leads me to think that it will be some time before we shall require any extension, and that when it is extended we shall need stronger Courts and Courts with more leisure than they at present enjoy.

Many of the large commercial firms in these Provinces have houses in the Presidency-towns, and, as I understand section 4, creditors would be entitled to present bankruptcy-petitions against such firms; so that some considerable portion of the class for whom the Act is intended will be covered by the provisions of the Act.

It is worth noticing that increased use is being made by debtors of Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code. The number of applications for insolvency must vary more or less in concert with fluctuations in the number of applications for execution of decrees. Compared with these, the percentage of applications for insolvency has steadily increased from 15 per cent. in 1881 to 35 in 1882, to 37 in 1883 and 30 in 1884. I feel convinced that, meagre as the provisions of Chapter XX now are, they are still too intricate and expensive for the poor insolvent; but for this we should have a still greater number of applications.

With a few alterations the provisions of Chapter XX would meet the present wants of these Provinces, but the present paper is no place to discuss those alterations.

I see little use in discussing seriatim the provisions of a Bill which is not to be applied to these Provinces, and I doubt whether I could do so to much purpose. It would need more acquaintance with the customs and wants of Presidency-towns to do so effectually.

From Registrar, High Court, North-Western Provinces, to Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh,—(No. 2701, dated 3rd November, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 674—VII-78-2, dated 26th June, 1885, in the Judicial (Civil) Department, forwarding a Bill to amend the Law relating to Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and requesting to be favoured with the Court's opinion thereon, and in reply to state as follows.

2. The Hon'ble the Chief Justice has forwarded a minute on the subject direct to the Hon'ble Mr. Ilbert, Legislative Member of Council.

3. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Straight regrets he has had no leisure to consider the provisions of the Bill or offer any remarks thereon.

4. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Brodhurst believes it is not intended that any Court in these Provinces shall, for the present at all events, have jurisdiction under the proposed Act, and he therefore refrains from offering any remarks on the proposed legislation.

5. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Tyrrell also has no remarks to offer on the Bill.

WITH reference to your letter No. 1042, dated the 17th of June, 1885, I am desired by the Lieutenant-Governor to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the opinions of the officers noted on the margin, who have been consulted upon the draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

From T. G. WALKER, Esq., Registrar, Chief Court, Punjab, to Officiating Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(No. 2582, dated 13th August, 1885).

IN reply to your letter No. 684-S., dated 13th July, 1885, forwarding, for the opinion of the Judges, a copy of a Draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, I am desired to say that as it is proposed to limit the application of the Bill to the Presidency-towns and certain other commercial centres, the Judges have no remarks to offer on the Bill.

From E. P. HENDERSON, Esq., Government Advocate, Punjab, to Officiating Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(No. 370-D.A., dated 21st September, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge your letter No. 665-S. of 13th July last, forwarding for opinion draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. I observe that the Act only constitutes by its direct operation four Courts of Bankruptcy, namely, the High Courts of Judicature at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay and the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon. I also observe that while power is taken to confer upon Local Governments authority, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to constitute other Courts of Bankruptcy in the territories administered by them, the insolvency sections of the Punjab Laws Act (1872) have not been repealed.

As moreover I am now, and have been for some time past, much pressed with important references, I trust that I may be permitted to refrain from discussing in detail a measure which is not intended to apply to this Province, and which appears to me to be far too advanced and technical for the state of things prevailing here.

From BUNSEE LAL RAM BATTAN, Rai Bahadur, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab, —(No. 982, dated 2nd September, 1885).

As directed in your letter No. 844-S. of 30th July 1885, which you have very kindly sent for any remarks that I may wish to offer, I have the pleasure to state for your information that the Draft Bill to amend the law of bankruptcy and insolvency in India is worth of maintenance, and that the draft Statement of Objects and Reasons is worth of consideration.

I beg to suggest to afford the following remarks after full examination of the documents you have so kindly sent.

1st.—The cost of Court for advertising notices, &c., should be defrayed from the estate concerned, but the Court expenses should not exceed some fixed allowances at the rate of percentage which after full consideration the Legislative ought to fix.

2nd.—In India there are lot of persons who, in anticipation of being insolvent give up their estate, cash and property to their sons or brother, and they themselves remain to be insolvent. In this case the Legislative should pronounce some kind of punishment to be awarded to such insolvent.

3rd.—To avoid re-occurrence of insolvent the Legislative should consider and order some kind of distinguished mark to be worn by the bankrupt, in order, if the bankrupt go to another country or city, he may soon be recognized as such a man, as in India there are many men who are dealing in this way, i.e., open a shop in a city, and, while their trade became popular, they abstract lot of money by sending it to their homes or making it away otherwise, and afterwards declare themselves as insolvent. If some distinguished mark be ordered to be worn by the insolvent, there will be a kind of check over them.

4th.—In section 21 I beg that the committee should consist of 8 members, i.e., 4 from among the creditors and 4 who do not any way mixed in the case, but know the custom of the city, and the Judge should take their opinion before passing any order on the file.

5th.—In my opinion in section 38 the hereditary rights, such as villages or other landed property, should be included in the estate which must be sold too and assessed in the administration leaving a necessary portion for the insolvent only.

I beg to return the papers received with your letter under reply.

From RAI MEHA RAM, to Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 27th August, 1885).

I HAVE gone through the draft Bill received with your letter No 8448, of the 30th July, and am very glad to come to know that steps have been taken to make up the deficiencies which have been observed during the last 35 years. Handing over the matter to the committee of creditors whose interest is chiefly concerned in such proceedings is a great improvement to bring this law to the point of completion, and I hope it will satisfy those who were sulking at the introduction of such a defective measure as that of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy. As far as my experience is concerned, I would beg to state that Part VII of the Bill, regarding the small bankruptcies, would not work efficiently in a Province like the Punjab until the educated party takes lead in the way of improving the commercial condition of the country. Of course it will be received with great satisfaction in Presidency and other towns where the people by means of their extensive education are sufficiently enabled to understand the objects and reasons of the measure in question. I would, however, beg to suggest that for such cases the qualifications of trustees must be prescribed, as they have to manage the estate without the control and supervision of those whose interest they are to guard.

2. In conclusion, I request that the Insolvent Estates Courts must be very strict in awarding punishment to the guilty debtors, as the number of rejected applications clearly shows the bad motive with which they have often been led to defraud their money-lenders.

From RAMKISHAN DAS, Honorary Magistrate, Delhi, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 25th September, 1885).

In reply to your No. 844, dated 30th July last, enclosing a draft Bill on the law of Bankruptcy for opinion, I have the honour to submit the following remarks.

In my opinion the Bill should, when enacted into law, be made applicable to the Punjab and North-Western Provinces, and the District Courts empowered to exercise authority conferred on "the Court" under it. The provisions of the Bill, though based on the English law, are not so very abstruse or intricate as to be difficult of comprehension or to be peculiarly suitable to any particular town or city. They are catholic and general in their character, and may advantageously be extended to the Mufassal. Uniformity of principle—certainly so far as the British Indian Empire is concerned—necessitates the existence of one and the same law for identical cases and circumstances wherever they may occur in that empire. The provisions as to the voluntary management by creditors and as to appointment of trustees and the conduct of business by the insolvent under the supervision of trustees or of the committee of inspection are not new or strange. They are acted upon every day in this part of India. Indeed, there is hardly a case in which resort is not had to them as the most efficacious machinery for realising assets for distribution. I would therefore very strongly urge the extension of the Bill to the Mufassal.

SECTION 3 (b) and (c) may be fused into one clause. There is no meaning in keeping them separate.

SECTION 8 (2).—There is no benefit likely to accrue to the insolvent's estate by allowing a secured creditor to realise or deal with his security. Except in cases of English mortgages (as to which even there is considerable doubt), no mortgagee can exercise the power of sale, except through the medium of a Court, and why he should be allowed to bring a suit to sell the property and thus entail more costs, which are after all to come out of the insolvent's estate, is incomprehensible to me.

SECTION 15 (2).—For 3 days I would substitute 10 days, and for 7 days 1 month. The time mentioned in the section is very little, especially in the case of a creditor who has to enter on very difficult enquiries in order to submit the statement.

SECTION 15 (4).—The word "so" before stating should be omitted. "So" would mean for this purpose, i.e., for inspecting statement. The penalty should be general and absolute, and not confined to any particular circumstance.

SECTION 17 (15) AND SECTION 18 relate to the same matter, and with some slight change of language could easily go into one section or clause.

SECTION 25.—This is a very harsh measure and has been strongly condemned recently by Mr. Justice Norris. If it is considered advisable to keep it, then there can be no meaning in the limitation of 3 months, which should be expunged.

SECTION 28 (2).—Would deposits come under this or not?

SECTION 31.—To this section add "Barred debts, obligations without consideration—Voluntary bonds shall not be proveable."

SECTION 36 should be omitted and its provisions added to section 24, which is their proper place.

SECTION 38.—Add executory contracts which the assignee or receiver may perform.

SECTION 46.—"On engaged in the Civil service." Omit the word "Civil."

SECTION 48 (5).—Add "Provided that if the party does not agree and feels aggrieved, he may institute suit for declaration as to quantum of damages which he will be allowed to prove as a debt."

SECTION 48 (6).—"And on hearing such person" modify into "on hearing the trustee or such other person."

SECTION 49.—Add "(f) Sue debtors." This power should be conferred on the trustee irrespective of the following section.

SECTION 64.—The word "solicitor" will have to be changed into "legal practitioner" or "pleader."

Adverting to the Statement of Objects and Reasons, it would of course be necessary to obtain the sanction of the British Parliament to ratify the measure. It is of no importance whether the sanction is antecedent or subsequent, but I consider Draft I to be the preferable of the two.

From RAI BAHADUR KALLIAN SINGH, Honorary Magistrate, Amritsar, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 1st September, 1885).

WITH reference to your letter dated 30th July 1885, I have the honour to submit my few remarks as to the Draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in certain part of British India, and they are as follows.

2. In Section 3 it is necessary that the British India may be defined, that it may be more clear whether the foreign States comes within the definition. Although the General Clauses Act, I of 1858, defines the British India, but still remains doubtful as to its limits supposing for instance—Biluchistan, &c., &c.

3. In the same section clause (c) is somewhat harder, that by issuing the process of sale in execution of decree cannot be said that the debtor has committed the act of bankruptcy.

4. In Section 5, clause (d) paragraph 2nd, where it is said within a year before the date of presentation of the petition ordinary reside, &c., &c.

The above clause in the section is not clear to fix the period gives rise to a doubt.

5. In the Section 6, clause I, it should be added that the copy of petition must be furnished to the opposite party, that the opposite party may come proper and unnecessary delay may not occur.

6. In the Section 6, clause 5, that the words to take security for payment of debt is to put the hindrances in the way, but to ask security for the costs of the proceedings is not so.

7. In the Section 7, clause I, where it is said unless he is in prison, &c., &c., should be added if he is left on security under Section 336 of Civil Procedure Code, Act XIV of 1882, as there is generally the case with judgment-debtors in execution of decrees of civil court.

8. Section 17, paragraph 10, provides that the order made on the application may be executed as if it were a decree. It ought to be for those persons only who wish to get the dividend from the estate of bankrupt and not for others who do not wish to be benefited by the provisions of the Act.

9. Section 27 is silent. Clause (c) should be added that who contracted debt recklessly or carelessly.

10. Section 28, clause I, should fix any period in which debt may be liquidated, say 12 years is a reasonable time. After that he must declare free from the such debt, otherwise it would be once a bankrupt always a bankrupt.

From CHOTA LAL, House Proprietor and Contractor, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 15th October, 1885).

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter, dated Simla, the 30th August, under cover of No. 844, enclosing a copy of a draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in certain parts of British India, with Draft Statement of Objects and Reasons, for my humble remarks on the same.

I have gone through the whole of the draft, and, so far as I can see, I agree with it, except in two or three places, for which I beg to offer the following remarks.

In Section (7), No. 3, the debtor's petition ought to be withdrawn without the leave of the Court, except in cases the Court thinks it fit as otherwise.

In Section (11) the manager for the debtor's estate ought to be appointed by the Court, as well as the receiver and the debtor also be consulted.

In (Section 6), No. 6, when persons owing the debtor acknowledge themselves as debtors to the debtor, the Court ought to give decree against them in favour of the receiver for the debtor.

In (Section 23) in cases where debtor is personally required to point out persons owing him, the expenses in so doing by the debtor ought to be given him.

Also there is required a section by which a debtor may settle with his creditors privately or by appointing arbitrators.

Hoping you approve of the above.

From LALA GAGAR MAL, Honorary Magistrate, Amritsar, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 15th October, 1885).

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your your favor, No. 540, dated 8th instant, as well as a copy of draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency for my opinion. In reply to that I beg to return herewith, under a separate cover, the said draft with my notes thereupon. Some delay occurred in forwarding the draft, as I had to consider it thoroughly. Please excuse delay.

Within a year.—This seems to be a very long time. For it is just possible that a person may contract large debts within a year, and he himself be unwilling to go to the Insolvency Court and the creditor may not be able to take any steps. Therefore in my opinion 3 months or 6 months at the most should be the limit.

•• Rather vague. It should be during office hours, or some definite time or day should be fixed.

Signed must be defined, and made to include sealing and marking.

† Vide note to section 15, clause (1).

‡ Should be and. It is very easy to put the seal of Court on papers without the Judge knowing it. Seals are always in the hands of peons and others of the same class.

Section 15, clause (d).—The debtor is in prison within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court under an order of a Civil Court for non-payment of money, or has within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business within those limits.

Section 15, clause (4).—Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor of the bankrupt may personally or by agent inspect this statement at all reasonable times,* and take any copy thereof or extract therefrom * * * * *

Section 16, clause (9).—Such notes of the examination as the Court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to and signed by the debtor, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him; they shall also be open to the inspection of any creditor at all reasonable times.†

Section 17, clause (7).—If the Court approves the composition or scheme, the approval may be testified by the seal of the Court being attached to the instrument containing the terms of the composition or scheme, or by the terms being embodied in an order of the Court.

Section 42, clause (1).—Every conveyance or transfer of property, or charge thereon made, every payment made, every obligation incurred and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor, or any person in trust for any creditor, with a view of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors shall, if the person making, taking, paying or suffering the same is adjudged bankrupt on a bankruptcy petition presented within three* months after the date of making, taking, paying or suffering the same, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the trustee in the bankruptcy.

PART V.

TRUSTEES.

Remuneration of Trustee.

Section 63, clause (1).—Where the creditors appoint any person to be trustee of a debtor's estate, his remuneration (if any) shall be fixed by an ordinary resolution of the creditors, or, if the creditors so resolve, by the committee of inspection, and shall be in the nature of a commission or percentage, of which one part shall be payable on the amount realized after deducting any sums paid to secured creditors out of the proceeds of their securities, and the other part on the amount distributed in dividend.

Section 83, clause (c).—The local limits of the jurisdiction of a Court appointed by a Local Government shall be such as may, from time to time, be fixed, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by that Local Government within the territories administered by it.

Section 91, clause (c).—An appeal shall lie from the order of a Court appointed by a Local Government under section 82 of the High Court of the province.

PART VII.

SMALL BANKRUPTCIES.

Section 103.—When a petition is presented by or against a debtor, if the Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, or the official receiver reports to the Court, that the property of the debtor is not likely to exceed in value three thousand rupees, the Court may make an order that the debtor's estate be administered in a summary manner, * * * *

Section 105.—Any person against whom a receiving order has been made under this Act shall, in each of the cases following, be punished with imprisonment which may extend to two years or with fine or with both; * * * *

Notices.

Section 125.—All notices and other documents for the service of which no special mode is directed may be sent by prepaid post letter to the last known address of the person to be served therewith.

Section 133 (1).—In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,— Interpretation.

"Province" means the territories under the administration of a Local Government:

"High Court of the province" means the highest Civil Court of appeal for the province:

"The Court" means the Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy under this Act:

"Affidavit" includes declarations under any legislative enactment, affirmations and attestations on honour

"Available act of bankruptcy" means any act of bankruptcy available for a bankruptcy petition at the date of the presentation of the petition on which the receiving order is made:

* Should be six months: three months is too little a time.

The remuneration of the trustees should be fixed by the Court itself in every instance. It will be very improper to give this power to the creditors. It is sure to be abused.

It will be quite unnecessary to obtain the Governor General's previous sanction on a matter like this. The words in italics should be omitted.

The appealable orders should be specified. At present the law (which is the same as this) is very unsatisfactory. Some orders are appealable and some are not. Further, why should an appeal lie to the Chief Court direct? This is a hardship. It will be convenient to give this power to the Divisional Courts in this Province and other corresponding Courts in other Provinces.

There should be a final appeal to the Chief Court or High Court, as sometimes intricate questions arise in such cases.

Small Bankruptcies.—This should not be with regard to the amount of the debtor's property. It should be the reverse, i.e., with reference to the amount of debts due, and the amount to make a bankruptcy small should be Rs. 1,500 only, and not more; otherwise some dishonest people may succeed in arranging that their property may not exceed Rs. 3,000.

Imprisonment.—Simple or what?
Fine.—What amount?

Insert registered between the words "prepaid" and "part."

These interpretation clauses should be placed in the beginning.

Should be one hour.

24. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of creditors is not present or represented, the meeting shall be adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place, or to such other day as the chairman may appoint, not being less than seven or more than twenty-one days.

From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 4134—202, dated 24th October, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge your No. 1043, dated 17th June last, forwarding for opinion a draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. The Bill will affect only the Presidency-town, the four chief town, in British Burma and the few large commercial centres to which it may hereafter be extended. There are no large commercial centres in the Central Provinces at present, and the likelihood of the extension of the Bill to any town in these provinces in the future is remote. Under these circumstances the Chief Commissioner does not think it necessary that he should make any observations on it.

3. The Bill was sent for opinion to two selected officers, Mr. J. W. Neill, Officiating Judicial Commissioner, and Mr. Venning, Commissioner of Nagpur. Neither of these officers has offered any criticisms on it.

From E. S. SYMES, Esq., Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 352—26-L., dated 15th December, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1044, dated the 17th June last, regarding a draft Bill to amend the law relating to Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

2. I am now to submit copies of the letters cited in the margin, which contain expressions of the opinion of the Recorder of Rangoon, of the Judge of Moulmein, and of the Rangoon Chamber of Commerce on the provisions of the Bill. The opinion of the learned Judicial Commissioner is still awaited. It will be submitted in due course. The delay in replying to your reference has been occasioned by the Chief Commissioner's desire to be in possession of the views of the Chamber of Commerce and, if possible, of the Judicial Commissioner, before taking the matter into consideration.

3. The Chief Commissioner agrees that for the present, as regards this province, the new Act should apply only to the four principal seaport towns. By Act XIV of 1883 power has been conferred on the Chief Commissioner to transfer the jurisdiction in insolvency matters of the Recorder of Rangoon to the chief Civil Courts of Moulmein, Akyab, and Bassein in respect of those towns. Subject to the assent of the Governor General in Council, a similar power is conferred on the Chief Commissioner by sections 82 and 83 of the Bill. It would seem necessary to take care that the provisions of the Bill should not conflict with those of the Act above cited. But the Chief Commissioner does not support the suggestion made by the Judge of Moulmein that the power at present exercised by the Local Government of conferring insolvency jurisdiction on and withdrawing it from the Moulmein Court should be annulled by the constitution of that Court as an Insolvency Court under section 82 of the Bill.

4. The Chief Commissioner supports the proposal made by Mr. MacEwen that power should be taken in section 88 to confer on the Court of Small Causes in Rangoon the limited jurisdiction in bankruptcy matters which it is proposed to enable the High Courts to confer on the Small Cause Courts in the presidency-towns.

5. Section 91 of the Bill provides for appeals from orders in bankruptcy matters. Before the Bill is introduced into the Legislative Council it is probable that the jurisdiction of the superior Courts in this province will have been satisfactorily settled. But should the question of the constitution of a Chief Court in Burma be still unsettled when the Bankruptcy Bill is finally drafted, it will be necessary to specify in clause (c) of section 91 the particular High Court to which appeals under that clause would lie. Such appeals might appropriately lie to the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon.

6. The Chief Commissioner solicits special attention to the opinion of the learned Recorder of Rangoon, particularly to the views stated in paragraphs 5, 6 and 7 of his letter, which seem to be worthy of consideration. It seems very important that the application of the less cumbrous procedure (section 103 of the Bill) should be extended so as to embrace cases where the assets are, apparently, not more than Rs. 10,000. Mr. MacEwen's figures, namely, 91 insolvencies, Rs. 28,74,000 of debts, and only Rs. 43,000 (less than 2 per cent. of the debts) recovered by the Official Assignee in all, do not warrant sanguine hope that bankruptcy proceedings will greatly benefit the mass of creditors. There is perhaps, therefore, the more reason for attempting, when the law is under revision, to free innocent debtors from some part of the pains and penalties now accruing to themselves and their families from non-fraudulent debt.

The recommendation made in paragraph 8 of Mr. MacEwen's letter regarding the abolition of dual jurisdiction in the same Court also commends itself to the Chief Commissioner.

7. Mr. MacEwen's report contains a recommendation for the abolition of imprisonment for non-fraudulent debt. The learned Judge is clearly in favour of such abolition, though he mentions that the retention of this penalty has been practically decided upon. The Chief Commissioner does not know how this may be. He ventured previously (letter No. 679—1-L., dated the 21st July, 1882, to Home Department) to show cause for the total abolition of imprisonment for non-fraudulent debt. He still holds to the same opinion. He recently referred to the Judicial Commissioner certain cases of imprisonment for civil debt in the hope that the learned Judge would advise or comment upon the matter. If anything of interest or value results from this recent reference and discussion, the papers will be laid before the Government of India.

From D. G. MACLEOD, Esq., Judge of the Town of Moulmein, to Junior Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma,—(No. 129—2, dated the 24th August, 1885).

In compliance with the request made in your letter No. 100—23L. (Judicial Department, Legislative), dated the 6th ultimo, I have the honour to offer the following opinion on the Indian Bankruptcy Bill.

In dealing with the first question raised in the 11th paragraph of the Statement of Objects and Reasons, namely, as to the extent to which the proposed law should be applied locally in British India, it is necessary to bear in mind the main object of a bankruptcy law, which is to relieve honest debtors from the punishment of imprisonment for debt. The securing of the debtor's property for the benefit of his creditors is really subsidiary to the relief to the debtor, and the question, therefore, should not be entirely judged with reference to the existing machinery for working the proposed law for the benefit of creditors.

The question, however, as discussed in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill, is not, as it was in the correspondence in 1882, whether it is advisable to abolish imprisonment for debt, but whether the privileges of the proposed law should be extended to debtors in India generally, or only to a favoured few who have the good fortune to be inhabitants of the small local areas to be brought under the operation of that law.

Allowing even that there are differences between the circumstances of indebtedness arising in commercial seaports and those occurring in the Mufassal, it seems to me desirable to have only one insolvency law for the whole of India, and this, as stated in paragraph 11 of Statement of Objects and Reasons of this Bill, might be effected by inserting in the proposed measure a chapter providing the modifications and simplifications necessary to suit the requirements of Mufassal Courts. Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code has been, if not long enough in force to pave the way for a measure such as the present, sufficiently tried to show the necessity for its very considerable amendment, if not for its abolition, and I consider it unadvisable to retain it in preference to a simplified but complete insolvency law.

If it should in the end be decided not to frame an Act applicable to the whole of British India, it should, I think, at least be left optional with persons resident beyond the local limits of the Courts with insolvency jurisdiction to avail themselves of the benefit of the insolvency law. Cases are conceivable in which it may be a less hardship to debtors and creditors to get insolvency affairs administered by a Court having jurisdiction under the proposed measure than by the ordinary local Court with limited powers under Chapter XX, Civil Procedure Code, such for instance as the case of a debtor who resides just outside the limits of an Insolvency Court or has considerable property within such limits.

Coming to that part of the Statement of Objects and Reasons which refers to the difference between the Bill and the law on which it is modelled, I would remark, in regard to the question of jurisdiction to entertain applications for a declaration of insolvency, that by reason of the difficulty in the case of natives of proving the fact of residence at all, it seems desirable to amend the provision by including the personal carrying on of business or working for gain as grounds of jurisdiction. This would afford creditors larger and easier means of proving the point of jurisdiction, which would probably be frequently raised by reason of the limitations imposed on it by the draft Bill.

As regards the provisions of the Bill, it is not easy to foresee how details, for the most part adapted to English modes of business, would work in practice in India. My remarks, therefore, will be directed and confined to what appear to me to be omissions in the Bill rather than to criticising the propriety or efficiency of the proposed procedure.

Section 8 (1).—If it is intended, as I think it must be, to give the Court power to release the debtor from jail if he should be there when the receiving order is made, provision for that should be made here by empowering the Court to order the release of the debtor wheresoever he may be confined. The power to release from jail, even if the jail be without the jurisdiction of the Court, is necessary in view of the different grounds which confer insolvency jurisdiction.

(2)—Under Act XXVIII of 1866, the power of sale is only conferred in respect of mortgages to which English law is applicable, and unless this provision is limited to the exercise of such power, mortgages would be entitled to realize their securities by suit to the detriment of the interests of the unsecured creditors, which the expenses of the suit would occasion. This remark should be read in connexion with another, which I shall presently make in reference to the rights of mortgages (infra 2nd Schedule 12c).

Section 19 (4).—Provision similar to that previously suggested should be made here also for the release of the debtor from jail if not released at the time of making the receiving order.

Section 26 (1).—The right to summon others than the debtor should be limited, as in the Civil Procedure Code, with reference to the means of communication between their place of residence and the court-house.

(2) I would add after the word "sum" the words "for his travelling expenses and subsistence."

Section 45.—It is, I think, desirable that the power of the Courts to seize the property of a bankrupt should extend to any part of Her Majesty's dominions, suitable provision being made for the procuration of the necessary authority from the Court having jurisdiction where the property is situate.

Sections 82 and 83.—As the Bill was drafted before the amendment of the Burma Courts Act, 1875, by the Act of 1885, whereby the insolvent jurisdiction before exercised by the Recorder of Rangoon in Moulmein has been vested in the Judge of Moulmein, these sections should be altered so as to give the Court at Moulmein jurisdiction in bankruptcy by the direct operation of the proposed Act.

Part VII.—The usefulness of this chapter would be extended by providing that the Official Receiver shall not be required to pay the court-fees prescribed for proceedings in Court for the recovery of debts, but that the amount due for such fees shall be a first charge on any decree that may be obtained by him, or that it shall be payable out of the general funds of the estate. The difficulty also of investigating small claims of insolvents must, I should think, act prohibitively against the institution of suits for the recovery of such claims. If such suits were allowed to be brought on the statements made by insolvents in their schedules, greater responsibility would attach to such statements, and the burden of the suit would be rightly thrown on the person who, but for the intervention of the Receiver, would be the party to sue. The Official Receiver of course would be bound to satisfy himself as to the legality of the claim as disclosed by the facts stated in the schedule, but every other facility should be given him to realize the property of the debtor in the way I have indicated. No. 25 of the rules of the Calcutta High Court, framed under the present Insolvency Act, provides that the Official Assignee may sue without payment of office fees if he have no funds, but this does not include stamp-duty, to which my remarks are intended to apply.

Second Schedule 13 (c).—To meet the case of mortgagees whose securities exceed in value the amount of the debt, corresponding rights should, I think, be to the trustee to force a sale of mortgaged property at a reserved price equal to the amount due on the mortgage, as the trustee may not always be in a position to redeem.

The trustee should also have the right to sell the equity of redemption in mortgaged property if the mortgagee does not seek to foreclose his mortgage within some specified time.

From R. S. T. MAC EWEN, Esq., Officiating Recorder of Rangoon, to Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma,—(No. 164—51, dated the 20th August, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 100—26-L., dated 6th July last, forwarding copy of a draft Bill to amend the Law of Insolvency and Bankruptcy in India, and asking for an expression of opinion on the provisions of the Bill.

2. The Bill itself is a large measure and deals with a somewhat difficult and complex subject. It is drawn on the lines of the recent English Bankruptcy Statute, and would require much more time than I have at present at my disposal to examine its provisions in detail and consider their probable effect in the event of its becoming law. But I may say that a new Act dealing with insolvency and bankruptcy in India has long been felt to be a necessity, and I think the general feeling has been, both amongst lawyers and commercial men, that any measure of the kind which is undertaken should be as clear, simple, and effective as possible. Whether this Bill fully answers these requirements it is difficult to say without a much more minute examination of its provisions than I am now able to give to it.

3. Part I (sections 3—20) of the Bill deals with the procedure to be followed from an act of bankruptcy to discharge, and in cases of large bankruptcies, where the bankrupts are traders and the property for distribution is considerable, the provisions are no doubt to the advantage of creditors, but they are more cumbrous than under the present system, and will lead to greater expense in the administration of bankrupt estates. They will add considerably to the work of the Courts and of the Official Assignee (called Official Receiver in the Bill), and appear to contemplate (in large cases at least) the appointment of a trustee, other than the Official Receiver, in each bankruptcy. The appointment of such a trustee, except in large and intricate cases, seems unnecessary and undesirable. If generally adopted, the effect would be to take all bankruptcies likely to render reasonable remuneration to the trustee out of the hands of the Official Receiver and Trustee and to leave him with only such cases as would yield little or no returns; and as he is not a salaried officer, but dependent wholly upon commission for his own labour and the cost of his establishment, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to secure the services of competent persons as Official Receivers. If the commission to come to the Official Receiver is likely to be inadequate, the Government will have to pay a high salary to the Official Receiver and the cost of his establishment. For the duties imposed by the Bill on the Official Receiver are considerable and important, and must be performed by a professional lawyer. At present the Official Assignee and his establishment cost the Government nothing. No doubt section 20 leaves it in the discretion of the Court to appoint an independent trustee, but the appointment might be applied for by the creditors: the Official Receiver would probably object. At all events there would be a conflict of interests, and it might be difficult to refuse an application by the body or a majority of the creditors. Such applications would never be made in non-paying bankruptcies, and the practical effect might be to leave these and no others in the hands of the Official Receiver. It seems to be considered that there would be difficulty in finding non-official persons qualified and willing to act in such cases. I do not think this is so much to be apprehended, as the competition there would be for paying trusteeships. There are always a considerable number of persons ready to offer for any business that may be expected to pay, and sub-section (2) of section 64 contemplates the appointment of solicitors. It appears to me, therefore, that unless some restrictions are placed upon the appointment of non-official trustees, there is likely to be a good deal of competition for the business, and if appointments were freely made, it would be with the result just indicated. On the whole, I think the business is likely to be better performed in the hands of a responsible professional Official Receiver, and, in addition to the discretion imposed upon the Court in the matter, I think no appointment of a non-official trustee should be made except upon a resolution of three-fourths in number and value of the creditors, and that section 20, sub-section (2), should be altered to this effect.

4. The Bill (section 63) provides for the remuneration of non-official trustees, but it does not appear how the Official Receiver is to be paid. Of course if it is intended that he shall be a salaried officer and receive no commissions, then these observations will be inapplicable. But if he is to be on the footing of the present Official Assignee, they appear deserving of consideration; and if he is to be a salaried officer, it may be well to enquire from what source his salary and establishment are to be met. The only court-fee chargeable in insolvency cases is the ordinary petition fee of eight annas, and the fees for serving notices go to the messenger and not to the credit of Government.

5. The provisions of Part I are, it seems to me, unnecessarily complex for the large number of small bankruptcies which occupy so much of the time of the Courts at present. It is true Part VII provides a summary procedure for some, but not for all of these cases. It is only in cases where the property to be administered does not exceed Rs. 3,000 that this part applies. I annex a statement showing the number of insolvencies in this Court during the past three years, with the scheduled liabilities, assets, and actual recoveries. In 1882 there were 20 insolvencies, aggregating Rs. 4,54,401 of liabilities, and scheduled assets amounting to Rs. 2,12,526, while the total recoveries amounted to Rs. 23,187, and of this sum Rs. 20,163 was secured, the sum which the Official Assignee recovered for distribution amongst creditors being only Rs. 8,324.

In 1883, out of 22 insolvencies with total liabilities of Rs. 14,17,824 and scheduled assets of Rs. 6,32,792, Rs. 82,823 was all that was recovered. Of this sum, Rs. 60,080 was secured, and the balance, Rs. 22,743, the Official Assignee called in.

In 1884 the total liabilities in 49 insolvencies was Rs. 10,03,035. The assets as per schedule amounted to Rs. 7,82,933, the recoveries to Rs. 56,446, of which Rs. 39,782 was secured and the Official Assignee recovered Rs. 16,664.

It is not quite clear what "property of the debtor" in section 103 is intended to cover. If it means scheduled assets, then Chapter VII would apply to about one-half of the business in this Court. Of the 91 insolvencies shown in the statement it would apply to 47. Having regard, however, to the results in the remaining 44 cases, it appears to me that the limit might very well be raised to Rs. 5,000, and I think it might with safety and advantage be raised to Rs. 10,000. In three only out of the 91 cases has property of the value of Rs. 10,000 and upwards been administered, and in seven cases has property between Rs. 5,000 and Rs. 10,000 been recovered. In the remaining 81 cases the property actually administered was less than Rs. 5,000. In 53 cases absolutely nothing was recovered. The provisions of section 14 relating to meetings of creditors would be inapplicable to the whole of these 81 cases.

In 9 out of 10 of these cases the insolvents only come into Court for the purpose of obtaining a protection order. They are either in jail in execution of a Civil Court decree or are threatened with arrest; they have little or no property—in many cases absolutely none. They are nearly all petty traders or impecunious clerks and other persons; the number of their creditors and the individual debts are small; there is seldom much, if any, opposition, and the whole business in these cases is of a simple and rudimentary character. To apply the provisions and machinery of this Bill, to any great extent, to these cases would, in my opinion, be a mistake. The cost, trouble, and delay would far exceed the benefit to be derived. The estates would not bear the cost, which would therefore fall upon the Government.

6. I have very little doubt, although I have not the means of testing my opinion by returns, that in the presidency-towns the results will be found to be much the same as here. I think that if there was no imprisonment for debt there would be very little insolvency business in India; at all events it would be confined to bona fide trading bankruptcies. It seems to me that, no matter how stringent a bankruptcy law may be made, it will be taken advantage of so long as imprisonment for debt continues, and the Courts will be resorted to by a class of debtors who ought not to be able to get rid of their debts by means of an Act of this kind.

The true remedy is abolition of imprisonment for debt. It would curtail credit, and be immensely to the advantage of the public and the administration of justice. It would practically abolish small bankruptcies, save much legislation, the time of the Courts, and the expenditure of public money. I understand the question has lately been considered and it has been decided to retain imprisonment for debt. I think, however, it is well worthy of further consideration in connection with the subject of insolvency and this Bill.

7. Section 103 (b) provides that the committee of inspection may be dispensed with in small bankruptcies, and (c) allows for other modifications by rules. But this is an inconvenient arrangement, and the power to make rules which absolutely annul the direct provisions of an Act is often questioned. I think where modifications are considered necessary they ought to be made in the Act itself in this part. I am of opinion that all the provisions relating to meetings of creditors should be dispensed with in small bankruptcies, and that this modification should precede or follow clause (b).

8. I am also of opinion that in Courts where the Bankruptcy Act is in operation, Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code should not apply. The double jurisdiction and procedure lead to confusion, doubts, and uncertainty; persons will not know which procedure to come under, and objections and difficulties will be raised. As it is, Chapter XX has been very little used in the Courts now exercising insolvent jurisdiction. There is not a single instance of it in this Court, and until the High Court of Calcutta lately held that it had concurrent jurisdiction under the Civil Procedure Code, the power was doubted. At all events it had not been freely exercised. I am of opinion, therefore, that one of two courses ought to be followed with regard to this part of the subject—

- (1) Additional provisions ought to be added to Chapter XX to provide more fully for small bankruptcies, and they should be omitted from this Act altogether; or
- (2) Part VII ought to deal with them entirely and be the only law in the Courts to which the Act would apply, and Chapter XX of the Code should be restricted to Courts in which the Act did not apply.

I think the second is the preferable course, and that their proper place is in this Act; but the procedure should, as nearly as possible, be that of the Code.

9. This Court has not at present the machinery necessary to carry out the provisions of the Bill, and even if a Chief Court should be constituted for British Burma, it will require some addition to its establishment to work the Act properly if all bankruptcies, where the property likely to be realized exceeds Rs. 3,000, were to be made subject to the full provisions of the Act. The principal Civil Courts at Moulmein and Akyab have lately been invested with insolvency jurisdiction, and certainly they have not, and are not likely to obtain the establishments necessary for the purpose. The jurisdiction might no doubt revert to the Recorder or be vested in a Chief Court, but I think it would be a very great hardship to persons resident in these places to compel them to come to Rangoon in all cases of small bankruptcies. The principal Civil Courts in these places are quite competent to deal with small insolvencies, and with a simple procedure they would not require extra establishments. I think, therefore, that this is a matter of considerable importance so far as the seaport towns of this province are concerned.

10. Section 88 confers certain powers on the Judges of the Presidency Small Cause Courts. I see no objection to this provision. It will relieve the High Courts of a great deal of purely formal work and of a number of petty unopposed bankruptcies, and I presume the rules contemplated by sub-section (1) would fix a pecuniary limit beyond which these Courts could not receive or hear bankruptcy petitions. In the draft Bill to constitute a Chief Court for British Burma power has been taken to extend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act to Rangoon. Similar power might be taken to extend, at any time, the provisions of section 88 to the Small Cause Court of Rangoon, although I could not at present recommend that the powers given by the Bill should be exercised by the Rangoon Small Cause Court. But if that Court is reconstituted under the Presidency Acts, and the necessary establishments are allowed, there is no reason why it should not exercise the same powers as the Presidency Courts.

11. I entirely approve of the penultimate sections of the Bill. I think they are most necessary and will meet most of the cases which arise in practice.

From J. STUART, Esq., Secretary, Rangoon Chamber of Commerce, to Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma,—(dated the 5th December, 1885)..

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge receipt of your No. 101—26-L., dated the 6th July, 1885, asking the opinion of this Chamber on the draft Bill to amend the law of bankruptcy and insolvency in British India.

In reply I am directed to inform you that, as this was a matter involving legal knowledge for a complete understanding of the proposed alterations, the members of the Chamber did not feel themselves qualified to express an opinion. They, therefore, referred the matter to their legal adviser, and I am directed to forward to you his remarks on the proposed amendments.

I have further to apologise for the long delay in submitting an opinion on this matter, a delay which was occasioned by the references which Mr. Gillbanks, the Chamber's adviser, had to make as to the course of legislation in England on the same subject.

Note by MR. J. C. GILLBANKS, Barrister-at-Law, Rangoon,—(dated the 5th December, 1885).

FROM the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the proposed draft Bill to amend the law of bankruptcy it would appear that in 1870 a proposal of Sir James Stephen's to introduce virtually the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869 was by general opinion negatived as being too complicated for the mofussil and because the principle of voluntary management by creditors was considered unsuited to India. We think that for the same reasons the present proposed Bill is unsuited for the mofussil in Burma. A proposal in 1881 to amend the existing insolvency law was rejected on the ground that the law required recasting rather than amendment. We fully agree with this opinion, and we believe that nothing short of re-casting the law would be satisfactory. The present law does not seem to us to be cumbersome, though it certainly is defective and out of date.

The proposed Bill adopts the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883; thus we pass at once from legislation in 1848 (our present Insolvent Act is dated 9th June 1848) to an Act of 1883, a gap 35 years in legislation. We consider that it is eminently desirable to assimilate the law in force in India in insolvency to that in force in England and thus to afford our Courts the advantage of English decisions.

In the face of the opinions elicited by previous proposals we are not prepared to recommend at present that the proposed Bill should extend beyond the limits of Rangoon, Moulmein, Akyab, and Bassein as far as Burma is concerned, but we think it desirable that a proviso should be inserted giving power to the local Government to extend the Act to other places in this province when it shall be deemed desirable or necessary. Further, we consider it advisable that the jurisdiction in bankruptcy shall be vested in the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon (or such Court as may be constituted in its place), except as to Moulmein, where there is already a Judge, in whose Court the jurisdiction might be vested with a right of appeal. Provisions on this point must, however, await the passing of the new Burma Courts Act.

Some of the most important provisions of the Bill are those which apply to a composition in satisfaction of the debts due from the bankrupt, or for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs. These provisions remove some of the gravest defects of the existing Indian insolvency law, and they show the enormous gap in our legislative enactments, for the principle of deeds of arrangement, by which the property of an insolvent trader was made available for the common benefit of his creditors without his being adjudicated a bankrupt, was introduced in England as far back as 1825. Now, without any preparatory legislation it is proposed at once to progress from our legislation of 1848 (which was then more backward than English legislation) to the latest English enactment. We must admit that we are legally advised that it appears somewhat doubtful, whether as the proposed Bill is shorn of whatever advantages were expected from the control of the Board of Trade, it is desirable to follow so closely the English Act of 1883.

It may be broadly stated that the chief defects of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869 were in the provisions for liquidation of the debtor's affairs by arrangement and composition. These defects, it has been alleged, arose mostly from the improper use of proxies and the supineness of creditors, which led to the adoption of inadequate compositions through the influence of the debtors' friends and from the want of control over trustees in bankruptcy in case of liquidation by arrangement, the trustees being exempted from the control of the Court.

We presume that the principle of liquidation by arrangement under the voluntary management of creditors is no longer (as in 1870) considered unsuitable to India. From our experience in Rangoon and Burma we do not think the principle unsuited for this province. We may add that many instances of a desire to carry out such arrangements have come within our experience. Sometimes they have been frustrated because there was no method of making them compulsory, and no control could be exercised by the Insolvent Court. A similar want has been felt when a petition has been withdrawn upon arrangement with creditors.

In so far as a provisional order is only made for the protection of the bankrupt's estate when necessary in the first instance, and the creditors are to have a voice in deciding whether the debtor shall be adjudicated a bankrupt or his affairs be liquidated by composition or arrangement, we approve of the principle of the proposed Bill. If it appears that the approval of the Court, which is necessary, was obtained by fraud, or if it appears that in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, the composition or scheme cannot proceed without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or the debtor, the composition or scheme may be annulled without prejudice to anything done under it. This is a departure which we approve thoroughly; but at the same time we feel some doubt as to whether the proposed Bill is adapted in details to Indian circumstances. It is extremely stringent in many of its provisions, and we think complicated. We should prefer an Act embodying the main principles and features (with the exception of the important changes just noticed, which should be engrafted) of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869, which was not found to work badly, and could have been amended without much difficulty, rather than a close copy of an enactment, which has not been in force for two years, and of the working of which doubts have already been expressed.

We are hardly prepared at present to recommend the abolition of imprisonment for debt or the introduction of more of the provisions of the Debtors Act, 1869, than the proposed Bill contains.

The duties to be discharged under the English Act by the Board of Trade can, we conceive, only be undertaken by the Courts through properly appointed officers. The appointment of such an officer is much needed in Burma.

We can see no object in preserving any distinction between traders and non-traders.

The limitation of the jurisdiction of the Court, and the departure from the corresponding provisions of the English Act, are adapted to this province, and we think that domicile should be rejected as a ground of jurisdiction.

With regard to bankruptcy being a disqualification for certain officers. We consider that a provision for the removal of the disqualification on a bankruptcy being annulled might be provided for.

In sections 39 and 40 of the proposed Bill the provisions of section 295 of the Civil Procedure Code as to the time at which an attaching creditor's title becomes complete as against rival decree-holders will be that at which it becomes complete as against the trustee in bankruptcy. This seems to be a sufficient provision, and one which it is desirable to insert, for although it is in consonance with a decision in the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon there are decisions which conflict with that law.

At present it would not be desirable to overburden the Small Cause Court by jurisdiction in bankruptcy in petty cases transferred. But a provision for the delegation of such powers might be inserted, to be exercised when desirable, as it appears to have worked well in Madras.

The following are instances of the stringency of the proposed Bill:—

Section 3, (1) (c).—"If execution issued against him has been levied by sale of his property in any civil proceeding in British India."

If this is intended to include a foreclosure of a mortgage or order of sale in a suit on a mortgage, it is, we consider, too stringent: such a provision as that contained in the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, would be sufficient.

"That execution issued against the debtor on any legal process for the purpose of obtaining payment of not less than Rs. 500 has been levied by seizure and sale of his goods."

Section 15 (2).—The time for filing a statement of, and in relation to, his affairs by the debtor is extremely short: it is true that the Court may, for special reasons, extend it. By the present Act a debtor is allowed such time as the Court may deem reasonable.

Section 27, relating to the discharge of the bankrupt, especially 3 (a), which requires him to keep such accounts as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position for three years preceding his bankruptcy. For the present the analogous provisions of section 18 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1869 would suffice for Burma, which are shortly as follows:—(1) assent of creditors to closing of bankruptcy by special resolution; (2) that he has paid eight annas in the rupee, unless prevented by trustees conduct or circumstances, for which the bankrupt is not justly responsible, and that they desire his discharge, unless he has made default in giving up property required to be given up by the Act, or that he is being prosecuted under the Debtors Act, 1869. This might be complied with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, as to the status of an undischarged bankrupt (section 54).

Section 28, is stringent enough as to those debtors who are likely to make settlements on their wives, but it does not touch the case of immoveable property which is bought by a debtor and conveyed to his wife or child. Such transactions are, unfortunately, not uncommon, and some provisions might be inserted as to them. Partially provided for in section 41.

Section 54, restricted to Rs. 500. Under the present Act, no restriction as to amount. The rate of interest, 4 per cent., is very low; the usual Court rate allowed is 6 per cent., 9 per cent. being an average rate of interest.

Section 58—Property not divisible among creditors, only Rs. 200. At present Rs. 300. In the present state of exchange this is much below the value allowed by the English Act, 1883, nearly £20 (111) of this section is less stringent than section 23 of the present Insolvent Act on the words "in his trade or business" are inserted. Having regard to the abolition of the distinction between traders and non-traders, it would seem hardly desirable to insert these words, but rather to continue the former provisions of the reputed ownership clause.

Considering the heavy stamp duties exacted in India, and that certain conveyances, letters-of-attorney, &c., are by section 75 of the present Insolvent Act exempt from stamp duty, we hope that a section similar thereto, or to section 144 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, may be inserted in the new Act.

The provision that a creditor may convey his dissent to a composition or scheme by a letter in a prescribed form attested by a witness, section 17 (c) does not appear adapted to this country; a more formal attestation is necessary.

In section 59 it will be necessary to insert such provisions as would include a senior Judge of a Court not being a High Court; but this will depend on the new Burma Courts Act as far as this province is concerned.

We consider that it is unnecessary at present to introduce the most stringent provisions of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883, as they are, we think, not adapted to the circumstances of this province. And for the present, and until the English Act of 1883 has been longer in operation, and its advantages practically demonstrated, we would suggest that the main principles of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869 should be adopted with the requisite amendments, already mentioned, and with the adoption of the principle that the creditors are to have a voice in deciding whether the debtor shall be adjudicated a bankrupt or his affairs shall be liquidated by composition or arrangement. We hold that less complication and greater simplicity is necessary both to adapt the Act to Indian circumstances and to render it possible for our Courts and their officers to work an Act which will be such an enormous stride in legislation. Finally, we are glad that there has been a return to the older and more usual nomenclature, and that the terms 'bankrupt' and 'bankruptcy' will replace 'insolvent' and 'insolvency.'

From E. S. SYMES, Esq., Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 269—3L., dated 15th January, 1886).

WITH reference to paragraph 2 of my letter No. 352—26 L., dated the 15th ultimo, I am directed to submit a copy of a note by the Judicial Commissioner on the Bill to amend the Law relating to Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

Note by Judicial Commissioner, British Burma.

I HAVE compared the Bill with the English Statute, 46 & 47 Vic., cap. 52. With very few alterations the Bill reproduces the Statute. To criticize the Bill is in effect to discuss the Statute, which became law in England after very full consideration, and which is the outcome of the experience of some twenty years of the working of the Statute which it displaces. That Statute came into force just two years ago. I have no experience of its working and I can find very few cases bearing upon it.

It is desirable that the bankruptcy law of the Presidency-towns should as closely resemble that in force in England as local conditions will allow. I approve of the proposal to restrict the operation of the Bill to selected areas in which business is usually conducted on Western usages. As far as my own experience goes the greater part of the provisions of the Bill are unsuited to the small bankruptcies which usually come before the Courts of the interior, and those Courts have no agency for working the Bill.

From E. STACK, Esq., Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Assam, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 1047, dated 7th June, 1885).

IN reply to your letter No. 1045, dated the 17th June, 1885, I am directed to say that the Chief Commissioner thinks it unnecessary to offer any remarks on the Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency, as the proposed Act is not likely to be wanted in this Province.

From A. MARTINDALE, Esq., Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Coorg, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 610—70, dated 3rd July, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1046, dated the 17th of June, 1885, forwarding for an expression of the Chief Commissioner's opinion, a draft Bill to amend the Law relating to Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, with draft Statement of Objects and Reasons.

2. In reply, I am to say that, so far as the Officiating Chief Commissioner is able to judge, the Bill seems suited to the circumstances of the places to which it is proposed to apply it in the event of its becoming law.

From LIEUT. COLONEL SIR E. R. C. BRADFORD, Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwara, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 807, dated 29th July, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1047, dated the 17th of May, 1885, forwarding copies of the papers noted on the margin, and in reply to state that I have no observations to offer on the provisions of the draft Bill.

Draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, with draft Statement of Objects and Reasons.

From J. R. FITZGERALD, Esq., Secretary for Berar to Resident, Hyderabad, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 570(L), dated 7th December, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1048, dated the 17th June, forwarding, for the opinion of the Resident at Hyderabad, a draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. In reply, I am to inform you that, as the operation of the Bill is by paragraph 11 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons expressly and closely limited to certain seaport towns and commercial centres, of which none exist in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, Mr. Cordery has no observations to offer in the matter.

From R. BELCHAMBERS, Esq., Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 107, dated 13th February, 1886).

I SEND herewith copy of a letter from the Official Assignee and the original note received therewith.

From J. C. MACGREGOR, Esq., Official Assignee, Calcutta, to Registrar, High Court, Calcutta,—(No. 76, dated 13th February, 1886).

I HAVE the honour to enclose herewith a note on the Draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

Note.

THE draft Bankruptcy Bill is, in my opinion, calculated to effect a great improvement on the existing law, but I think that it follows the lines of the English Statute too closely, and requires certain alterations and modifications to adapt it to the requirements of this country. In the following note I have attempted to indicate section by section the amendments which seem to me to be most necessary or desirable.

Section 3 (1) (d)—I would add the words "or closes his place of business". A considerable number of the persons who pass through the Insolvent Court are Marwaries, who reside in Native States and carry on business in the Presidency-towns by their gunashtas. Some such words as I have suggested would seem to be required to meet their cases.

I think the following clause, or one to the same effect, might be added with advantage:—"or suffers himself to be arrested or taken in execution for a debt not due, or submits collusively, or fraudulently to an adverse decree, or procures himself, or his property, movable or immovable, to be attached or taken in execution."

Section 3 (1) (c) and (g).—These clauses are very sweeping; I think they should be modified.

Section 7—I think the question is worthy of consideration whether up-country debtors, Native or European, should not be allowed to seek relief in the Bankruptcy Courts. The provisions of Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code apply only to judgment-debtors, they are very defective in many respects, and residents in the Mufassal have practically no really effective insolvency law.

Section 9 (2).—The power given to the Bankruptcy Court to stay suits, executions and other proceedings against the debtor in any Court should prove highly useful. When a debtor having property in the Mufassal files a petition of insolvency, his up-country creditors at once proceed to sue him in the local Courts, and to attach his property, and, as the staying of such proceedings is, under the present law, a matter of some difficulty, the trouble, cost and delay of winding up his estate are greatly increased.

Section 11—The Official Receiver should be empowered to appoint a special manager, with or without an application by the creditors, whenever he considers such functionary necessary. He should also be empowered to appoint the debtor to be special manager if he considers such appointment expedient, and without having imposed upon him the necessity of first procuring the sanction of the Court. It should further be provided that in the event of a private trustee not being appointed the special manager should be continued so long as the Official Receiver deems his services necessary.

The Official Receiver, who makes the appointment, might also be allowed to settle what security should be given by the special manager, and what remuneration, within certain limits prescribed by rule, he should be allowed. For reasons of economy, as well as of expedition, it is desirable to dispense, as far as may be, with frequent applications to the Court.

Section 14.—The provisions as to meetings of creditors do not seem to me to be suited for India. I believe that, in nine cases out of ten, creditors will not take the trouble to attend, or, at any rate, that only two or three of them will do so. In my opinion, it would be well to omit all the provisions and rules as to meetings, or the proceeding by meetings might be made the exception instead of the rule, power being given to the Court to direct that, in any particular bankruptcy, meetings should be held. When no such direction is given the holding of meetings should not be compulsory but should be left to the discretion of the Official Receiver or Trustee. It might also be provided that a meeting should be called on a requisition signed by a certain number of creditors.

Section 15 (2).—Provision should be made for the preparation of the statement of affairs in the event of the debtor absconding or neglecting to prepare it. The present practice seems a convenient one and might be adopted. The Court, on the application of the Official Assignee or a creditor, directs the Chief Clerk to issue advertisements calling upon creditors to bring in statements of their claims supported by affidavit before a fixed date, and the Chief Clerk prepares a schedule from such statements.

The proviso to section 62 (2) authorizes the Official Receiver to employ some persons to assist "in the preparation of a statement of affairs" when the debtor himself cannot prepare it, but that does not go far enough, and will not be found sufficient in the not uncommon cases of residents up-country who hide in their native villages and put the Court at defiance.

Section 16 (9).—The declaration that the debtor's examination is concluded should not prevent his being brought up for further examination in the event of fresh facts transpiring which render such further examination desirable.

Section 17.—If, as I have suggested above, the provisions regarding meetings are omitted or not made compulsory in all cases, this section must be altered. The best plan would seem to be to enact that when a debtor makes a proposal for composition such proposal shall be submitted, in the first instance, to the Official Receiver who, if he considers it reasonable, shall either call a meeting of, or submit the proposal by circular to, the credthat a large number of estates, some of them involving great labour and responsibility, bring him absolutely no remuneration. But I fail to see the justice of denying him commission on sums which he may pay to secured creditors out of the proceeds of their securities. If he has the trouble of realising those securities he should surely be paid for that trouble. This is recognised by the general rules passed under several of the English Bankruptcy Acts (see General Rules under Act of 1883 Nos 65 to 69), which direct that when a trustee sells mortgaged property under order of Court his commission and costs shall be a first charge on the proceeds.

I would further remark that the fixing of the remuneration should not be left to the creditors, to do so will give rise to bargaining and will have the effect of degrading the office of trustee. The remuneration should be regulated either by the Act or by a rule of court.

Section 64 (3) would seem to imply that the trustees must get the sanction of the Court before employing solicitors, auctioneers, &c. This will necessitate frequent applications to the Court, always attended with more or less expense and delay. The employment of such persons might be left to the discretion of the trustee.

Section 65.—The provisions regarding the bankruptcy estates account will impose considerable labour upon the Court, and will necessitate the creation of a new establishment. At present all moneys and securities belonging to insolvent estates are deposited in the Bank of Bengal in the name of the Official Assignee, and that officer has a staff which is specially adapted for, and well acquainted with, the keeping of the necessary accounts, while the fact that his accounts are regularly and strictly audited by the Comptroller General's Office affords an effectual guarantee against fraud or carelessness. I have already suggested that the Official Assignee should be appointed Official Receiver, and that his staff should be taken over by the Official Receiver. I would add the further suggestion that the bankruptcy estates account should be kept in his name and under his control, the system of a Government audit and a half yearly report by the auditors to the Chief Justice being continued as at present.

Section 67 (1).—The investment in Government securities should stand in the name of the Official Receiver, and the interest should be devoted to paying his salary and pension (if he is to be remunerated by salary), the salaries and pensions of his establishment, his office and audit charges, and to the costs of advertising and of administering poor estates, so as to leave as large a portion as possible of the assets available for the creditors. This is the present system, which was established many years ago with the sanction of the then Chief Justice on the recommendation of the auditors of the Official Assignee's accounts. It has the advantage of utilising for the general purposes of administration of insolvent estates a large number of cash balances of individual estates which, by reason of their smallness or liability to immediate demands, could not be separately invested. It removes from the charge of individual estates the heavy burden of a proportional share of the cost of administration, and substitutes a simple and economical machinery for a clumsy and costly system.

Section 67 (2).—The proposed procedure will take time and cause some expense. If the invested funds are allowed to stand in the name of the Official Receiver for the time being, he can, when necessary, sell them with a minimum of delay and expense, and the audit will be an effectual check upon any misuse of that power.

Section 68.—In this section I would substitute "Official Receiver" for "Court" in respect of all cases in which a private trustee is appointed. Where the Official Receiver is acting as trustee the regular Government audit of, and periodical report upon his accounts will suffice. These alterations would save the Court much labour without diminishing the efficacy of the proposed checks.

Section 72. My remarks on section 68 will apply mutatis mutandis to this section also.

Section 70. I would substitute the words "Official Receiver" for "committee of inspection." See notes on sections 20 and 50 ante.

Section 88.—The delegation of powers to a Judge of the Small Cause Court seems most objectionable. The time of the Judges of that court is already very fully occupied, examinations of debtors or of persons suspected of having in their possession property of the debtor frequently take up several days, and it is certain that in a large number of cases the Small Cause Court would not be able, without a considerable increase to the number of Judges, to give those matters the time and attention they require. Moreover, complicated and difficult questions of law are so frequently in bankruptcy proceedings that it is most desirable that every step should be taken before a Judge of the High Court. I agree with the Select Committee on the Small Cause Courts Bill of 1880 in thinking that unless the Small Cause Courts are to hear cases which, owing to their length, intricacy and difficulty, ought to be removed to the High Court, the saving of time to the latter tribunal will be altogether unimportant. If a Judge suggested the powers of the Official Receiver are extended, he will be able to dispose of a large portion of the petty business. Should his aid not suffice, I would, I believe, be found better and cheaper to appoint a special Registrar for bankruptcy business, as in England, than to delegate a portion of that business to the already overburdened Small Cause Court.

Section 91.—If the bankruptcy Courts are allowed to delegate powers to a Small Cause Court Judge, there should be a provision for appeal from his orders.

Section 94.—I think it would be advisable to empower the Court to give the carriage of proceedings to the Official Receiver or trustee whenever it has reason to suspect that the want of diligence on the part of the petitioning creditor is due to his having made an illegal arrangement with the debtor. The case is one of frequent occurrence in this country.

Section 103 (b).—I would omit the words "with the permission of the Court," as their retention will necessitate frequent applications to the Court with their attendant delay and cost. The Official Receiver, as a permanent officer of the Court, may be entrusted with a wide discretion, and his position will be a sufficient guarantee against abuse of that discretion.

Section 105.—The following offences, all of which are common in this country, might be added to the list of offences which will render a debtor liable to punishment under this section, namely—fraudulently making away with property, improperly interfering with or hindering the trustee in the realization of the bankrupt's property, doing, or procuring the doing of, any act which is likely to prevent the disposal of the property at its full value (for instance, inducing bidders to absent themselves from the trustee's sales), showing fraudulent preference to any creditor, entering into a composition with his creditors or any of them without giving notice thereof to the Official Receiver or trustee, inducing any creditor by an illegal gratification or preference to withhold or neglect to proceed with a petition, or to acquiesce in the discharge of the bankrupt.

Section 110.—The bankruptcy Court should be empowered to try offences under the Act, and to pass sentence, without sending the offender to the ordinary Criminal Courts.

Section 113.—This section would seem to exclude ordinary business partnerships from the operation of the Act. It is not, however, likely to be held to have that meaning as it follows the words of the English Statute, and there is no doubt that such partnerships are constantly adjudicated in England. Still it might be well to make the wording clearer.

Section 115 (2).—The present system of investing unclaimed dividends in the name of the Official Assignee, and devoting the interest to the maintenance of his office and to administering poor estates, works well, and there seems no reason why it should not be continued. See note on section 67 (1) ante.

Schedule II.—The English rules regarding the sale of mortgaged property and the taking of mortgagees' accounts (General Rules 65 to 69) are frequently followed here. They have been found to work admirably and to effect a considerable saving of time and expense in realizing mortgage securities. I would suggest their incorporation in this schedule. The rules in question are substantially the same as those issued by Lord

Loughborough in 1794, and the fact that they have been retained, with slight alterations, under the various Bankruptcy Acts passed since that date is strong evidence of their utility.

I have now finished my remarks on the Draft Bill, but before closing my note I desire to add a few words on subjects not mentioned therein.

First.—I submit that Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code should be repealed as regards the local limits of the Courts created under the new law. There seems no valid reason for maintaining in the same place two entirely distinct systems of insolvency law. That the application of Chapter XX to the Presidency-towns has not caused very great confusion is, I take it due only to the rarity of the instances in which the provisions of that chapter have been used. There is, however, a recent case in which the two systems came into direct conflict. I allude to Pigot v. Hastie (I.L.R. 11 Cal.). The defendant, Mr. Hastie, was on his own application declared an insolvent under the Civil Procedure Code, and was on the same day adjudicated under the provisions of 11 & 12 Vic. c. 21, on the petition of the plaintiff. The fact that the Official Assignee, in whom his estate became vested under the latter proceeding, was also appointed Receiver under the former, alone prevented the raising of serious difficulties and confusion. Moreover, the principles of the Civil Procedure Code insolvency, although they may be adapted for the Mufassal, are altogether unsuited for the Presidency-towns, and will be quite out of place beside the elaborate system of the new measure.

Second.—The introduction, either as part of the Bill or as a separate enactment, of a system of compulsory registration of mortgages on moveable property, similar to the English Bills of Sale Acts, would be a most valuable auxiliary to the bankruptcy law. It is a matter of frequent occurrence, when a tradesman comes before the Insolvent Court, to find that his entire assets are mortgaged to one or two creditors, and that he has been trading for years on a credit which he would certainly never have obtained had there been any means of ascertaining the real state of his affairs. A notable instance of this kind occurred some months ago, when, on the occasion of a well-known and old established trading firm in Calcutta becoming insolvent, it transpired for the first time that their entire stock-in-trade and outstandings were mortgaged to two creditors, who stepped in at once and seized and sold the property. There are some 500 other creditors, to some of whom the firm owed large sums, and none of whom are likely to get any dividend, the entire assets having been swallowed up by the mortgage-debts. It may safely be assumed that had the mortgages been registered, thus affording the public an opportunity of learning their existence, the firm in question would not have obtained such long and extensive credit, and many of the 500 unsecured creditors would have been saved from serious loss. This is only one of many similar instances which have occurred lately.

Third.—A system of compulsory registration of business-partnerships would also be highly valuable.

Fourth.—The system of what are known as bendmi transactions is one of the most serious difficulties in the administration of insolvent estates and if any means could be devised of grappling with it successfully an enormous boon would be conferred upon the country. I am well aware of the great difficulty of the subject, and I merely throw out the suggestion as one which might be appropriately considered concurrently with the amendment of the bankruptcy law.

From C. A. WILKINS, Esq., Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 570, dated 27th February, 1886).

In continuation of my letter No. 3049 of the 30th November, 1885, I am directed to forward the accompanying printed copy of a report prepared by a sub-committee of the Judges of this Court, as well as a printed copy of a note* by the Official Assignee, on the provisions of the Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. I am to request that you will be good enough to submit these papers for the consideration of the Governor General in Council.

3. I am to add that the High Court concurs generally in the observations made by its sub-committee, and that any further observations that may occur to any individual Judge will be communicated in due course for the information of His Excellency in Council.

Report of the Committee of Judges appointed to consider the provisions of the Bankruptcy Bill.

WE regret the lapse of time which has occurred since the Bankruptcy Bill was submitted for our opinion; but the changes which are sought to be introduced by the Bill required grave consideration, and it has therefore been impossible to avoid the delay which has taken place.

We have held repeated sittings, and have come to the conclusions which are hereafter particularly mentioned.

We were met by the preliminary difficulty that the Bill as drafted is, as it professes to be, a reproduction of the last English Bankruptcy Act, introducing English law and methods of procedure and English phraseology, and we had to decide whether the proposal to introduce the English Bankruptcy Act with modifications into this country, offered advantages sufficient to counterbalance the mischief of completely upsetting a system to which, from the practice of many years, the Court, the practitioners and the suitors had become accustomed.

We have come to the general conclusion that much of the substance of the English law and system of procedure may be introduced in India, but that some important parts of it are wholly inapplicable.

On the other hand we think it preferable to adopt the phraseology of the English Act, except where there is strong reason for not doing so, as thereby the Courts in this country will have the assistance of the decisions of the English Courts.

For the sake of convenience we have dealt with the Bill in the order of the sections.

The following are our recommendations:—

1. We think the proposed form of legislation open to question. An enabling Statute followed by an Indian Act will give rise to questions as to whether the Indian Act has exceeded the powers given to it by the English Statute. The best course will be for the Indian legislature to pass such Act as may be deemed suited to the requirements of the country, and then to obtain from Parliament a Statute confirming and ratifying the Indian Act.

2. We do not think that the provisions for the appointment of trustees and of committees of inspection are suited to this country. It will be very difficult in most cases to induce creditors to meet together, and in many cases it will be quite impossible to expect creditors residing at a distance to attend any meeting.

Power is given to the Court by section 17 of the Indian Insolvent Act (11 & 12 Vic. cap. 21) to order the election of assignees by the creditors; but such power has rarely, if ever, been exercised. As far as we can ascertain, in only one case in recent years have creditors applied to the Court for an order under this section; but, although this shows that creditors prefer to see the estates of insolvents administered by the Official Assignee, there would be no harm in inserting in the new Act a provision similar to that contained in section 17 of the present Act.

Shortly, the objections to the administration of insolvent estates by creditors through trustees and committees of inspection are—

- (1) danger to the interests of creditors residing at a distance: the whole administration would be in the hands of Calcutta creditors;
- (2) the general body of creditors would not place the same amount of confidence in a trustee or in a committee of inspection as they would in a competent court officer such as the Official Assignee;
- (3) the expenses of an administration by the creditors would be very large: in all cases the trustee, and in many cases the committee of inspection, would have to be remunerated; the former would be paid by commission, but the latter would be paid according to the number of their meetings, and would therefore not be inclined to expedite the winding up of the estates; with an Official Assignee representing the creditors, the legal expenses of the administration are minimised, as the Official Assignee is usually a Barrister of some standing: in the case of administration by the creditors, no step would be taken without legal assistance, which would have to be paid for out of the estate.

For these reasons we would strike out from the Bill, as now drawn, the following sections, namely:—sections 11, 14, 17, 18, 19 (sub-sections (2) and (3)), 20, 21, 22, so much of section 23 as relates to meetings of creditors, sections 63 to 81 (both inclusive), section 103, sub-section (b), and section 118; and the following sections will require alteration, namely:—sections 47, 50, 110 and 132. The first schedule will also become unnecessary.

3. We think it important that the insolvency sections of the Procedure Code should cease to apply to the Presidency towns.

As the law at present stands it is possible for a debtor in Calcutta to seek relief from his debts both under the Civil Procedure Code and under the Insolvent Act. The main advantage to an insolvent of proceeding under the Code is that he can under section 336 be relieved from imprisonment as soon as he is arrested. The main advantage of proceeding under the Act is that if he be a trader he can get his final discharge without paying any portion of his debts. There are also many other points of difference between the two systems of insolvency, that under the Code being very unsuited to the requirements of a commercial city like Calcutta.

The disadvantages of having two different systems of insolvency law and procedure applicable to the same place do not require enumeration. They have been made apparent in two cases, in which recently attempts have been made to work the two systems concurrently (in the matter of Hastie, I. L. R. 11 Cal. 151, and in the matter of Leckie, now pending).

4. We recommend that the expression "vesting order" should take the place of the expression "receiving order" in the Act, and that the court officer to whom the management of the estates of insolvents is to be entrusted should be called the "Official Assignee" and not the "Official Receiver." There is already an Official Receiver of the High Court, and the appointment of another officer with the same official designation but with different powers and duties would lead to confusion.

5. Section 3, sub-section (1) (d), should be altered to meet the case of a man carrying on a business by himself, or by his agent or gumāshtā, and closing such business. Under the 9th section of the present Insolvent Act, a trader who with intent to defeat or delay his creditors departs from his usual place of business within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is liable to be adjudicated an insolvent, and it is on this ground that most adjudications are made.

We do not think that paragraphs (c) and (g) of sub-section (1) of section 3 ought to be retained. In their place we would recommend the introduction of provisions similar to those contained in sections 8 and 9 of the present Act, as to persons lying in prison 21 days, and as to fraudulent executions, including not only executions in fraud of creditors generally but also executions in the nature of fraudulent preferences.

6. The effect of the proposed Act would be to limit the insolvency jurisdiction of the High Courts. By section 18 of the Charter of the Calcutta High Court (1865) it is provided "that the Court for Relief of Insolvent Debtors at Calcutta shall be held before one of the Judges of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal; and the said High Court, and any such Judge thereof, shall have and exercise, within the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, such powers and authorities with respect to original and appellate jurisdiction and otherwise as are constituted by the laws relating to insolvent debtors in India." By section 5 of the Indian Insolvent Act an insolvent debtor who is in prison within the limits of the town of Calcutta, or who resides within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court at Calcutta, can petition for relief. The Supreme Court at Calcutta had a personal jurisdiction over all European British subjects residing in Bengal. Their jurisdiction over persons other than European British subjects was limited to the town of Calcutta. It is settled law that the effect of these provisions is to entitle all European British subjects who reside in Bengal to petition for relief from their debts, but that persons other than European British subjects cannot so petition unless they actually reside within the limits of Calcutta. In the cases of creditors' petitions the only limit of jurisdiction seems to arise from the acts of bankruptcy, some of which are restricted to the areas mentioned in the Insolvent Act. This is not a question of a choice between two jurisdictions, as the insolvency procedure applicable to Courts outside Calcutta cannot pretend to be efficient or to meet in the smallest degree the requirements of the commercial classes. We think therefore that the present insolvency jurisdiction of the High Court in this respect should not be curtailed.

7. We think that in the case of a debtor's petition the vesting order should be made at once, and as a matter of course, on the reception of the petition.

In the case of a creditor's petition we think that, as at present, if a prima facie case be made out on the petition, the debtor should be adjudicated an insolvent and his property vested in the Official Assignee at once. Any delay in making the vesting order would make it impossible in most cases to save any of the debtor's property for his creditors. In order to prevent the risk of an improper adjudication it will be well to provide that the debtor may at any time before his public examination come in and apply to have his adjudication annulled, and that it shall be so annulled unless the creditor satisfies the Court that the debtor has committed an act of bankruptcy. Section 19, sub-sections (2) and (3), might therefore be omitted from the Bill.

8. Section 9 of the proposed Bill does not clearly provide for ad interim protection-orders, and therefore we recommend that power should be given to the Court, in terms similar to the provisions of section 13 of the Indian Insolvent Act, to grant orders for the protection of insolvents for such time as the Court might direct. The granting of such protection should be within the discretion of the Court, and the Court should have power to revoke a protection-order at any time.

9. We think that the mere fact "that a majority of the creditors in number and value are resident in the United Kingdom or in any other part of Her Majesty's dominions beyond the limits of British India" should not give a creditor or other person the right to set aside an adjudication, and we recommend that in section 13 of the Bill the above words in italics should be transposed and placed between the words "the debtor" and the words "other cause" later on in the same section.

10. With reference to section 15, sub-section (1), we think that the statement of affairs should be filed in court, and that a copy should be filed in the office of the Official Assignee. It is necessary that there should be two copies, and it is desirable that of the two the one filed in court should be taken as the original statement with respect to sub-section (1) of section 15. We think that the statement therein mentioned should be in a written application for inspection, to be filed in court.

11. Section 16, sub-section (9), should empower the Court at any subsequent stage to reopen the public examination and to order a fresh examination of the debtor.

12. We do not think that in this country any creditors, however superior in number or value, should be able to force a composition upon the other creditors.

13. Section 23 should require the insolvent to attend at the Official Assignee's office or wherever required by the Official Assignee, and to give that officer every assistance in realizing his estate and distributing the proceeds.

14. All references to a bankruptcy-notice should be struck out of section 34.

15. In addition to the powers mentioned in section 26 we think that the Court should have power at any time after a vesting order has been made, upon application by the Official Assignee ex parte, to make an order empowering the Official Assignee to take possession of any property as the property of the insolvent. With regard to such property and also with regard to other property which may be claimed by the Official Assignee or the creditors to belong to the estate, we think that the Court should have the same power as in a regular suit, and with the same right of appeal to determine finally all questions between the insolvent's estate and persons in possession of or claiming such property. The High Court should be empowered to frame rules of procedure for the trial of these questions, and also for the payment of the expenses of witnesses to be examined under section 26.

16. Section 27 of the proposed Bill seems to place upon the opposing creditor the burden of proving that the debtor is unworthy of obtaining his discharge. We think that a debtor should, before any relief is granted to him, satisfy the Court, not only that he has not been guilty of the acts specified in the Bill as disentitling him to his discharge, but also that he has been neither dishonest in his dealings nor culpably imprudent in respect of his personal expenditure or the conduct of his business. This principle has been recognized by the legislature in section 351 of the Civil Procedure Code.

We think that section 27 should be altered so as to permit the debtor, should the Court refuse to grant him a discharge, to renew his application for such discharge at a future date; otherwise it might be held that if the Court had once refused to grant an order of discharge the debtor was for ever thereafter debarred from obtaining such discharge. On the other hand it will be necessary by some limitation to prevent frequent applications to the Court upon the same materials.

17. It will be necessary to provide for the discharge of the debtor in the case of the whole body of his creditors releasing him from the whole or a portion of his debts. Section 58 will also have to be altered to meet this event.

18. With reference to section 20 of the Bill we think it will be as well to give the Court power in discharging an insolvent to exempt him from arrest, either generally, or with the exception of particular debts, or after such period as to the Court may seem fit.

We would also recommend that in this section the words "any person for any offence against an enactment relating to any branch of the public revenue" should be struck out, and that the words "Secretary of State" be substituted therefor.

19. In the case of an adjudication being annulled on the ground that the debt alleged by the petitioning creditor was not a good debt, we think that the Court should have power to allow the bankruptcy to proceed as upon the debt of another creditor.

20. With reference to section 36, we would point out that in Calcutta rents are payable monthly, and that, therefore, the landlord should not be entitled after the bankruptcy to levy for more than three months' rent.

21. With regard to section 37 we think that in the case of a debtor's petition the assignee's title should commence at the date of the vesting order, and not before.

22. We do not think that an attaching creditor should be entitled to any priority over other creditors, unless the proceeds of execution have been paid to him. This alteration might be effected by striking out from section 39 the words "realised in the course of execution by sale or otherwise," and substituting therefor the words "actually received by such person."

As the law at present stands, a creditor who procures an attachment before the vesting order is in a better position by reason of the insolvency of his debtor than he would be without it, as he obtains a title preferable to that of the general body of creditors; and other decree-holders who would, under the Code, on obtaining orders for attachment, be entitled to share pari passu with him, are prevented by the insolvency from effecting attachments.

23. Section 50 should be altered so as to give the Official Assignee, with the leave of the Court, power to do the acts therein mentioned.

24. As to sub-section (1) of section 62, the only part which, having regard to our previous recommendation, need remain, is the part relating to advertisements. The duties, powers and liabilities of the Official Assignee should, however, be clearly defined. We think that his liability should only extend to assets in his hands, unless the Court should find that he had not acted bona fide in the performance of his duties. We also recommend that he should be entitled to at least one month's notice of action in respect of acts done by him in his official capacity.

25. In sub-section (2) of section 62 the words from "but shall" to "claiming to be creditors" should be struck out.

26. Part V of the Bill requires alteration to meet the case of the Official Assignee, who is an officer of the court. The Court should have power to determine the amount of commission or percentage payable to him. We think that if, at the request of a secured creditor, he realizes the security, the Court should have power to sanction the payment to him of a percentage on the amount realised.

27. We do not think it desirable that the extension of the Act to local Courts as contemplated by section 82, clause (c), and section 83, clause (c), should be carried out, except through the action of the supreme legislature.

28. We have already discussed the effect of section 83, clause (a).

29. We think that section 85 should be struck out, and that the Insolvency Court at Calcutta should have power to transfer to itself any insolvency proceedings under the Civil Procedure Code which may at any time be pending in the Civil Courts subject to the High Court.

30. We think that section 89 should be struck out.

31. It should be made clear that the powers proposed to be given to the Court by section 90 extend to persons other than insolvent debtors and their creditors.

32. Having regard to our other recommendations, section 99 requires alteration, and section 103 (b) and the proviso at the end of section 103 should be struck out.

33. If section 109 is intended to apply to compositions under the Act, it should in our opinion be struck out.

34. We presume that it is intended by section 113 to prevent a receiving order being made against a partnership in its firm name. If so, the section should be made clearer.

35. We do not recommend that estates of persons dying insolvent should be administered in the Bankruptcy Court, except in the cases where they die during the pendency of bankruptcy-proceedings.

36. Having regard to our previous recommendations, it will be unnecessary to retain the second paragraph of section 132.

37. We think that the rights of present officers of the Insolvent Court in respect of pension or otherwise should be saved.

In conclusion we wish to remark that in this report we have only called attention to the general principles on which we think the Bill requires alteration.

There are many questions of detail which will have to be considered before a Bankruptcy Bill is passed into law.

From S. E. J. CLARKE, Esq., Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(dated 30th April, 1886).

My Committee have submitted their remarks upon the new Bankruptcy Bill for India to the Government of Bengal, who will doubtless forward them to you in due course, but in order to save time now that the draft Bill is before the Legislative Council I am directed to send you with this letter four extra copies of the Chamber's letter of this date.

From S. E. J. CLARKE, Esq., Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce, to Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(dated 30th April, 1886).

I AM directed by my Committee, in reply to your No. 1335 J. D. of 8th July last, to submit the following observations upon the draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

Generally, my Committee are of opinion that the Bill makes a much needed improvement in the law at present in force. Should the Bill become law, and if its administration be carried out with close care and attention, it will do much to simplify proceedings in insolvency and, my Committee believe, to check fraudulent bankruptcies. It will thus afford a larger measure of convenience than heretofore to unfortunate persons, whilst at the same time it will extend to creditors some measure of that protection which the mercantile community especially have long desiderated, and the need for which has been pressed upon the Government at various times by the Chamber of Commerce.

Whilst accepting the Bill as an improvement upon the existing law, my Committee think that in some points it does not sufficiently recognise the peculiar circumstances of India, or the difficulties which those circumstances frequently place in the way of creditors, or the facilities which are offered to Native dealers in evading the payment of their debts. This subject has been long before the Government and the public; and, whilst admitting the difficulties which surround it, my Committee still think it is a matter to be kept very closely in mind in framing any new insolvency law for British India. Indeed, in spite of the failure, some years ago, which attended the attempt to frame a Bill to provide for the registration of partnerships, my Committee cannot but consider that it is extremely desirable that a new enquiry should be made with the view to ascertain whether such a registration cannot be secured, or to bring into prominence the existing provisions of the law in India which afford to some extent the protection to be derived from such a measure. Since the failure both in Bombay and Calcutta to draft a satisfactory Bill dealing with this subject some change has come over the views of Native merchants, and the more prominent among them have evinced a desire to have the question re-opened. Those who have transactions directly with English markets and in the natural development of Indian trade, the number of whom is slowly but steadily increasing, evince quite as much anxiety for the passing of a law to compel a registration of partnerships as the European mercantile community. It would be well if, in connection with so large and important a measure as a new Bankruptcy Bill for all India, a careful and exhaustive enquiry were made into the subject of the registration of partnerships.

Another extremely difficult subject to deal with, but one which, when a bankruptcy measure is before the legislature, should not be overlooked, is the practical exemption which a fraudulent Native trader can acquire by taking shelter within the jurisdiction of some Native State. My Committee are aware of instances where Europeans have availed themselves of this shelter to avoid decrees of the High Court, and though in the case of Europeans the shelter might not be so effectual as in the case of Natives, yet the fact ought not to escape the attention of the legislature that under present circumstances for a Native insolvent to cross from British into Native territory is to give him an immunity the certainty of obtaining which is found to encourage reckless speculation and a ready resort to fraudulent practices. The impunity with which a fraudulent Native debtor can set his creditors at defiance, and in especial the smallness of the dividends derivable from the estates of Native insolvents, have been grievances of the mercantile community in this city for very many years. Indeed, so far back as 1853, the latter formed the subject of a reference from the Chamber of Commerce to Mr. John Cochrane, the then Official Assignee. What the Chamber then complained of is still a serious ground of complaint. There seems to be no good reason why, with proper precautions, decrees of the Indian High Courts should not be allowed to run in the jurisdiction of Native States. The matter is one which my Committee feel is most properly within the province of the Foreign Department of the Government of India, but they see no reason why the Legislative Department should not move the Foreign Office to deal effectually with so important a question, nor why the Foreign Department should not undertake this task in close communication with the Legislative Department, and, if need be, with the Judges of the High Courts in India. The greater the improvement in the bankruptcy law of India and the greater the simplicity which may mark the procedure of the Insolvency Courts, the greater will be the anxiety of a Native insolvent who has been guilty of fraud, concealment of property, the setting up of fictitious co-partners or wrongful preference of particular creditors to avoid appearing before an Insolvency Commissioner; and in this way it may well happen that improvements in law and procedure will have a tendency to accentuate and render more acute the grievance alluded to above and which is felt equally in all the great trading centres of India.

One change of great moment effected by the Bill is that which makes a trustee appointed by the creditors the primary authority for administering an insolvent's estate, whilst the Official Receiver is only to act if the creditors fail to appoint a trustee.

Section 14 of the Bill has the support of my Committee. It should, however, in their opinion, be made clear that, if the creditors of an insolvent will not attend a meeting to consider his position, the Official Receiver shall have the powers to act in the premises upon his own responsibility. My Committee do not feel themselves in a position to recommend that the powers now vested in the Official Assignee, which powers they consider all that are reasonably necessary to enable him to take possession of the property of a bankrupt and to realise the same for the benefit of the creditors, should be extended. But with reference to clause (5) of section 26, they can see no objection why a larger measure of protection than he now enjoys should not be given to the Official Receiver. Where it is clear that that officer has acted in good faith, they consider that he should not be held personally responsible in the event of its being shown that he acted under a mistake or upon information wrong in itself but accepted by him as correct. Redress in such cases should, my Committee venture to think, be obtainable not at the expense of the Official Assignee but at the cost of the estate concerned.

It is a frequent subject of complaint that an insolvent's books are not promptly forthcoming, that his accounts are confused and in many cases unintelligible, that there is a want of system in presenting an insolvent's accounts, and that schedules are amended as a matter of form. Reviewing these matters it appears desirable that the office of the Official Receiver should be strengthened by having attached to it an experienced professional accountant. The books of an insolvent should vest in the Official Receiver from the date of the adjudication order. A report should be made at the next sitting of the Court that the books are either in the Official Receiver's hands or under his authority and control. The accounts of the estate could then, as might prove most convenient, be made up either in the office of the Official Receiver, where the insolvent would attend for this purpose, or in the insolvent's office under the inspection of the official accountant. In either case creditors would receive additional and much needed security, time would be saved and a greater interest in the settlement of the estate be exhibited on the part of creditors. It will be seen that this suggestion does not in any way throw obstacles in the way of a bankrupt's access to his books or to his closing of them correctly. It would compel him rather to avoid all unnecessary delays, and to furnish the Court with as correct a statement of his position as possible at the earliest possible moment. The immediate supervision of the preparation of this statement by the official accountant, or his close inspection of the books whilst it was being drawn up, would effectually deprive insolvents of the many common excuses which are now put forward for delaying the making over to the Official Assignee of the records of a business. The provisions of the draft Act as to the delivering up of a bankrupt's books should be thoroughly and carefully enforced, and as a corollary means should be provided to secure that the books shall be properly cared for. There are not a few insolvents who require experienced and capable assistants to enable them to close their books. At the same time the knowledge that upon the occurrence of an act of insolvency the closing of the books would be imperative and prompt would tend to greater strictness in the keeping of accounts, and would in itself cure that carelessness which Insolvency Commissioners in India are constantly reprobating. The suggestion that the office of the Official Receiver should be strengthened in the way above indicated has been put forward by my Committee because of the great importance which cannot but be attached to the speedy closing of an insolvent's books. They would prefer that, so far as possible, this should be done by a professional and experienced officer responsible to the Official Receiver and the Court rather than by some skilled but outside agency. In connection with this particular question, and as pointing to a branch of duty which would devolve upon an official accountant, it is extremely desirable that information as to the position of an insolvent's estate should be more generally and more readily available than it is at present. This end could only be attained with the greatest advantage to all concerned. My Committee would therefore suggest that it should be a direction to the Official Receiver or other trustee in bankruptcy to issue periodical reports duly certified by the official accountant and the progress made in realising the assets of each estate. These reports should be circulated at reasonably brief intervals, and should give creditors all the information needed to enable them to understand the progress made in settling a bankrupt's affairs. It is very desirable that creditors should be encouraged to take a steady and persistent interest in the liquidation of an estate, and nothing seems so likely to produce this result as an assurance that delays will be reduced to a minimum, and that the Official Receiver or Trustee shall as a matter of course keep the creditors informed of that which it most concerns them to know. In this way the reproach which now attaches but too often to the proceedings in the Insolvency Courts, that they are more or less of a purely formal character, would be done away with, and the Courts themselves would be in a better position to judge of the character of an insolvent's dealings and to distinguish between unjustifiable and speculative trading and bad fortune arising from the accidents of trade or of living.

The suggestion for the periodical circulation amongst creditors of statements showing the progress made in liquidating an estate applies equally to a trustee other than the Official Receiver or to a Committee of Inspection. Hitherto one of the main difficulties in working the existing Act has been the apathy shown by creditors; and it is, in the opinion of my Committee, necessary to show creditors that they can with little trouble acquaint themselves with all that concerns them as regards an insolvent estate, to induce them to attend meetings, and to take an active part in the winding up of their debtor's affairs. So long as creditors believe that to attend meetings is to proceed without knowledge, to arrive at no result or practically to waste time, so long will they avoid, unless under necessity, attendance at such meetings. Where the amount involved in a bankruptcy is small, the chances of getting together the creditors are small indeed, and in such cases it may be useful to reserve to the Official Receiver power to call a meeting of creditors at his discretion.

The attention of the Committee, in the course of the discussions on the draft Bill, has been in various ways strongly drawn to the question of protection against bendmi dealings and the fraudulent transfer of property of a trader who might be actually insolvent at the time of the transfer but who might continue to carry on his business and thus secure to the transfer something of a time sanction. Bendmi dealings, especially in cases of insolvency, are somewhat common and ought to be in a special way guarded against. In this connection it would seem that sections 28 and 41 of the draft Bill should be read together. In section 28 it is not as clear as it should be that the property therein indicated, as dealt with in the case of a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage, or in the case of a covenant made in consideration of a marriage for a future provision of the settlor's wife or children, that the property so disposed of would be regarded by the Court as an asset of the estate. This section is governed by the provisions of section 41, but still the matter is one which should not be left in doubt. So long as there may be a doubt there will be a temptation to endeavour to evade the law.

My Committee accept the limitation of time in section 41 after the lapse of which settlements made by persons who may become bankrupts cannot be impeached as reasonable and proper. Allusion has been made to bendmi cases and to the frequency with which such transactions are resorted to by Natives. The provisions of section 41 should be made sufficiently wide to take in cases of bendmi purchases in the names of the wives and children or other relatives of bankrupts or the transfer of property to them. So far as my Committee can see, such cases are not provided for in the proposed Act. They would commend this question to the attention of the legislature. On the one hand, it has been urged that property standing in the names of wives or children of a Native bankrupt should be presumed to be the property of the bankrupt and dealt with accordingly until the contrary was shown. But it would be unjust to throw upon a wife or children the burden of proving their right to property made over to them in good faith and at a time when the transferor was in a solvent position or in a position which would make the transfer a measure of prudence. In such a case the property so transferred, should the transferor subsequently become bankrupt, would be all that the wife or children could look to for their support. Such cases require protection. Still it is extremely desirable that bendmi transactions should be provided for, and my Committee would commend this subject to the attention of the legislature.

There is another matter which ought to receive attention, and in regard to which it appears desirable that the present opportunity should be taken to provide a much needed remedy. Cases occasionally crop up where, although there may not be an application to the Bankruptcy Court, still one creditor steps suddenly in, closes a business, and takes possession of all its assets. In such cases the general body of creditors are shut out altogether from participation in the assets, or find their interests postponed to those of a special creditor of whose rights they have been kept in ignorance. That such a state of things is possible opens a wide door to reckless trading and still more reckless borrowing. As the law in India at present stands, a lender is entirely at the mercy of the representations which may be made to him, and may in perfect good faith advance money for the assistance of a business which is not only actually insolvent but which may be in a condition where for all practical purposes it may be said to be carried on for the benefit of the creditor holding a possessory mortgage. In England this class of cases is dealt with by the Bills of Sales Act. Instruments of the kind alluded to must be registered within twenty-one days, and under certain circumstances are absolutely null and void as against a decree of the Court, a trustee in bankruptcy or in the event of the insolvency of the maker of the mortgage. In India it is very desirable that all instruments of this class should be made to come under the provisions for compulsory registration. The records of the Insolvent Court and the experience of the Official Assignee will amply bear out the necessity for some action such as that just suggested. It seems to convert the Bankruptcy Courts into a shelter for fraudulent dealings when a bankrupt who has deprived the general body of his creditors of security for their claims applies to the Court for protection against any steps they might ordinarily institute against him.

My Committee approve of the provision which retains for India imprisonment for debt. A very great number of Native traders are not subjects of the British Government, and have a means of conveying greater or lesser portions of their assets out of the jurisdiction of British Courts. Another large section of Native traders shelter themselves behind the Hindu custom of a joint family; where such a custom prevails, and where important classes of Native dealers have their domicile beyond the limits of the territories directly administered by the Government of India, it is necessary that imprisonment for debt should be retained even if on general grounds a good case could not be made out in its favour.

Section 34 provides that a limit of Rs. 500 as wages shall be paid, in priority to all other debts, to any clerk or servant who may have rendered services to the bankrupt during four months before the date of the receiving order. My Committee are strongly in favour of a limit in the amount to be paid under this section, but they consider Rs. 500 too low considering the average range of the salaries of assistants. They would make the limit Rs. 1,000, but would require that the amount of wages due to any clerk or servant should be certified by the Official Receiver or Trustee, or the official accountant of the Receiver's office.

Section 36 gives power to a landlord to distrain for one year's rent accrued due prior to the date of the order of adjudication. This provision would appear to be unnecessary considering the powers already ordinarily enjoyed by landlords.

My Committee are not disposed to cavil at the provision contained in section 46 of the Bill. Where the Crown reserves to itself the right to dismiss its servants as a punishment for insolvency, it seems reasonable that it should retain the alternative of regulating the amount to be retrenched from the pay of an employé.

It would appear to be in consonance with reason and the spirit of the Bill that the lying in prison of a person under a warrant of arrest in execution of a decree of the Courts, as well as the closing of, or departing from, a place of business with intent to defeat or delay creditors, should be declared to be acts of bankruptcy on which a receiving order should be made. The latter is, under the present law, a ground for adjudicating a trader, and the lying in prison under a warrant of arrest in execution of a decree a ground for adjudicating a non-trader, a bankrupt. There seems to my Committee no good reason why they should be omitted from the proposed Act, more especially as cases can readily be conceived in which the omission of these circumstances as acts of bankruptcy might give rise to difficulty. The lying of a debtor in prison is sufficient to give the proposed Bankruptcy Court jurisdiction, and it ought therefore to be declared to be an act of bankruptcy. It does not appear to my Committee that paragraphs 19, 20 and 21 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons give any good reason for excluding the jurisdiction of the Court in cases where persons or personally subject to the jurisdiction otherwise, and by reason of their being imprisoned or having within a twelvemonth ordinarily resided or had a place of business within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction. At present persons who come to Calcutta to sell produce, purchase goods, or to make contracts in this city for such purposes, are in respect of such contracts liable to be sued in the Calcutta High Court.

As the draft Bill is framed a Calcutta merchant who had obtained a decree against a person in the position referred to would be unable to avail himself of the provisions of the proposed Bankruptcy Act for enforcing payment of the amount for which he had obtained a decree. My Committee are decidedly of opinion that it would be a great advantage to the mercantile community if in the proposed Act the bankruptcy jurisdiction were extended so as to include all cases in which the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit.

The order and disposition clause, section 38, sub-section (3), provides for all moveable property in the order and disposition of a bankrupt, with the consent of the true owner, being dealt with as the property of the insolvent. This sub-section (3) is substantially identical with the order and disposition clause in the present Act. Under the section of the existing Act it has been held that property left by the true owner, being a mortgagee, in the possession of a firm the resident member of which becomes an insolvent, is not in the possession, order or disposition of the insolvent within the meaning of the Act, inasmuch as it is not in his sole possession, order or disposition, but in that of himself and his absent partners jointly. It was therefore ruled in ex parte Gubby in re Morgan (1 L. R. 6 Cal. 633) that the clause does not apply. It is very rare indeed to find in any business, whether carried on by Europeans or Natives, that all the partners are resident, and, this being so, the ruling referred to has in a large majority of cases the effect to a great extent of nullifying the possession, order or disposition clause, which is a very useful position to be maintained in the interests of the creditors generally of a bankrupt estate. My Committee would therefore suggest that sub-section (3) of section 38 of the draft Bill should be amended in a way to meet the difficulty which the decision in Gubby in re Morgan has raised. Possibly section 102 of the Bill, which provides that a creditor of a firm may proceed in bankruptcy against the firm in the name in which it carries on business, may in the case of some of the acts of bankruptcy specified in section 30 of the Bill get over the difficulty which has been pointed out. But the matter is doubtful, and the question is one of such great importance that my Committee consider the doubt should be removed as far as possible.

My Committee cannot accept the suggestion made in section 88 that any of the functions of a Court of Bankruptcy should be delegated to a Small Cause Court Judge. The Small Cause Court is a Court of summary jurisdiction. Its files are overloaded with business, and to transfer to it insolvency business would alter the character of the Court, establish direct insolvency jurisdictions in the Presidency-towns, and prove an inconvenience instead of a convenience to the public. The preferable course would be to follow existing precedents and provide for the appointment of a Registrar of the Bankruptcy Court. The work could not be imposed upon the Registrar of the High Court, for the officer is in the Calcutta High Court already overburdened with business. A Registrar of the Bankruptcy Court might have delegated to him duties similar to those performed by Registrars in Bankruptcy at Home. He might also perform the functions which under the English Bankruptcy Act are fulfilled by the Board of Trade.

It would probably be found a convenience if affidavits which have to be made in England and Scotland in cases of Indian bankruptcy should be sworn before the Permanent Commissioners already appointed by the Indian High Courts to take affidavits in those countries, and that affidavits sworn before such Commissioners should be admissible in bankruptcy proceedings in this country.

My Committee consider that a trustee appointed under section 20 should, unless good cause can be shown to the contrary, invariably be a creditor of the insolvent; such a trustee once appointed should only be removable by order of the Court and upon cause shown. My Committee do not think it would further the ends of justice to allow a trustee, so far as his work is concerned, to be at the risk of disputes amongst the creditors. Besides, by making him removable only by an order of Court, a greater directness of responsibility is obtained, and by so much a greater security for the interests of all concerned. Where a trustee is appointed my Committee incline to think that he should liquidate the bankrupt's estate under the inspection of the Official Receiver, who in such a case would fulfil the functions of a Committee of Inspection.

Section 26 might be amended so as to give the Court power to order, according to the information elicited in the course of proceedings before it, to deliver over any money or property which that information might show to have been received from the insolvent as the result of a fraudulent preference, as also any property vested in him by a fraudulent settlement or which he appeared to hold bénéfici for the bankrupt.

Sub-section (5) of section 27 appears to have taken no account of the possibility of creditors residing out of India. In such a case the notice of 14 days provided by the sub-section would be insufficient. The sub-section might be so amended as to show clearly the distinction between English and Indian creditors as respects the notice.

In section 32 there is an omission. The section provides for accounts to be taken when there have been mutual dealings between a bankrupt and any other person, but does not state to whom the account shall be rendered.

Section 38 gives Rs. 200 as the value of the excepted articles. The existing Act gives Rs. 300 as the value of such articles, and my Committee do not see why this limit should not be maintained in the proposed Act.

My Committee would suggest that the time allowed under section 48 for a trustee to disclaim onerous property should be enlarged from two months to six months. The circumstances of India are in every way so different from those in England, and such great difficulty attaches to a proper ascertainment of the character of properties, that to limit the period of disclaimer under this section to two months only would, my Committee believe, seriously interfere with its working.

My Committee would make the permission vested by section 50 in the Committee of Inspection depend rather upon an order of the Court. The same remark applies to section 57.

Clause (2) of section 52 appears to overlook the radical differences between separate and joint estates. These differences ought to be acknowledged so far that the direction to declare dividends together should be amended and powers given to declare dividends separately.

It would facilitate business if the latter portion of clause (3) of section 64, from the words "The officer shall, &c.," to the words "duly sanctioned," were omitted. If a trustee or manager acts with the permission of the Court under sections 50 and 57, there is no need for him to take further sanction for the details dealt with in this sub-section, more especially as all charges incurred under this sub-section must be taxed.

Referring to section 65, my Committee would not recommend any interference with the existing system, by which bankrupt estates accounts are kept in the name of the Official Assignee and audited by Government officials who submit half-yearly reports on such audit to the High Court. The like remark applies to section 67, clause (1).

In section 94, which gives the Court power to change the carriage of proceedings, my Committee would include besides any other creditors the trustee or the Official Receiver as persons who might be substituted to carry on the proceedings.

In section 103, clause (b), my Committee can see no reason for making the action of the Official Receiver depend upon the "permission of the Court," and would recommend that those words be omitted.

My Committee would add to the offences punishable under section 105 of the Bill the following:—failing to give proper assistance in realising his assets; procuring or assisting to raise a fraudulent claim against the assets of the estate; improperly interfering with the realisation of the assets; fraudulently making away with property; doing that which might result in preventing the disposal of the property at its proper value; showing a fraudulent preference to any creditor or entering into any composition with any creditor; inducing any creditor by an improper preference or otherwise to neglect or delay to proceed with a petition, or to agree to the discharge of the bankrupt.

My Committee cannot approve of the transfer of offences provided for in section 110, and would prefer that the Bankruptcy Court should itself deal with offences under the Bankruptcy Act.

The wording of section 113, providing for the exclusion of partnerships and companies, should be made more clear. As it stands it might be objected that it excludes ordinary business partnerships from the operation of the Act, which is against the present practice as well as against the spirit of the draft Act itself.

My Committee cannot see what utility will result from changing the designation of the "Official Assignee" to that of "Official Receiver". There is already an officer of the High Court known by this latter designation, and to retain the style "Official Receiver" would be to introduce something of confusion and to change a title thoroughly well known and comprehended.

In conclusion my Committee desire me to report their opinion that the draft Bill is an advance upon the existing Act. They would suggest that the legislature should consider the expediency of retaining Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code as regards the local limits of the Courts established under the bankruptcy law, and they would again urge that in the consideration of the draft Bill the utmost weight, and the most careful attention, should be given to the points of difference between the circumstances of England and India.

In addition to the above, eight special opinions were furnished on technical matters during the year, and two memoranda on the Petroleum Bill and the Explosives Act.

3. In the analytical work there was a decrease of 406 cases as compared with the previous year. The decrease is specially noticeable under the heads of “Opium,” “Salt,” and “Spirit for deleterious adulterations.” It is explained that in the report for 1884 the physical examination of 171 balls of opium was included in the list of analyses performed, whereas the cakes had only been handled to ascertain their freedom from grubs, &c. The decrease under the head of “Spirit for deleterious adulterations” is due to the fact that in 1884 an exceptionally large number of samples were examined for the Excise Commission, which represented work out of the usual routine of the department. Dr. Warden’s report on the analysis of Australian and Kashmir wines is of much interest. He writes: “The Kashmir clarets compare most favourably with the imported clarets; and when we are acquainted with the extent to which French wines are adulterated, it becomes a matter of surprise that our locally manufactured wines are not largely used; but, as a matter of fact, probably 99 out of 100 consumers of claret in India have never heard of Kashmir claret.”

4. During the year under report 234 human viscera were examined against 217 in 1884. Of these, poison was detected in 107 cases, giving a percentage of 45·72 against 38·25 in the previous year, the corresponding average of the past ten years being 42·6. It is satisfactory to notice the decrease in the number of autopsies conducted by Civil Hospital Assistants. In 1882-83 they performed 49 per cent. of the post-mortem examinations; in 1883, 14·9 per cent.; in 1884, 6·9 per cent.; and in 1885, 6·8 per cent.

5. Seven hundred and eighty articles suspected to be, or to contain, poison were submitted for examination during the year. Out of these, 394 were found to contain poison, giving a percentage of 50·5 against 47·7 and 33·4 in the two preceding years. One hundred and ninety-three animal viscera were examined against 137 in 1884 and 76 in the nine months of 1883. Poison was detected in 142 cases, and in all these, as in the previous year, death was caused by arsenic poisoning.

6. The Chemical Examiner reports that there was some improvement in the manner in which accounts of post-mortem examinations were submitted to him during the year, as well as in the mode of packing parcels containing articles for analysis. Officers conducting post-mortem examinations, and forwarding viscera, &c., for chemical analysis, should carefully adhere to the instructions on this important subject.

7. In paragraph 44 of his report, the Chemical Examiner represents the necessity of making certain alterations in the Laboratory. This matter should form the subject of a separate communication.

8. It is creditable to Dr. Warden that during a considerable period of his furlough in Europe he devoted himself to investigations on Indian indigenous drugs, and that he can report, after communication with Dr. Stevenson, the Official Analyst to the Home Office in London in medico-legal cases, that the rules for the guidance of medical officers in similar cases here, and the medico-legal return forms in use in Bengal, are excellently adapted for their purpose.

ORDER—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution, with a copy of the Report, be submitted to the Government of India, in the Home Department, for information.

Ordered also that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, Bengal, for information and for communication to the Chemical Examiner.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

R. H. WILSON,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 2343, dated Calcutta, the 8th April 1886.

From—A. J. COWIE, Esq., M.D., Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, Bengal,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit the report of the Chemical Examiner for the calendar year 1885, with appendix. The report has been written by Dr. Warden, who returned from furlough on the 14th November 1885. Dr. Waddell officiated as Chemical Examiner from 1st January to 13th November of that year.

2. The Government order is that the report should be submitted not later than the 1st March every year, and in order to do so, I find the 31st January as the latest date it should be sent to my office. February was therefore available for checking and printing the report. This year the report was received in my office on the 27th February, or two days only before the date it ought to have been forwarded to Government.

3. Dr. Warden explains the delay in a letter No. 202A, dated 23rd March 1886, a copy of which I beg to enclose. From the 21st February much time has been occupied in checking the figures and printing, thus leaving but a short while in which to review the report.

4. The total number of analyses performed in 1885 was 2,343, or a decrease of 406 as compared with the work done in 1884.

5. The increase and decrease in the past ten years may be seen from the following figures:—

1876-77	1,172	Analyses.
1877-78	1,182	An increase of	10.
1880-81	1,470	Ditto of	108.
1881-82	1,900	An increase of	430.
1882-83	2,133	Ditto of	233.
1883 (nine months)	1,211	A decrease of	922.
1884	2,749	An increase of	1,538.
1885	2,343	A decrease of	406.

6. In the year under review a large decrease took place. This is remarkable. The decrease is specially noticeable under the heads of "Opium," "Salt," and "Spirits for deleterious adulterations." There is an increase under every other head, except—

"Substances suspected to be or to contain poison, including cattle-poison."

"Articles tested for seminal stain."

"Petroleum and inflammable oils."

"Lime-juice."

"Spirit determination for the Collector of Customs."

Among articles tested for purity and quality, the following show a decrease :—

"Fort William Arsenal."

"Medical Store Department."

7. Dr. Warden explains that in the report for 1884, which was written by Dr. Waddell, "the physical examination of 171 balls of opium was recorded as 171 analyses, whereas the cakes had merely been handled to ascertain their freedom from grubs, &c, and were not subjected to chemical analysis."

Medico-legal analyses have increased.

In 1884 there were 1,328 cases.

In 1885 there were 1,437 cases, or an increase of 109 cases.

8. Two hundred and thirty-four specimens of human viscera were examined, against 217 in the preceding year, showing an increase of 17. In 107 instances poison was detected, or in 45.72 per cent. The result is satisfactory when compared with the poison detected in a total number of 2,439 viscera examined during the decennial period from 1875 to 1885, which was 42.6 per cent. only.

9. It is gratifying to note that Dr. Warden has no cause to complain this year of the manner in which the records of post-mortems have been submitted to him. He, however, intimates that in one district (Furreedpore) the amount of viscera despatched for examination was insufficient. The attention of the medical officers concerned will be drawn to this.

10. The animal viscera examined during the year was 193, against 137 in the previous year. The increase is represented by 56 cases. It is much larger than that of any of the previous years.

11. The percentage of cases in which poison was detected is thus exhibited :—

					Poison.	No poison.
1884	67.8	32.1

Arsenic is still the chief poison employed in the destruction of cattle. Of the 281 substances received, suspected to be employed for cattle-poisoning, 176 contained arsenic.

12. Dr. Warden still urges the desirableness of legislation to restrict the sale of poisons. He says: "there does not appear to be any valid reason why an attempt should not be made to restrict the sale of some, if not of all, poisons." The difficulty in the matter is this, and it has been sufficiently illustrated by the Government, viz. that "poisonous substances exist in every hedge and garden throughout the country." No Act therefore prohibiting their sale could touch the matter, when there is no need to purchase the majority of such poisons. Take the Abrus, or Indian licorice, as the chief and best known substance used in cattle-poisoning. The plant grows everywhere. I admit, however, that the sale of some poisons could be restricted, and notably the common mineral arsenic. Still, even here, if the sale of arsenic were subjected to the same rules as in the case of sulphur, I fear trade might suffer, as this article is very largely used in preparing skins for the market.

13. I do not think that cattle-poisoners will resort very largely to the use of vegetable poisons in lieu of arsenic, "from its being known to hakeems and native druggists that, while minute traces of any mineral poison can be unerringly detected, most vegetable substances defy analysis in the present state of chemical science," because the latter is cheap, can be readily strewn about the grass where cattle feed, and it is known to retard decomposition in the carcass of the animal destroyed by it. The increased exhibition of vegetable poisons, however, in other directions, I fear, we may expect, and Dr. Warden notes that they are now being more resorted to.

14. The note on the analyses of Australian and Kashmir manufactured wines is full and very interesting.

15. The increased examination of water is satisfactory. There were 57 examinations as against 46 in the previous year.

16. Dr. Warden devoted much of his time while on furlough in practical work in the chemical laboratories in Berlin. He also continued his investigations in Indian indigenous drugs, &c. The interest displayed in his profession, and the good work accomplished, is highly creditable to him.

17. In No. 1774T—M, dated 14th September 1885, the Government sanctioned the appointment of an assistant to the laboratory. I have placed Baboo Romanath Dey in the post on probation. Dr. Warden complains that he has no one to take the place of Assistant Surgeon Tara Prasanna Roy, should he through any cause be incapacitated. Dr. Warden knows perfectly well that practical chemists are not to be met with in Calcutta lying around loose. He must educate the man he needs himself. This he acknowledges, and practically this is what is being done. He considers, however, that "the department is still decidedly under-officered." The scope and work in the department steadily increases, and we must undoubtedly be prepared to augment the staff from time to time proportionately. The accommodation, too, will have to be seen to. Possibly a re-arrangement of the rooms and economising space may meet present difficulties. In consultation with the Department Public Works much, I think, might be done in this direction. I quite approve of Dr. Warden's request that sanction may be given for the construction of 20 separate closets. They are very necessary. The cost is not to exceed Rs. 900, which is not excessive.

18. The title of Assistant Chemical Examiner to Government cannot now be altered, unless section 510 of the Criminal Procedure Code is amended.

19. The amount of laborious work accomplished during the year is satisfactory, and the report is full and interesting.

CALCUTTA, the 1st June 1886.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 28TH OF MAY 1886.

ONE of the principal features in the meteorology of the past week has been in connection with a second advance of monsoon winds, which was taking place in the southern part of the Bay at the close of the previous week, and which, it was stated in the report for that week, would probably advance further up the Bay than the previous advance. The strong winds which were noticed at the Ceylon stations increased in force on Saturday, the 22nd, and pressure commenced to fall in the south-west of the Bay. On the morning of the 23rd a distinct cyclonic storm had formed off the South Madras coast, and by the following morning it had advanced over the coast line between Madras and Negapatam, the centre of the storm being apparently almost on the coast at 10 A.M. on the Monday morning, and nearer to Negapatam than to Madras. The storm was of considerable diameter, but the barometric depression at the centre was small, and though it was sufficiently powerful to give strong winds and rather stormy weather along the Madras coast, it cannot, so far as the observations received have shewn, be said to have been a violent storm or cyclone. On the following day, the 24th instant, the storm had apparently crossed the peninsula, and it ceased to affect the weather in the Bay of Bengal.

This moist southerly current, in front of which the storm just described had formed, apparently continued its advance up the Bay, and more particularly along the east coast, and on Wednesday, the 26th and on the 27th, there were indications that an extremely feeble cyclonic circulation had been set up by the advancing current over the centre of the Bay, and at this time a moist southerly and south-easterly wind current advanced over Bengal, giving rise to general rain in almost all districts of the province. This current can scarcely be said to have been the commencement of or the setting in of the rains, but it is rather a sort of preliminary advance of moist southerly winds, pushed forward or brought up by the strong winds in the south and centre of the Bay, which has drifted over the province, but which has not had sufficient strength to advance far into the interior of the country. During the earlier part of the week over the greater part of the province weather was fine, or in such parts as East and North Bengal decidedly showery, but with the advance of this southerly current from the 25th to the 27th rainfall became much more general and decidedly heavier over South-West Bengal, East and North Bengal, and over South Behar and Chutia Nagpur, while numerous showers fell in North Bengal and Orissa.

The variations of pressure during the week have not been of great importance, though for the first two or three days the variations were to a certain extent influenced by the formation of the cyclonic storm in the south of the Bay. After this pressure fell pretty steadily up till the 26th, when a slight recovery took place, which was, however, succeeded by a further fall on the last two days of the week. For almost the whole week therefore the general pressure has been steadily decreasing, and the effect has been to diminish the previous large excess pressure which had been registered. At the close of the previous week the excess pressure at many stations equalled 0.15", while for the whole week pressure had been in excess by 0.1". By the gradually diminishing pressure this week, the excess has been reduced to 0.062", but the excess is generally smaller in the western and southern districts than it is in the eastern and northern districts.

Temperature has, with the comparatively heavy rainfall during the week, been decidedly low, and all districts except North Behar show temperature considerably below the normal. The greatest defects are in South Behar and Chutia Nagpur, where they are 3° and upwards; in Orissa, South-West and East Bengal the defects are from 1° to 2°, while in North Behar temperature has been nearly normal. For the whole province the mean temperature for the week has been 1.7° below the normal.

Rainfall has been most copious in East Bengal, which district has received 3.35 inches against the normal fall of 2.44 inches. The actual fall has therefore been considerably in excess of the normal. North Bengal has received an average rainfall of 2.82 inches, while the normal fall is 2.31 inches, and has thus also received considerably more than the usual amount. South-West Bengal has registered an average amount of 2.04 inches against the normal 1.27 inches, and again this district has received a fall largely in excess of the normal. Chutia Nagpur has received 1.81 inches against the normal fall of 0.40 inch, so here the fall has again been copious. South Behar has recorded an average fall of 0.99 inch, which is almost three times the normal fall of 0.37 inch; and North Behar has registered 0.79 inch against the normal 0.61 inch, and has received a considerable excess fall. Finally, in Orissa the rainfall has been in decided defect, and the average fall at all the stations from which records have been received shows only 0.53 inch, while the normal fall for the week is 0.86 inch; the actual is therefore less than two-thirds of the normal fall.

The distribution of the rainfall has, however, been somewhat irregular and capricious in the various districts, and thus while in South-West Bengal the rainfall has been generally considerably in excess, the Midnapur and South 24-Pergunnahs districts show falls in defect of the normal. Also in North Bengal, where again the general fall has been in excess, the Maldah district has only received about a third of the normal amount. In South Behar the rainfall has been deficient in the Sarun, Chumparun and Durbhunga districts, and largely in excess in Purneah. In South Behar the Patua district has shown a fall below the normal, though other districts round it have received four and five times their normal falls.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 28th of May 1886 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.
 The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 5t, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

MERGUI ARCHIPELAGO.

THE Officer in charge of the Marine Survey of India has reported that a rock, with a depth of only 6 feet at low-water, spring tides, lies $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles N. E. by E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. of the South point of Cantor's Island.

The rock or islet marked on the latest corrected charts, two miles E. by N. of Bound island, does not exist.

The Medina Patch, with a depth of $1\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms, lie one mile E. by S. of Bound island, and join the 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 3 fathoms marked to the South Eastward.

Directions.—By keeping the whole of Passage Island open West of Fell's Island, a vessel will pass over the tail of the bank in 3 fathoms at low-water, smooth bottom. The least water in Fell's Passage is 9 feet at low-water between Payee Kyun and the Small islet. The rise of tide at neaps is 12 feet above this.

Also, that information has been received of the existence of a rocky patch lying to the South-East of Tavoy Island:—

This reef (Bowers Reef) is half a cable in extent, and dries at low-water; it lies $9\frac{1}{2}$ miles S. S. E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. of Canister Bank (Eastward of Tavoy Island), and $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles N. $\frac{3}{4}$ E. of Long Island.

THE Calcutta Medical College Session, 1886-87, will commence on the 23rd June next. Students who may be desirous of commencing their studies are requested to apply to the Principal between the hours of 11 A.M. and 4 P.M. on or before that date.

2. Ten (10) free presentations will then be awarded. These are given to students according to their relative position in the University, B.A., B.L. and F.A. Examinations, preference being given to those who have passed the highest examination.

3. No person shall be enrolled as a matriculated student of the College who has not previously passed the First Arts Examination of the Calcutta University, or some one of the preliminary Arts Examination of the United Kingdom recognised by the British General Medical Council.

4. All matriculated students of the College are required to pay Rs. 15 on entrance, Rs. 30 for the summer session on the 23rd June, and Rs. 30 for the winter session on 1st November of each year.

6. Any matriculated student of the College may, with the permission of the Principal and the Professors of the subject, attend courses of lectures or departments of hospital practice in addition to the full curriculum for the year, and shall be entitled to certificates of attendance at such extra lectures, if the Professor is satisfied that he or she has really studied the subject. 8. Any person not being a matriculated student of the College, who may be desirous of attending any course of lectures, or any department of hospital practice, may do so with the permission of the Principal and Professor of the subject, on payment, in advance, of fees at the rates fixed in rule 6.

If such student has passed the Entrance Examination of the University, he may receive certificates of attendance at lectures, provided the Professors are satisfied that he has attended the full course of lectures, and has mastered the subjects taught.

A student who has not passed the Entrance Examination will be entitled to no certificates of any kind.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, BENGAL.

DISTRICT ROAD FUND.

NOTIFICATION No. 214.

The 31st May 1886.

The following accounts and reports of the Road Committees of the districts of Dacca, Furrædpore, Backergunge, and Mymensingh, for the cess year 1884-85, together with the remarks thereon of the Commissioner of the Dacca Division, are published for general information.

D. B. HORN,

Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 116, dated Dacca, the 6th January 1886.

From—F. WYER, Esq., Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Dacca,
To—The Commissioner of the Dacca Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith two copies of the detailed accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the Road Fund of this district for the cess year ending on the 30th September last, together with the following report on the works of local improvement that were undertaken during that year, and those proposed to be carried out during the current year 1885-86. The accounts were duly audited by the standing Sub-Committee of audit and passed by the Committee at a special meeting held on the 6th instant in accordance with the provisions of section 179 of the Cess Act IX (B.C.) of 1880.

2. Original Works.—The most important original work undertaken during the year under review is the extension of the proposed Dacca-Manickgunge road from Bulliarpore to the bank of the Dhullessuri river. A bridge of 2 spans of 20 feet each was erected over the Bulliarpore khal lying on this section of the road. The masonry works of the bridge were nearly finished, but the iron platform was not put up owing to the loss of two rolled iron joists, which, by mistake of the Indian General Steam Navigation Company, were misssent to Silchar. The bridge will be completed in the present year, and the new road, which has been completed up to the Dhullessuri, opened to traffic.

3. In order to remedy the inconvenience seriously felt by pilgrims and votaries in visiting the Durgah of Shah Ali Shaheb, well known in East Bengal, the District Road Committee, at the instance and expense of Nawab Ahsanoollah Khan Bahadoor, undertook the construction of a road from the Meerpore river to the Shah Ali Shaheb's Durgah. The road was partially constructed and about two-thirds of the estimated quantity of earth-work and turfing executed. The road will be completed in the present year as soon as the lands needed for it have been acquired. The Committee's thanks are due to Nawab Ahsanoollah Khan Bahadoor for his having liberally paid the entire cost of constructing the road.

4. Survey Operations.—The principal survey works carried on during the year under report for the preparation of projects for the construction of new roads were the following :—

- (1) Surveying the first section of the proposed Dacca-Manickgunge road from Dhalla on the right bank of the Dhullessuri river, opposite Foolbaria, to Baitha, near Dassorah.
- (2) Surveying the Durgah first road from the Meerpore river to the Shah Ali Shaheb's Durgah.
- (3) Surveying the proposed Durgah second road from the Meerpore road to the Shah Ali Shaheb's Durgah.
- (4) Levelling the Dacca-Toke road from Tokechandpore to Channa opposite Joydebore.

5. Repairs.—All the existing district roads were maintained and repaired during the year, and they are reported by the District Engineer to have much improved with the exception of the roads from Moonsheegunge to Singpara, Keranygunge ferry to Nishanbaree and Moniat road, Nowabgunge to Moniat, which being below the level of high-flood were washed away in some places during the late rains. However, the general condition of these roads is reported to be fair.

6. In the road from Dacca to Naraingunge, the metalling operations were carried out systematically, and the quadrennial system of renewing entire miles, which was introduced in the preceding year, was adhered to. Three entire miles were renewed with jhama metal consolidated with Bhowal kunkur and the condition of the road has been greatly improved.

7. Arboriculture.—During the year under review no new trees were planted, but the old ones were maintained. In the undermentioned roads new trees were planted in place of those died out, and enclosures were repaired and put round them to protect them from animals :—

Name of road.		No. of enclosures repaired.	No. of trees planted.
Read from Dacca to Naraingunge, No. 1	...	499	224
Ditto Naraingunge to Byde Bazar, No. 2	...	753	72
Ditto Dacca to Toke, No. 3	...	660	...
Ditto Seado to Manickgunge, No. 6	...	760	182
Ditto Mirpore to Dacca, No. 10	...	183	1,030

8. The maintenance and the watering of trees were carried on by mallis under the supervision of overseers in charge of roads. The trees are reported by the District Engineer to have much improved, and some of them have already borne fruit.

9. Village communications, both in the shape of original works and repairs, were executed by the District Committee, as well as by the Branch Committees of Manickgunge and Moonsheegunge out of the assignments set apart for the purpose, the details of which have been given in the annual account.

10. In the following two instances the grants for village works in the Manickgunge sub-division were supplemented by local subscriptions. The villagers of Nabogram contributed Rs. 700 for the excavation of a tank in their village, which cost Rs. 1,000, and one Krishto Kanta Karmokar contributed Rs. 25 for the construction of a road at Hizli which cost Rs. 100. The lands required for the construction of village works were given gratis in all cases but one. In this Rs. 21-12-6 only had to be paid on account of cost of land required for the tank in the town of Manickgunge.

* * * * *

12. The District Road Committee worked as in former years. A few of the members did not attend a single meeting, but the rest of the members who attended the meetings evinced interest in the matters brought before them for discussion. Five members of the Moonsheegunge Branch Committee did not attend a single meeting; the others, as well as the Manickgunge Branch Committee, have worked fairly well.

13. The Cess Act appears to have worked smoothly during the year.

14. The different establishments under the Road Cess Committee have worked well and given satisfaction in the discharge of their respective duties. The District Engineer, Baboo Shoshi Bhoosun Mitter, has attended to his work very well, and given great satisfaction by the way in which he has carried it out. The Accountant, too, Baboo Rakhal Chunder Sing, has carried out his duties efficiently and to my satisfaction.

Vice-Chairman.

No. 185—III-5C, dated Furreedpore, the 27th January 1886.

From—F. H. BARROW, Esq., Chairman, District Road Committee, Furreedpore,
To—The Commissioner of the Dacca Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith two copies of the detailed accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the Road Fund of this district for the cess year ending the 30th September 1885, together with the following report on the administration of that fund during the year. The accounts were duly audited by the standing Sub-Committee of audit, and passed by the Committee at a special meeting held on the 26th instant in accordance with the provisions of section 179 of the Cess Act. A copy of the resolution of the special meeting by which the accounts were passed is also hereto annexed.

2. Cess on lands.—During the year under report the cess was levied at the usual maximum rate of 6 pies on each rupee of the annual value of lands. The collection of cess cannot be said to have been quite satisfactory, it having fallen short of the estimate by Rs. 2,363, against Rs. 2,099, the short collection of the previous year. The demand of the year was Rs. 58,231, which, with an arrear of Rs. 24,200 outstanding at the close of the previous year, gave the large sum of Rs. 82,431 as realizable. The estimate of Rs. 56,037 was therefore a very moderate one. The bad results are due to the somewhat dilatory proceedings of the certificate department, and I have taken measures to expedite them. In many estates there is want of agreement amongst the sharers as to their respective portions of road cess, and nothing will enforce payment but a threat of immediate sale.

3. The receipts on account of fees, fines, and forfeitures amounted to Rs. 2,587-14-3, as against Rs. 4,725-7-1 in the previous year, and Rs. 6,150 in the estimate. Thus, the total revenue of the year as actually credited to the fund fell short of the sum estimated in the budget by Rs. 5,693-9-9.

4. Committee.— * * * The percentage of average attendance was in excess of that of the previous year. Almost all the members of the District Committee took an active interest in the administration of the fund. In auditing the monthly accounts, the Sub-Committee generally followed the suggestions of the Examiner of Local Accounts with a view to ensure greater efficiency in their work.

5. Branch Committees.—The Branch Committee of Madaripore is reported by the Chairman to have “worked well on the whole.” But it would appear that though this Committee was first in securing the largest amount of private contributions in the previous year, no attempts appear to have been made in the year under report to increase its resources through the same source. It is proposed to change the head-quarters of the sub-overseer for this sub-division from Palong to Madaripore for the better assistance of the Branch Committee.

The Branch Committee of Goalundo seems to have administered its funds with much greater efficiency this year than in the preceding year. The attention of the Branch Committee was drawn last year to the total absence of private contribution to grants made by the Committee, and it is satisfactory to observe that with the assistance of the Chairman of the District Committee, Rs. 700 were realized this year as contribution in cash from parties applying for the Committees, grants. Besides, a sum of about Rs. 1,100 is reported to have been spent by the villagers themselves to supplement the grants sanctioned by the Committee. There were some very handsome donations to the Branch Committee for excavation of tanks which deserve special notice. Fuli Fakirni (ফুলি ফকিরনী) professing to be a mendicant woman of Kanukhali gave Rs. 800 for a public tank in her village; and Baboo Jadub Chandra Ghosh, a talukdar, is also said to have spent a similar sum for a similar purpose.

6. The village Road Sub-Committee for the Sudder sub-division did their duty, and the works carried out under their superintendence were for the most part examined and reported on by the District Engineer and his staff. The applicants for tanks and roads were compelled to make contributory payments, and this method of distributing the funds was found satisfactory.

7. Examination of Accounts.—The accounts of the Committee were checked by an Auditor of Local Accounts in July 1885. There was also the monthly and annual audit by the standing Sub-Committee appointed under section 174 of the Cess Act. The books and accounts of the District Engineer were also audited by the Sub-Committee, and inspected by the Examiner and Divisional Superintendent. The results of all these examinations of both the offices were satisfactory.

8. Original Works.—The following works were either executed or completed during the year under report:—

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| (1) The Gharishar road. | (6) Kristopore road bridge. |
| (2) Chur Teprakandi road. | (7) Madhukhali road pipe drains. |
| (3) Widening of the Fooltala road | (8) Rajbari road culvert. |
| (4) Godarbazar road metalling. | (9) Bhojeswar road bridging. |
| (5) Khangunge road metalling. | |

But I am sorry to say that Nos. 1 and 9 have been most seriously damaged by the floods of the rains, and No. 2, so much so as to render it doubtful if it should ever have been undertaken. All the works in progress at the close of the last year were also completed during the year.

9. Repairs.—Most of the roads are reported by the District Engineer to have been maintained in trafficable order all the year round. Considerable damages were done to some of them by the late extraordinary floods. The expenditure in repairs of the district roads aggregated to about Rs. 9,400, giving a rate of Rs. 71 per mile.

10. Village Roads.—It will be seen from the sub-joined statement that the expenditure on village roads during the year under report was not as large as that of the previous year. The total number of village roads constructed was 32, aggregating in extent to about 20 miles as shown in the margin.

11. Tanks.—Eleven tanks were excavated during the year; four in the Sudder, three in Madaripore, and four in Goalundo sub-divisions. The Committee's allotments on this head were largely supplemented by private contributions, particularly in Goalundo. I am glad to observe that the total amount of private contributions to roads and tanks was largely above the sum similarly realized in the preceding year, it having amounted to Rs. 1,100.

12. Arboriculture.—The Committee having ceased to lay out any money on this head, attempts were made to encourage private individuals to grow plants on the Committee's road-sides under prescribed rules and conditions. Only one person, however, has agreed to do so during this year.

13. Tramway.—There could not be a more important subject for the attention of the Committee than the question of a proposed line of tramway from Rajbaree to Furreedpore. The question had been mooted so far back as 1882, when it was submitted for the consideration of the Lieutenant-Governor by the Furreedpore People's Association. From that time the Committee has been earnestly endeavouring to secure this desired end. Statistics of passengers and traffic were taken in 1883, and the opinion of the Divisional Superintendent of Works obtained in the following year. Definite negotiations with promoters were, however, opened this year, but as they do not legitimately fall within the scope of the year's operations, their details need not be mentioned in this report. It must, however, be stated that, owing to the recession of the river Pudma from Furreedpore to the north, and the utter want of communication with the great marts of the district in the south, the construction of a line of tramway from Rajbaree to Furreedpore with the ultimate view of carrying it up to Bhanga on the river Kumar, offers the only opportunity of opening up the district, and of connecting the head-quarters with the north and south.

14. Establishments.—The Committee's establishment worked satisfactorily, and so did also the establishment of the Cess Deputy Collector. Among the District Engineer's staff the Sub-Overseer of Madaripore appears to have worked diligently, examining the works entrusted to him very closely, and making timely suggestions for the proper maintenance of all existing works in his sub-division. The Overseer has also evinced a proper regard for the interest of the Committee by making searching and careful examination into all village works in the Sudder sub-division, and his travelling bills show that he has made use of his time.

From what I have seen of the work of the District Engineer, I am inclined to believe that he has not a good control over his staff, and has not got method enough in his own work. I hope the Divisional Engineer will manage soon to inspect the two metalled railway feeders at Rajbaree and Belgachi stations on which over Rs. 10,000 have just been spent, and also, if possible, the Bhojswar and Gharishar roads in thauna Palong, where a similar amount has been spent on earthwork alone. I believe none of the above works have yet been inspected by him. I would also suggest that before the end of the current road cess year, he should visit, if possible, the commencement of the road to Bhanga, where we are in the course of spending Rs. 16,000.

15. The thanks of the Committee are due to Baboo Amvika Charan Majumdar, the Vice-Chairman, who, with a large practice as a pleader, has given much time and attention to its affairs, and has displayed both tact and ability in the conduct of his honorary duties.

Copy of paragraph 2 of the Proceedings of a Special Meeting of the District Road Committee of Furreedpore, held on the 26th January 1886.

PARA. 2. Annual accounts of receipts and expenditure, and the report on the administration of the District Road Fund of this district for the cess year 1884-85, were laid before the meeting.

Resolved unanimously—That the accounts be passed, and the Chairman be requested to submit the same to the Commissioner with the usual administration report on the same.

AMBICA CHURAN MUZUMDAR,

Vice-Chairman.

Notes to accompany the annual accounts for the cess year 1884-85.

(a). The fine was remitted and refunded under authority of Commissioner's No. 1036R, dated 14th March 1883, No. 111R, dated 6th January 1885, No. 16N, dated 1st April 1885, and No. 63N, dated 15th April 1885.

(b) & (c). The allotments for the Jessore road bridges and for the bridge over the Morapadma khal could not be spent, as their projects were not sanctioned within the year.

(d). The estimate for Rajbari road land compensation was sanctioned by Government No. 296F, dated the 3rd July 1880, received with the Commissioner's endorsement No. 991R, dated 20th July 1880.

(e). The estimate for the metalling of the Godarbazar road was sanctioned by Commissioner's No. 525R, dated 30th March 1881.

(f). The estimate for the metalling of the Khangunge road was sanctioned by Government No. 3034LC, dated the 6th October 1882, forwarded by Commissioner's No. 28R, dated the 12th idem.

(g). The project for the Haturia road earthwork (incomplete portion) having not been ready and sanctioned within the year, the allotments both for earthwork and land compensation could not be spent.

(h) & (i). The estimates for earthwork and land compensation of the Belgachi Railway station road were sanctioned by the Commissioner's Nos. 715T, and 389R, dated respectively, the 15th January and 4th June 1885. The allotment for the earthwork could not be spent owing to the delay made in completing the Land Acquisition proceedings. The amount allotted for earthwork, was however, utilized by payment of full amount of the compensation estimate.

(j). The work of the Matipara road bridge was taken up in time, but the contractor failed to complete it owing to rains. He is reported to have made repeated attempts though late: hence the expenditure is so small in comparison with the budget allotment and estimate.

(k). The estimate for the Baniabohoo road land compensation was sanctioned by Commissioner's No. 888R, dated 10th March 1879.

(l). The estimate for the Madaripore road earthwork was sanctioned by Government, Public Works Department letter No. 291L.C, dated the 7th February 1885, forwarded with the Commissioner's No. 201R, dated the 2nd March 1885. The allotments for this road could not be spent, as the land was not acquired within the year.

(m). The bamboo bridges on the Korukdi road having been constructed from the allotment for repairs, the allotment made for the purpose under the head of original works was not spent.

(n). The allotment made for the extension of the Bandarkhola road was found to be too small for the work intended to be executed: hence the work was not taken up.

(o). The estimate for the construction of the Gharishar road was sanctioned by the Commissioner's No. 612T, dated the 9th February 1885.

(p). The allotment for land compensation of the above road was not required to be spent, as the proprietors gave the land free of cost.

(q). The amount allotted for compensation for land required for widening the Fooltala road was not spent, as no claimant came forward within the year to receive payment.

(r). The allotments made in the budget for the earthwork and land compensation of the Bhedargunge road were not spent, as it was subsequently determined not to take up any petty and isolated works till the heavy and important works like the Madaripore road already projected have been completed.

(s). The estimate for the Road Cess Office building was sanctioned by Government, Public Works Department's No. 1879B, dated the 8th December 1885.

(t). The expenditure incurred for survey of the proposed road from Madhukhali to Hamdampore was proposed to be met from the savings of the allotment for village roads in the Sudder sub division.

(u). Of Rs. 1,279-9-6, Rs. 700 was met from the contribution realized in cash from the parties concerned, and the balance was paid out of the allotment placed at the disposal of the Chairman of the District Road Committee, for expenditure on village communications when in the interior.

(v). This amount was not spent as the verandah in question was not required to be maintained, a separate bungalow having been raised for the accommodation of the re-valuation establishment.

AMBICA CHURAN MUZUMBAR,

Vice-Chairman.

Dated Burrisal, the 18th January 1886.

From—L. P. SHIRRES, Esq., Vice-Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Backergunge,

To—The Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Backergunge.

I HAVE the honour to submit the detailed account of the receipt and expenditure of the District Road Fund for the cess year 1884-85, and to report as follows on the work done and in progress during the year.

2. The office of Vice-Chairman was held by me throughout the year.

3. The budget estimate of receipt and expenditure for the year under report was approved by the Commissioner by his No. 14T, dated 2nd September 1884, and reviewed by Government in its Resolution No. 4272RC, dated 12th December 1884, received with the Commissioner's No. 129R, dated 22nd idem. Subsequent adjustments were made with sanction.

4. The annual account has been examined and certified to by the Sub-Committee of Audit under section 179 of the Cess Act.

5. The road cess was levied as before at half rates. An attempt was made as in former years to pass the assessment at full rates, but was defeated by a majority of the Committee, which is largely representative of the district landholders.

6. The year opened with a net arrear demand of Rs. 28,775, while the net current demand was Rs. 96,434 making a total of Rs. 1,25,209. Of the arrears, Rs. 23,137 net, and of the current demand Rs. 68,338 net, were realised, making a total of Rs. 91,475, and leaving a net unrealised balance of Rs. 33,734. The percentage of collection to demand was 94.6, as compared with 100.9 in the previous year.

7. The actual amount at the disposal of the Committee during the year under report was Rs. 1,29,456, or Rs. 27,177 less than in the preceding year. Of this difference the greater part is due to the previous year having opened with a larger balance. Rupees 22,834, or the greater part of the surplus amount at the disposal of the Committee last year, was expended under the head of original works in giving compensation for lands acquired. Excluding this, the actual amount spent this year on original works was Rs. 36,964 as against Rs. 33,088 last year. The whole amount spent in actual work (original and repairs) this year was Rs. 57,776, as against Rs. 69,495 last year. The difference, Rs. 11,719, represents a difference in work done. This is due partly to the fact that the amount at the disposal of the Committee last year (after paying compensation as above noted) was greater, and partly to increased expenditure under the heads "Provincial rates—establishment and contingencies of office of collection" and "Ferry toll establishment and contingencies."

The increase under the former head is due to an increase in the number of re-valuation processes served, and the increase under the latter head is due to the subsidy given to the Flotilla Steamer Company. To sum up, the Committee spent less money on actual work this year than last, because they had less to spend, and because they spent more on re-valuation work and in subsidising the Flotilla Steamer Company.

8. The money spent on original works was as noted Rs. 36,964, of which about one-third was spent on village works. The remainder was spent in constructing wholly, or in part, $21\frac{1}{2}$ miles of road and four bridges as follows :—

- (1) Gazipore road diversion, $\frac{3}{4}$ miles completely made.
- (2) Second and third sections of Harinafulia road, earthwork and dressing, 7 miles.
- (3) Kaligunge road, dressing 11 miles.
- (4) Masonry bridge on Dhaniamonia road, completely built.
- (5) Morakhola bridge on Gaurnadi road, masonry up to road level.
- (6 & 7) Wooden bridges on the Shibpore and Golachipa roads.

9. Of these works, the most important is the Harinafulia road, which, when complete, will open out a part of the district, otherwise difficult of approach from Burrisal, and will connect Burrisal with the Perozepore system of village roads.

10. The most striking point, however, about the expenditure on original works (including village works) is that in the district of Backergunge only the small sum of Rs. 961 is shown as spent on constructing and improving khals. It may, however, be noted that, although no provision was made for a khal when estimating for the Harinafulia road, still of necessity a side cutting was made, which, with an expenditure of a few hundred rupees, will form a bad khal. It has not, I think, been constructed in the best possible manner. It has a depth of 6 feet, a width at bottom of 10 feet, and a side slope of 1 to 1; and it is at present impassable in six or seven places, and therefore utterly useless as a khal, while possibly objectionable on sanitary grounds.

11. This unsatisfactory result has an historical explanation. The Committee appear long to have been of opinion that their money was most usefully spent in keeping open the existing natural net work of khals, and when new communication was found necessary, in making khals two feet deep at low water with towing-paths. Such khals usually silt up in one place only, where the tides meet, or at the mouth, and there soft mud, which gradually hardens, is deposited. By removing this silt every four or five years, the Committee believe that khals of this nature could be kept open for a very long time. Of course when an opening exists at the meeting of the tides, such deposit would not take place. Formerly the Committee used to construct khals with roads alongside. That method was, however, found objectionable. Since then the Committee has practically had before it the choice of constructing a road with no provision for a khal, or of constructing a khal five feet deep at low water. This sort of khal is, however, costly. Even when khals have already been made, and the Committee desired to remove the deposits of silt referred to, it has been held that the repairs ought not to be undertaken unless the Committee were prepared to deepen the khal to a depth of five feet at low water. It certainly appears to me that if the Committee be furnished by their professional adviser with the initial cost, the subsequent average annual outlay, and the probable duration of the work as done in each way, it is for the Committee and not for him to decide in which of the two ways they will spend their money. If that were done, the Committee might consider Circular No. 50, dated 23rd January 1879, paragraph 8, and other remarks on the subject, and if they considered these less applicable to a district where communication is by khal, and not by road, they might candidly give their reasons for thinking so, and those reasons might be examined.

12. Rupees 22,229 allotted for repairs was cut down to Rs. 10,796. All the roads and khals budgeted for are, however, reported to have been kept in repair.

13. The following explanations are necessary to explain the discrepancies between the budget and the actual expenditure :—

Hizla Bridge.—Some materials were supplied, but the foundation could not be laid as it was impossible to take the work in hand before the rains.

Gazipore Road.—Less was spent than estimated, because much land was given without compensation.

Amboula Road, first section.—The project having been returned unapproved, the allotment was withdrawn.

Madhabpura road extension to Banaripara No. 15, Suarupkati road No. 42, Nowabgunge road No. 79, Bhagiratpore road No. 87, and Sonakhali road No. 88.—These roads were not surveyed, as village works superseded the necessity for them.

Dadhibhanga khal, No. 113.—The survey of this khal was deferred, as it was being improved by the Branch Road Cess Committee of Perozepore.

Jhabkhali khal, No. 114.—This khal was not surveyed as it has been found to be gradually widening itself.

Baramaghi and Kaligunge Roads.—The Divisional Superintendent of Works considered repairs to these roads, unnecessary; so no expenditure was incurred.

14. Village works.—Rupees 34,275 was set aside for village works throughout the district, and distributed and expended as follows:—

	ORIGINAL WORKS.		REPAIRS.
	Distributed.	Expended	Distributed.	Expended.
	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
Sudder sub-division...	9,500 0 0	8,891 8 0	2,775 0 0	2,563 14 0
Bhola " ...	2,000 0 0	1,997 2 6	2,000 0 0	1,523 5 6
Patuakhali " " ...	4,000 0 0	2,988 12 0	4,000 0 0	3,452 4 0
Perozepore " ...	6,890 0 0	6,680 0 0	3,110 0 0	3,035 0 0
Total ...	22,390 0 0	20,557 6 6	11,885 0 0	10,574 7 6

The balances in hand of the Bhola and Perozepore Committees were small in comparison with the expenditures. The balance in hand of the Patuakhali Branch Committee was much greater in proportion. The Chairman of the Branch Committee explains that the great scarcity of labour in his sub-division operates against the timely and regular execution of work, and that hence some of the works undertaken could not be fully executed within the year. The same explanation was given last year. Had the money been made over to zemindars as recommended by the Lieutenant-Governor in his circular No. 32, dated 27th September 1873, there is no doubt that it would have been supplemented, and that it would have been most usefully expended. Nothing has been spent for the Patuakhali tank for the repair of which Rs. 300 was allotted by the Patuakhali Branch Committee. The Chairman explains that the amount was not sufficient to meet the purpose for which the outlay was wanted.

15. The allotments made for the village works in the Sudder sub-division have been nearly all spent. Only two of the original works have not been completed owing to some dispute about land. It is hoped that they will be finished this year.

16. The village works were, as usual, much appreciated by the public. Ninety-one miles of road, and $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of khal were constructed; and repairs were executed to 28 roads and fifteen khals. The large grant to Perozepore was due to the fact that the Committee believed they would get more value for their money through the Branch Committee of that sub-division than by any other agency. This belief has been fully borne out. The most important village work, certainly one of the most important executed in the district during the year, was the improvement of the Dadhibhanga khal, by which Motbaria thana can now be approached from the east, and which shortens the route by which many woodcutters pass to and from the Sunderbuns. The former approach to the thana from the east was very round about, and has silted up. This work had long been contemplated by the Committee, but when men went to survey it in the latter part of the year, it was found that the work had been undertaken by the Perozepore Branch Committee. The work, such as it was, was completed within the year, and has been of great benefit. The khal will now be deepened to a depth of five feet.

17. The District Committee took an increased interest in their work throughout the year. This result was partly due to friction, but was nevertheless beneficial.

18. The Branch Committees met regularly, except the Bhola Branch Committee, which met only twice, the reason assigned being no work. The Chairman of that Committee has been directed to act strictly according to law in future.

19. The Audit Sub-Committee appointed under section 174 of the Cess Act met regularly throughout the year. The accounts up to 31st March 1885 were also examined by the Examiner of Local Accounts. Only a few discrepancies, since reconciled, were found in the District Engineer's Register of works. All his suggestions were carried out.

20. Arboriculture.—As in the previous year, no new trees were planted, though those previously planted were looked after.

21. Communication by steamer between Burrisal and Khulna was kept up throughout the year. The subsidy was discontinued, as it was thought the Company ought now to be able to manage without assistance. It may, however, be found necessary to renew the subsidy. Spirited, but not very successful, attempts were made by native gentlemen to open steamer communication between Burrisal and other parts of the district. One of these, that between Burrisal and Patuakhali, the Committee have proposed to subsidise.

22. A new chur, some miles in length, has formed in the middle of the Ilsha river. This detracts greatly from the utility of the Tengibari and Fenna khals, by which the Committee had formed a direct route to Bhola. These khals would, however, still be useful if kept passable.

23. There appears every probability of the Damoodar river, near Perozepore, being silted up; and if that happen the present route to Khulna will become impassable. The river is maintained by the Circular and Eastern Canals Division, who have been strongly urged to take steps for the proper maintenance of the route. I regret to say that there is an impression amongst members of the Committee that the work will not be undertaken lest traffic should be diverted from the canal route. It is difficult to see why traffic should be so diverted, and it is to be hoped that the impression is groundless.

24. Establishment.—The amount spent on establishment was Rs. 39,175, as against Rs. 38,138 last year, which is 34.41 per cent. on the total income, as against 31 per cent. last year. The difference in percentage is due less to difference in actual expenditure, than to the fact that last year there was a larger income. Twenty-five per cent. is the amount allowed by law; but under section 135 of the Cess Act, the Lieutenant-Governor sanctioned 34.91 per cent. for the year under report. This percentage would have been exceeded, but for a technical alteration in the method of keeping accounts (at the suggestion of the Examiner of Local Accounts) by which cost of service of process is shown under suspense account instead of under contingencies. By this means the cost of the collection department has decreased, but the increased expenditure of the re-valuation establishment more than makes up for this. At every inspection it has been said that the revaluation would be completed in two years. The horizon recedes as we advance, and the Committee may reasonably doubt whether this temporary establishment is not a permanent incubus. The Collector has, however, been asked to take steps to reduce the expenditure, and possibly something may be done.

25. Collection establishment.—This establishment keeps up two systems of registers, one for use and one prescribed. A mistaken impression prevails in the department that they have to collect statistics and not money; as an example of which may be instanced the fact that the submission of arrear reports of cess is delayed till the quarterly and annual returns have been submitted.

26. Certificate Department.—Cess due is realised through this department. Subsequent delay takes place here and in the Nazarat. The first step against the debtor is that the estate is put up for sale eight or nine months after default, and then, in nine cases out of ten the money is paid. The statement in last year's report that the interval was three months is wrong, and I apologize for having made it. Were it not that two of the heaviest debtors pay regularly, and a third nearly so, the result would be much worse. These three pay between them about one-fourth of the whole amount. Steps have been taken by the late Collector which, it is to be hoped, will remedy this state of affairs.

27. Re-valuation Department.—The object of this department is to ascertain how much money is due to the Committee, and from whom. The outcome of their labour is the valuation statement. This is, however, compiled directly from the record without the help of the intermediate registers, filing some hundreds of volumes, which are kept nominally for that purpose, and for supervision. These registers are filled up too late to be useful for supervision. The work of this department has been much increased by the method of summary valuation having been given up. It would appear that there are about 750,000 tenures in the district, so the amount of work involved in re-valuation may be vaguely imagined.

28. The Accountant's establishment worked smoothly as in former years..

Copy of Resolution 1 of the Meeting of the Members of the Backergunge Road Cess Committee, held on the 5th February 1886.

1. READ the Annual Report and accounts for the cess year 1884-85 submitted by the Vice-Chairman

The Committee adopt, with one or two modifications, the very clear and able report submitted by the recently transferred Vice-Chairman, Mr. L. P. Shirres, and adopt the accounts as submitted, and direct that the report and accounts be submitted to the Commissioner as provided by law.

H. FASSON,

For Chairman.

Explanatory Memorandum to accompany the Annual Account for the cess year 1884-85.

(a). The difference between this and the figures shown in the monthly statement is owing to the fact that Rs. 4-4 on account of refund of talabanah or process fees was shown in the monthly statement through an oversight against head "Refund of cess" instead of against head "Refund of other receipts." The amount has now been shown in the Annual Account under its proper head.

(b). For the increase of Rs. 4-4, see explanation (a).

(c). The difference between this and the figures shown in the monthly statement is due to the fact that Rs. 147 incurred by the Branch Road Cess Committee of Perozepore on "Original works" was shown in the monthly account under head "Repairs." The amount has now been transferred in the annual account to its proper head.

(d). For the decrease of Rs. 147, see explanation (c).

L. P. SHIRRES,

Vice-Chairman.

No. 110, dated Mymensingh, the 2nd January 1886.

From—The Chairman, Road Cess Committee, Mymensingh,
To—The Commissioner of the Dacca Division.

UNDER the provisions of section 179 of the Cess Act IX of 1880 (B. C.), and the instructions contained in Bengal Government's Circular No. 973A, dated the 14th September 1880, I have the honour to submit the annual accounts of receipts and expenditure of the Mymensingh District Road Fund for the last cess year 1884-85 in duplicate, duly audited by the Sub-Committee, and passed by the District Committee at their meeting of the 31st December 1885.

2. The Road Cess Act has been in force in this district since October 1875, and this is the tenth report of its working.

* * * * *

3. New members have been appointed during this year in places of some of those whose places were vacated by the expiry of their terms of office. Of the new members appointed, some are from the sub-divisions of Jamalpore and Tangail and other parts which were not represented in the former Committees.

4. The road cess on lands, under section 6 of the Act, has been levied at the maximum rate of one-half anna on each rupee of the annual value ever since the operations of the Cess Act came into force in this district. The receipts during the cess year under report amounted to Rs. 1,55,060 against the estimated demand of Rs. 1,53,433. The arrear at the close of the year was Rs. 10,653 as shown in the annual return of the Road Cess Collection office, submitted in No. 30, dated 13th November last. The closing balance of the cess year amounted to Rs. 67,414-3, which is owing to the savings effected under the different heads of expenditure as indicated in the detailed accounts.

5. The expenditure under "original works" during the cess year amounted to Rs. 73,360-2-9 against the provision of Rs. 99,748. The works done were earthwork, construction of roads, brick bridges, and glazed pipe culverts, building ferry boat and one inspection bungalow. Two feeder roads to the Dacca and Mymensingh State Railway have been constructed, and the water channel of the Bramaputra river passing the town has been much improved this year. It is worthy of notice that the amount of expenditure under original works during the year was nearly double of what was spent during the preceding year. The original works mentioned in the annexed account have been completed with the exception of the following, and these have also been very nearly completed :—

- I.—Construction of 10 bridges on the Mymensingh to Subarnocally road.
- II.—Extension and improvement of the culverts on the above road.
- III.—Planting trees 10 miles of the Mymensingh to Ramgopalpore road.
- IV.—Construction of the Jharria to Durgapore road.
- V.—Planting trees 10 miles of the Shambhuganj to Durgapore road.
- VI.—Improving and widening portions of the above road.
- VII.—Constructing four masonry culverts on the Madhupur to Tangail road.
- VIII.—Constructing three pucca bridges and pipe culverts on the Mymensingh to Phulbaria road.

6. The amount of expenditure under the head "repairs" during the cess year under report amounted to Rs. 28,680-7 against the sum of Rs. 42,481 provided. I may mention here that though the expenditure under the head during the year has been much curtailed, yet every possible step was taken to put all the existing district roads into a fair and passable order by the necessary repairs and maintenance of the road surface, bridges, jungle cutting, providing ferry boats, inspection bungalows and metalled portion of roads, and by replacing the old rotten timber bridges with glazed pipe culverts.

7. The statement below exhibits the provision made and expenditure incurred by the District and Branch Committees on account of construction and maintenance of the village communications under the category of original and repair works during the year under report, as per detail in the enclosed account—

			Amount allotted.			Amount expended.
			Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.
Sudder	sub-division	...	7,000	0	0	5,700	2	6
Atia	ditto	...	7,000	0	0	6,702	2	3
Jamalpore	ditto	...	7,000	0	0	6,036	5	0
Kishoregunj	ditto	...	7,000	0	0	3,329	9	9
Netrokona	ditto	...	7,000	0	0	6,040	10	3
Total			35,000	0	0	27,808	13	9

A sum of Rs. 38,000 has been appropriated for expenditure on the village communications of the five sub-divisions during the current cess year, allowing a grant of Rs. 3,000 more than the year under review, for the Atia sub-division, which is the most extensive one in the district.

8. The sum Rs. 2,356-13-6 has been spent for planting fruit-bearing trees (nearly 5,000) on 17 miles of road and maintaining the old trees planted in previous years. Many of the jack-trees planted have borne fruit during the last two seasons. A sufficient grant has also been made for tree-planting in the current cess year's budget.

9. This report is supplementary to the brief narrative of the district road cess operations for the half-year up to March 1885, which was submitted with this office No. 244, dated 22nd April 1885, and it is needless to give a detailed statement of the work to be executed during the current cess year, as the information is given in the revised budget estimate submitted with this office No. 53, dated 4th December 1885.

10. The subjoined table shows the percentage cost of the different establishments (exclusive of contribution towards pay of the Divisional Superintendent of Works and his office establishment) entertained by the District Road Cess Committee during the year under review—

Total income exclusive of previous year's balance.	Total cost of establishment, exclusive of contribution for Divisional Superintendent of Works	Percentage.	Cost of establishment of collection office.	Percentage.	Cost of administration establishment.	Percentage.	Cost of works establishment.	Percentage.
Rs. 1,55,000	Rs. 31,455	20.28	Rs. 9,746	6.28	Rs. 4,176	2.69	Rs. 17,533	11.30

The aggregate expenditure for the establishment was below the limit of one-fourth of the income of the Committee, exclusive of the balance of the previous year, as provided for in the law; and it would have been more so, in case there was no expenditure incurred for the re-valuation work and serving processes of the collection office under the Board's Circular No. 8 of August 1882, for which a sum of Rs. 2,036 and Rs. 2,811 respectively was spent during the year. The different establishments under the Committee have worked satisfactorily.

11. In conclusion, I have to state that the accounts of the District Road Fund for every month of the year have been submitted to the Accountant-General, Bengal, after being audited by the Sub-Committee. The accounts of the Committee for the last two-and-a-half years (from April 1883 to September 1885) have lately been thoroughly examined and audited by Baboo Asutosh Singha, who was deputed by the Examiner of Local Accounts, Bengal.

MOHUMMUD,

H. SAVAGE,

For Vice-Chairman, Road Cess Committee.

For Chairman, Road Cess Committee.

No. 264R., dated Dacca, the 27th February 1886.

From—W. R. LARMINIE, Esq., c.s., Offg Commissioner of the Dacca Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

As required by the provisions of section 179 of the Road Cess Act, I have the honour to submit herewith copies of the annual accounts for the cess year 1884-85, together with the reports of the Chairmen of the various Road Cess Committees in the Dacca Division on the administration of the road cess funds in their respective districts.

2. The cess has been levied at the full rates in the Dacca, Furreedpore, and Mymensingh districts, but in the district of Backergunge at only half rates. The collection of the full cess in the last-mentioned district was proposed by the Chairman, who was supported by all the official members of the Committee, but the influence of the zemindars in the Committee was too strong to admit of the Chairman's proposal being carried. There is, I think, no district in Bengal which is more wealthy, or in which a larger expenditure on the improvement of both land and water communications could be better incurred, and it is therefore much to be regretted that the opposition to the Chairman's proposal should have proved successful. When the budget estimate for the current cess year was framed, Mr. Fasson, who had in the meantime succeeded Mr. Dutt as Chairman of the Committee, made a strenuous effort to induce the Committee to levy the full cess; but whilst every reasonable argument was in favour of his motion, the votes of the members representing zemindary interests again proved too strong, and the motion was defeated in favour of an amendment again providing for the levy of the cess at half rates.

3. In the Dacca and Mymensingh districts the amount of cess collected during the year under review was in excess of the estimates, but in the districts of Backergunge and Furreedpore it fell short of them. This result, as regards Furreedpore, was very far from satisfactory. In the Administration Report for the previous year the arrears of cess, which then amounted to Rs. 22,000, were the subject of comment. The arrears now amount to Rs. 28,757, and it is evident from the remarks of the Chairman that the measures adopted have proved inadequate to the collection of the accumulating arrears.

4. The offices of the several Committees appear to have been inspected by the Examiner of Local Accounts, and those of the District Engineers by the Divisional Superintendent of Works.

An inspection of the office of the District Engineer of Backergunge in November last, made by the Divisional Superintendent of Works, brought to light a very extraordinary correspondence between the estimates for the majority of the works, whether original or repairs, which had been executed during the year under review, and the register of works, which represents the payment made. The explanations given were not satisfactory, and the Divisional Superintendent was compelled to conclude that the measurements recorded were not bond fide; that a proper check over his subordinates had not been kept by the District Engineer; and that there were consequently very good ground for believing that the greater number of the bills, certifying to work, coinciding as they did exactly with the estimates, had been drawn up without actual measurements. This may possibly have been the result of pure laziness on the part of the subordinates unchecked by the District Engineer, but whatever the origin of the system may have been, there is unfortunately little room for doubting that in very many instances a malversation of the road cess fund has been the result. An instance of a somewhat similar kind in which the bills for a work, with the solitary exception of the final bill, were mere copies of the estimate, had come under the Divisional Superintendent's notice during the previous year, fortunately before the final payment had been made. Further subsequent investigation, which embraced the measurement of the work by the Divisional Superintendent in person, has shown that the bills included charges largely in excess of the work actually executed, and that, excluding the final bill, the payments which had been made included a considerable overcharge for earthwork. The conduct of the District Engineer in respect to these transactions has been under the consideration of the Road Cess Committee.

5. Under the head of Original Works the expenditure in the district of Dacca and Mymensingh was of a very satisfactory character. In the former district the principal outlay was on the road, which has been for some years under construction between Dacca and Goalundo. The Committee have been very properly concentrating their efforts on the completion of this road before attempting the commencement of other new works. In the Mymensingh district the grant was mainly expended on the bridging of the existing roads. The old practice of commencing new roads, either leaving their bridging to be carried out at some future time or at the best erecting wooden bridges, which were very often of a purely temporary character, had been abandoned during the previous year. The Divisional Superintendent had pointed out the great advantages that would result if the Committee were to make an effort to complete the existing lines of road before proceeding with the construction of other new and costly works, and the result of the adoption of his proposal has greatly exceeded his expectations. It is now estimated that, assuming the same policy to be followed up during the cess year 1886-87, all the existing main roads, aggregating 260 miles in length, will be provided with bridges, mostly of a permanent, and all of a safe, description. These, too, will involve a comparatively small annual outlay on repairs. The large increase in cart traffic that has already followed on these roads being made safe for the use of heavy carts is sufficient evidence in itself of the appreciation by the public of the benefits conferred by the bridging of these roads.

6. In the districts of Backergunge and Furreedpore the progress made in original works is not however satisfactory. The total expenditure in the former district under this head amounted only to Rs. 36,964, of which one-third was expended on village works, and it may be reasonably doubted whether the Committee have obtained the full value of their money laid out on these latter, since it would appear that it has expended to a large extent through the agency of the same subordinates whose methods of dealing with contractor's bills have already formed the subject of adverse comment. In the Furreedpore district there was practically a complete failure to carry out the principal works for which provision had been made in the budget estimate. Upwards of Rs. 44,000 were provided for six works, on which the small sum of Rs. 1,380 only was expended. In one case the failure was due to delay in the acquisition of the land, the estimate for which was not submitted until after the close of the working season. In two other instances the estimates had not been prepared and were never submitted. In two other cases the estimates were so inefficiently prepared as to render their return for revision necessary, and these also were not submitted till the working season was past. In the only remaining instance the estimate was also received when it was practically impossible to make any real progress with the work, and this estimate did not receive the immediate sanction of Government. The result, which is very unfortunate, as very much the same thing occurred during the previous cess year, is clearly the consequence of a want of system and foresight. In April last the Divisional Superintendent of Works visited Furreedpore and had a conference with the Chairman (Mr. Samuells), the Vice-Chairman, and the District Engineer, the object of which was to place matters on a more satisfactory footing and to initiate a better policy during the current year. I also visited Furreedpore myself in company with Mr. Johnson in September last, and discussed the matter with Mr. Barrow, who had in the meantime succeeded Mr. Samuells as Chairman of the Committee. Mr. Barrow was most anxious to secure a better administration of the funds at the disposal of the Committee, and it is to be hoped that the present year will be characterized by a marked improvement in the extent of expenditure under this head.

7. In the districts of Dacca, Mymensingh and Furreedpore, roads rather than new waterways, are likely to prove of the greatest use to the public, but the district of Backergunge is very differently situated, and deserves some remark, not only in respect to the character of the country, but also as to the nature of the works already carried out, their practical utility, and the measures which it seems most desirable to adopt for the further improvement of the communications in the district generally.

8. The head-quarters, Perojepore, and Patookhali sub-divisions comprise a tract of country in which all traffic is carried on by boats. Carts are practically unknown, and the broad roads which have been constructed, as well as the Harinafulia road now under construction, have never been, nor are ever likely to be, used for wheeled traffic. A very large saving might consequently have been effected by a reduction in their width and the character of the bridges built, since narrow embanked roads, raised a foot above flood level and provided with wooden foot bridges of a cheap description, would have served all the purposes to which these broad roads have been actually put. Roads of this description, or in short an improved description of village road, are all that are required in that portion of the district which lies to the west of the Megna and Ilsha rivers.

9. On the other hand, the natural water communications are capable of very great improvement. This remark is not intended to apply to the main rivers, but to the khalls which connect these rivers, and which are consequently subject, as a rule, to the influence of opposing tides advancing from either end of the channels, for which reason the maintenance of these channels is a difficult and expensive matter, and consequently the exercise of considerable judgment and discrimination is required when selecting works of this kind for the purposes of improvement. There has thus arisen a difference of opinion between the Committee and the professional advisers of the Commissioner from time to time, the last-named officers on the one hand frequently condemning schemes submitted to them on the ground that the temporary advantages to be gained did not warrant the expenditure proposed, whilst the Committee on the other hand do not appear to have been satisfied that the disapproval of their proposals was justifiable. An illustration of this divergence of opinion occurred in 1883-84, when the present Divisional Superintendent condemned certain proposals on the ground that the expenditure would prove to be a sheer waste of money, the Committee nevertheless resolving to proceed with their execution.

10. In connection with this point it should be also noted that the inability of the Committee to proceed with works of this class on a more extended scale during the year under review was the result of the inaction of the Committee and of their Chairman at the time in not availing themselves of the concessions which the Government of Bengal made in its No. 1391LC, dated 8th August 1884, in reply to a reference made by my predecessor Mr. Alexander, when this difference of opinion between Mr. Johnson and the Committee was brought to his notice. Mr. Johnson met the Chairman shortly after the receipt of the letter quoted and discussed the matter with him, the result of the interview being that, these officers practically concurred as to the procedure that should be followed. It is to be greatly regretted that no further steps were practically taken in the matter for several months, and in the meantime effect could not be given to the orders of Government owing to the absence of any definite proposals or expression of their wishes by the Committee.

11. I cannot leave this subject without the remark that the Divisional Superintendent of Works has for the last two years been persistently urging on the Committee the thorough improvement of certain channels, which would give greatly improved communication between the central portions of the district and the east and west of it respectively. No action was taken by the Committee until in November last. I then visited some of the localities, accompanied by Mr. Johnson, Mr. Fasson, and the District Superintendent of Police, who, as a matter of course, is well acquainted with the district. The result of this tour was our entire concurrence with Mr. Johnson's several proposals, as likely to prove of very great benefit to the district generally, and surveys are now in hand with the view to the preparation of the requisite estimates. A partial improvement of one of the channels embraced in Mr. Johnson's proposals, viz the Dadhibanga khall, appears to have been carried out as a village work by the Perojepore Branch Committee, and incomplete as such work must be, the resulting advantages are highly spoken of in the Vice-Chairman's report.

12. Throughout the island of Dakhin Shabazpore, which forms the main portion of the Bhola sub-division, bridged roads are in great request, surrounded as the island is by rivers not only difficult, but most dangerous to navigate during fully seven months of the year, and with the exception of the khall, which crosses the island between Bhola and Dowlat Khan being possessed of practically no internal lines of water communication, the want of good roads is greatly felt. Thus this part of the district differs entirely from the tracts already noticed. With the view to meeting this demand a fairly complete system of roads has been constructed from time to time, which are however provided at the best with wooden bridges of a very inferior class, or left altogether unbridged. The bridges have decayed and have been for some time past practically useless, whilst the money expended on their construction and annual repair would have gone far towards the permanent bridging of these roads. The Committee having laid out so large an amount on the construction of these roads, have latterly been expressing their unwillingness to incur further expenditure on them, on the ground that a continued heavy outlay on one locality is an injustice to the rest of the district. Whilst admitting that there is some force in this view of the matter, it is obviously desirable that these roads should be completed, as in the absence of bridges they remain practically useless for the purpose for which they were constructed, and I am glad to be able to report that a commencement was made last year, and that during the current year the representation made to the Committee have resulted in their allotting grants which will suffice to complete the bridging of about 85 miles of these hitherto incomplete roads. I trust that the Committee will take the earliest available opportunity of completing them altogether, more especially as the extent of bridging required is not great, and as no very large annual grants will again be requisite.

13. On the expenditure under the head of repairs little comment is needed. The budget grants have not in all cases been fully worked up to, but on the other hand the saving effected on the estimates appears to have been the consequence of more effective supervision over the expenditure, resulting in an outlay limited by actual requirements. In the district of Backergunge the large reduction in the estimates was mainly effected at the instance of the Divisional Superintendent of Works.

14. Two short feeder roads were constructed in the district of Mymensingh connecting the railway stations of Kalibazar and Balipara on the Naraingunge-Dacca Mymensingh State Railway with the banks of Brahmapootra. In the district of Dacca an estimate was framed and sanctioned during the year under review, providing for a feeder road to connect the station of Sreepore with Gosingha Hat, which is situated on the banks of the Lakhya river. No progress was however made with this work, as the Committee declined to expend upon it the larger sum involved in its construction, intimating at the same time their willingness to contribute towards it Rs. 10,000, or half the estimated cost, and to carry it out, provided that the Government of Bengal were willing to contribute the balance. There appears to be considerable doubt whether this road, if constructed, would serve the purpose which it is intended to effect. The station of Sreepore is already connected with the much more important hât of Barmee, about six miles distant by river from Gosinga hât by a portion of the old road between Dacca and TokeChandpore, and the construction of a second and costly feeder road connecting this railway station with the Lukhya river would appear to be questionable in the absence of any material traffic over the existing road. In the district of Furreedpore it was intended to construct a railway feeder to connect the station of Belgachee on the Eastern Bengal State Railway with the important market of Ramdia, which is located on the banks of the Chanda river, but in consequence of difficulties arising in respect to the acquisition of the land it was found impracticable to proceed with the work during the year under review.

15. In the district of Backergunge the steamer of the Central Bengal Flotilla Company continued to ply between Barisal and Khulua throughout the year, but the subsidy which the Road Cess Committee of the district had granted during the previous year was withdrawn, the Committee considering it to be unnecessary to continue it. Several attempts were made by private individuals to open out steam communication between Barisal and other parts of the district, but it is very doubtful whether the enterprising projectors of these schemes and proprietors of the steamers employed will meet with the success which alone would warrant the continued maintenance of the services.

16. Under the head of River Improvements during the year under review a very important, though inexpensive, work was carried out at Mymensingh, which consisted in the training of the river Brahmaputra under its right or southern bank opposite the station, very materially contributing to the convenience and probably to the health of the inhabitants of the town by providing them with fresh running, in place of stagnant, water. At Dacca an attempt was made to improve the channel lying between town and the large chur that has formed in the middle of the river Booriganga, but it is open to very grave doubt whether the spurs which were erected without the advice of the Divisional Superintendent of Works have not failed to effect their object, and whether they have not been the cause of the great changes that have taken place in the condition of the river below the town. The tail of the old chur has been cut away opposite to the cantonments, and for some miles below the cantonments an extensive series of new churs have been thrown up, converting what twelve months since was a comparatively deep channel into shallow water. Surveys are now being made and sections taken which may throw some light on the subject.

17. During the year under review the system of thoroughly renewing metalled roads, mile by mile, as occasion required, which was introduced into the district of Dacca during the previous year, was also brought into force in Mymensingh and continued in operation in Dacca. The previous practice consisted in occasional repairs here and there, the consequence being that the roads were bad throughout. The new system has effected a marked improvement in all the metalled roads in both districts.

18. Under the head of Village Communications the expenditure in every district was considerable. In the districts of Mymensingh and Backergunge the grants were high, and in the former much was done to open out new lines of communication by the demarcation of well aligned tracks, which in course of time will be probably converted into bridged and embanked roads. These tracks were adapted to traffic of every description, and are actually very superior in point of utility to unbridged embanked roads. In the lowlying parts of the district they are of course submerged during the rains, but embanked road devoid of bridges could only be used for foot traffic at the same season, and that only to a limited extent.

19. Complaint is made of the full grant not being expended in parts of Backergunge. The practice here appears to be that village works, to a very large extent, are carried out through the agency of the Committee's establishment, which, as already remarked, does not appear to be altogether trustworthy. There can be little doubt that if the execution of this class of works were entrusted to the zemindars who are principally interested in their construction, the work would be honestly done, and that the grants would frequently be supplemented by contributions from the zemindars themselves. Throughout the division the very limited amount of such contributions is very marked. In the sub-division of Madaripore the decrease is commented on by the Chairman of the Furreedpore Committee, and this falling off is probably the consequence of Mr. Badshah's transfer to Tangail. A great deal undoubtedly rests with the Chairmen of the Branch Committees, and were they to exercise their influence wisely, the applicants for village works would probably contribute much more largely than they now do towards their construction. Such contributions might very frequently be made a condition of the Committees entertaining applications for village works. This practice appears to be in force in the sudder sub-division of Furreedpore, and to work satisfactorily. The liberality of Nawab Ahsanullah in contributing the entire cost of two roads connecting the new Goalundo road in the district of Dacca with Sally Shah's tomb deserves special recognition.

20. The proposal made for the construction of a steam tramway or light railway over the Rajbaree road in the district of Furreedpore, connecting the head-quarters of the district with Rajbaree station of the Eastern Bengal State Railway, has not made great progress, but negotiations have lately been opened which appear likely to result in the construction of the line by a private company under a guarantee by the Committee.

21. The progress made under the head of Arboriculture in the districts of Dacca and Mymensingh was satisfactory. In the districts of Furreedpore and Backergunge, on the other hand, no new trees were planted, but, as noticed in previous reports, the roads in these districts are not adapted for arboriculture.

22. The establishments employed by the Committees appear, with a few exceptions, to have worked well. The District Engineer, Baboo Herembo Nath Das, of Mymensingh, exhibited great zeal and intelligence in carrying out the heavy original works executed during the year, and the District Engineer of Dacca, Baboo Shoshi Bhusan Mitter, is also highly spoken of by the Chairman. I regret to find that complaint is again made of the want of system and control over his subordinates displayed by Mr. Williams, the District Engineer of Furreedpore, more particularly as the failure of the Committee to carry out their budget proposals appears to be largely traceable to these causes. From what I have seen of this officer and his work, I am not inclined to recommend the retention of his services when the Local Self-Government Act is put in force.

23. It is not necessary to make any addition to my previous remarks on the methods that have characterized the conduct of business in the office of Baboo Jagadish Chundra Roy, District Engineer of Backergunge. The Committee will probably be wise if they dispense with this officer's services.

24. The various Chairmen have taken great interest in the administration of the funds at the disposal of these Committees. Mr. Fasson and Mr. Barrow, who took office when the year was well advanced, deserve considerable credit for the efforts made by them to secure better administration in the districts of Backergunge and Furreedpore.

I have to acknowledge the valuable services rendered during the year by the Divisional Superintendent, Mr. J. W. Johnson, who is, I regret to say, about to go on furlough. The care with which he has supervised the work of the Committees, and the tact which he has shown in securing the co-operation both of the Committees and the District Engineers, have greatly conduced to the successful results of the year's operations.
